LIMIT CHICAGO VOTES IN HOUSE, GOVERNOR ASKS

Legislature Opens; Hears Message.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Voteridism and reapportionment were ushered in as outstanding issues at the opening today of the 57th general assembly.

The houses met in harmony; the honey pots overflowed after two days of preliminary controversy.

David E. Shanahan was elected for his fifth term as speaker. As dean of the house he has served continuously in eighteen regular sessions, ten special sessions, and one constitutional convention, and has been five times speaker, a record which historians say has never been equaled in any other state.

There was no bolting. Thompson-Small groups, which for two days had roared like lions in the hotel rooms, after being flattened in the party caucus roared like lambs and suckling doves when the session opened. Shanahan got all the Republican votes there were—81.

Democrats Stick to Igoe.

The senate Republicans elected Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet as president pro tem, his old job, from which the governor pushed him last session, although Mr. Barr continued to run the senate machine. Senator Tom Courtney became the minority leader.

Gov. Emmerson read his message, after which the houses adjourned until next Wednesday. The members drifted down to the second floor and formed a queue in front of the auditor's cage, where they drew their two years' pay of $3,500 and $50 for stamps, etc.

Departing for the trains, the law makers commented upon the utter collapse of the Thompson-Small threats of a battle. From the city hall group came never a peep.

Hunt That Capone Influence.

Also a fruitful topic was the Capone influence. Judge Lyle has charged Capone with having men in the making bodies. Downstate members displayed curiosity; they wanted to have Capone members pointed out. A stock remark was that Capone votes proved negligible in the projected speakership battle, and would not exert influence on legislation.

Wet and dry measures were early arrivals in the senate. Bill No. 2 is for repeal of the Illinois prohibition law, the bill which has been twice passed by the house and twice blocked by the senate. It was introduced by Senator Frank McDermott. This time the liberals expect the repealer will be enacted, in conformity with the two to one vote in the November referendum and the Democratic landslide on a wet platform. On its heels was a resolution by Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield asking congress to call a convention to amend the 18th amendment. The house did not receive bills.

Governor Avoids Subject.

Gov. Emmerson in his message did not refer to the prohibition issue. On reapportionment he said there is no good reason why the legislature should not carve out new districts for congressmen.

On senatorial districts he dwelt on the idea of a constitutional amendment limiting Cook county, which has 51 per cent of the population, to about one-third the seats in the house and one representation in the senate. To back up, he spoke of home rule for Chicago. It was pointed out by Cook county members that a proposal to limit Cook county's representation was the reason for the defeat of the proposed new constitution some years ago.

Also relief, unemployment, law enforcement, and highway affairs were named a large variety of topics discussed by the governor.

How the House Opened.

About 50 new faces, one-third of the house, were in the chamber when Secretary of State W. J. Stratton rapped the gavel at 12:15 o'clock. There were more Democratic seats filled in many a year, and the minority side was crowded, the majority

5 FLYERS DIED ON OCEAN HOP, ITALY REVEALS

Three Others Hurt as 2 Ships Fall.

ROME, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Ten Italian seaplanes sailed gloriously in a flight from the west African coast to Brazil yesterday, but left behind them tragedy, with five aviators killed, three others injured, and four ships disabled.

An official announcement of the casualties, withheld by the government until the home folk were in bed, that their rejoicing might not be marred, cleared up the confusion that has existed since the planes left Bolama, Portuguese Guinea.

Two Crash at Takeoff.

Twelve planes were due to start originally. Two of them crashed at or near the takeoff, so two replacement ships, which had accompanied them from Italy, then set off and later were forced to alight in mid-ocean, although without injury to the occupants.

Tragedy first overtook the third plane of the red group. The ships flew in four divisions bearing the colors red, white, green, and black, the hues of the Italian tricolor and Fascism.

Capt. Recagno lifted the ship off the water, but it fell after reaching about 160 feet altitude and struck heavily. Sergt. Luigi Fois, the mechanic, was riding in the right pontoon and was killed as it crumpled. The two pilots, both officers, and the radio operator were injured.

Plane Burns Up; Four Die.

The second plane of the white group was next. Carrying Capt. Luigi Boer, Lieut. Danilo Barbicinti, Sergeant Mechanic Felice Nensi, and Radio Sergeant Ercole Imbastari, it roared up from the takeoff and sped over the Atlantic for about ten minutes, then dived to the sea at a terrific speed.

Flames burst out as it struck and partly consumed the craft. The four occupants were killed.

After these accidents the two repair and replacement units were ordered into flight about an hour later. One, piloted by Capt. Donadelli, sprung a leak in the radiator connection, and the other, commanded by Capt. Baistrocchi, broke its magneto shaft. Both landed less than 100 miles from the Brazilian penal island of Fernando do Noronha, about 125 miles northeast of Natal, and were picked up by Italian destroyers, to be towed to the island.

Will Join Armada.

The crews were safe, and after minor repairs are made the planes will resume the flight to Natal.

Capt. Boer was 29 years old and was noted for his flying ability. He accompanied an oriental cruise of Italian planes in 1929. Lieut. Barbicinti was 28 years old and formerly was a submarine officer. He had been in the air service since 1924 and was regarded among Italy's best flyers.

FULL OF PRIDE

BY ITALO BALBO.
[Leader of the Italian Air Armada.]
[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 7.—I am full of pride at this proof of my theory of group flying. What only one man at a time has done before, we have done as a squadron, in regular military formation.

You Americans, who have given so much impetus to trans-oceanic flying, are, more than any other people, in a position to understand my satisfaction today.

I have not yet received accurate details of the few mishaps, but I am afraid that this undertaking also will have been paid for in human life. But in any case, no forward step in the history of civilization has been accomplished without an adequate sacrifice.

FORMER JUDGE McCARTHY AND WIFE HELD UP

Former Municipal Judge Joseph McCarthy and his wife were held up and robbed late last night at Catalpa avenue and Sheridan road by a collegiate appearing young gunman who escaped with a small amount of money. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy, who live at 4730 Magnolia avenue, had been visiting at the home of Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas at 5510 Sheridan road. The couple were walking over to take a street car when the robber forced them into a doorway at the point of a gun and took $16 from the lawyer and $2 from his wife.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM IN WASHINGTON

Woman Found Strangled to Death in Bed

A young woman known to her neighbors in the apartment building where she lived at 3233½ Warren boulevard as Mrs. George Neilsen was found strangled to death in her bed in her home early this morning. A towel tightly knotted about her neck two or three times was the instrument of death. Police who looked at the body believed the woman had been dead for at least 24 hours.

Dog Leads to Discovery.

The discovery of the body came from the barking of a Pekingese dog which had been annoying other residents of the apartment building. They reported it to Mrs. Ella Meyers, manager of the apartments, and she entered the room.

The body was on the bed clad only in underclothing. The bed gave evidences of a struggle, but otherwise the room was in order. The rear door was slightly ajar, and police believed the slayer entered and escaped through it. There were no marks indicating the door had been forced open, and this led the police to believe that the slayer was some one known to the woman whom she had admitted to the apartment.

Just outside the door of the woman's apartment was found a hypodermic needle such as is used by dope addicts, but no evidence that the woman had used it was found. In the room were several letters and telephone numbers and names. Most of these were Kansas City people.

Tells of Acquaintance.

One of the telephone numbers was in Crown Point. That is the number of the Cadwell hotel. George Neilsen, supposed husband of the slain woman, was located there. He is a foundryman.

When told of the death of the woman he expressed the greatest surprise and grief. He declared the woman was not his wife. He said her name was Mrs. Jean Stevens and that her home formerly was in Kansas City. He became acquainted with her several months ago and together they took the apartment in which she was slain.

He said he came to Chicago every Friday evening and remained at the apartment until Sunday evening when he returned to his work in Crown Point. The last time he saw her, he declared, was on Sunday evening. On Monday evening he talked to her over the telephone, and she seemed in excellent spirits, Neilsen said.

HERE'S WHAT WOMEN DID WHEN THEY QUIT DRESSING IN GINGHAM

Clinton, Mass., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Gingham gowns once were the latest style.

Representatives of the Lancaster Mills corporation, once a leading manufacturer of gingham dresses, tonight took the floor in the crowded town hall and told the townspeople that unless taxes on the mill property were reduced from $32,000 to $15,000 the town would have to sell the mills to collect.

The corporation, he said, had but $19,000 after paying off the indebtedness of the plant, once worth $15,000,000. The mill closed last April.

The meeting voted to recommend to the town assessors that the requested tax reduction be made. It also appointed a committee to try to sell the plant or bring some industries to it.

4 Kidnap, Rob Lita Chaplin, G. Carpentier

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Police detectives said tonight that Lita Grey Chaplin and Georges Carpentier were kidnaped outside a Bronx theater, driven more than a mile, and robbed by four men. The bandits escaped in Mrs. Chaplin's automobile. She said jewelry valued at $16,900 had been stolen.

Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier, police said, were held up as they stepped into her car after completing an appearance at the theater and were threatened by revolvers during the ride.

Ordered from Car.

When the car stopped the robbers divested the actress of her jewels and robbed Carpentier also.

Together with their chauffeur they were ordered out of the car, detectives related, and the men sped away. Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier took a taxicab to their hotels and the chauffeur reported the holdup to the Morrisiana polic station.

Give Description of Men.

Acting Captain John A. McIlhargy and six detectives interviewed the principals after the incident and were said to have obtained a good description of the men.

Both Mrs. Chaplin and Carpentier denied themselves to reporters. The amount of his loss and further details were not revealed. Carpentier, the French prize fight notable, is appearing in vaudeville.

PECULIAR WAYS OF A COMMUTER ARE DISCUSSED

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The peculiar ways of a commuter were discussed today by Hubert Bassett, assistant to the controller of the New York Central, who was testifying at a rate hearing.

"Whereas a 'through passenger,' with a longer time to wait and a greater distance to travel, buys a magazine or two, possibly takes a taxi ride and telephones a few friends," he said, "the commuter rushes through the station, buys maybe a newspaper, maybe a cigar; never uses a cab, rarely a telephone, and only once in a while has himself weighed."

LEO BROTHERS, ST. LOUIS GUNMAN, IS IDENTIFIED

Prisoner Has Record of Other Murder and Robbery.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

The capture of the murderer of Alfred Lingle was announced yesterday by Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, and Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney.

Witnesses to the slaying of Lingle have identified the prisoner positively as the killer.

The name of the prisoner, accused of committing that crime which has been heralded in the press even to the far corners of the civilized world, is Leo V. Brothers.

Gang Slaying Fugitive.

It is a name new in the chronicles of Chicago gangdom, but it is not new to the annals of crime elsewhere. Brothers is a fugitive from a gang murder charge in St. Louis, and he has a record for robbery, for labor terrorism, and other crimes. He has been arrested 60 times in St. Louis.

Brothers lived in Chicago by the name of Louis V. Bader, an alias, and his pals in crime call him "Buster," a diminutive which is physically descriptive of this well set up and rather handsome young man, an athlete in general appearance.

Description Is Recalled.

His blond, wavy hair glistens with gold when it is struck by the sunlight. His eyes are smoky blue, deep set, and behind the smoke can be detected the glint of hardness.

These were the points which had been so strongly stressed by the witnesses describing the murderer of Jake Lingle.

Brothers was captured on Dec. 21 and ever since he has been held incommunicado while the officials continued their investigation.

Seven men took part in the capture. They are Mr. Rathbun, Mr. Roche, Samuel Lederer, a business man whose unusual talents in criminal investigation led Mr. Roche to enlist him in the Lingle inquiry; Fred Joyner and Walter Wendt, investigators on the Roche staff, and two representatives of The Tribune.

Months of Effort Win.

Months of careful, painstaking investigation came before the capture. When the first wisp of suspicion against Brothers came to the investigators it was no stronger than any of the other wisps of information which had wafted in, only to evaporate.

Thread by thread the case against Brothers was woven, and before Rathbun and Roche had ever seen the suspect; before any of their men had ever seen him; before a single witness had viewed Brothers, the investigators possessed information which convinced them that Brothers was the man who killed Lingle.

Investigators were sent to a dozen cities, from New York to the Mississippi, and they pried into the secrets of the gangs until enough had been learned to demonstrate the guilt of Brothers.

For once in Chicago the wall of silence shielding the killers of the gangs had been broken through.

This time the wall of silence was erected by the prosecution, so that none of the gang, not even Brothers, had the slightest suspicion that the murder of Lingle was approaching solution. Even the fact of Brothers' capture was held secret from his associates, from the newspapers, and the public, while the investigation went on.

Garbled Reports Issued.

Several wildly garbled reports of activity in the Lingle case were published, but they were not unlike the countless other rumors and false theories previously published by some of the newspapers. The investigators were inconvenienced by the published reports, but their work was not seriously obstructed.

Brothers came to Chicago in July, 1929, fleeing from the murder of another man killed in a taxicab warfare in St. Louis. He came with good credentials to gangsters in this city, and became what is known as a "heavy man" in the commission of crimes. He was called in, the officials said, in crimes requiring a cool, fearless head and a sure trigger finger.

He had no lawful occupation

SWANSON SEES HOPE OF BREAKUP OF ALL GANGDOM

The following statement was issued last night by State's Attorney John A. Swanson in connection with the announced capture of Leo Brothers, charged with the murder of Alfred Lingle:

"I am particularly pleased that a result has been accomplished after the immense amount of work that has been done to capture the murderer of Lingle.

"If it had not been for the assiduous, industrious, continuous work applied on this case, it would undoubtedly have gone into Chicago's crime record as another unsolved mystery.

"So many gang killings in this city have gone unsolved, and perhaps this case can be made the fulcrum upon which an unrelenting search for other gang murderers can be made.

"It demonstrates what can be done when a complete and efficient investigation is brought into being to concentrate upon the solution of one particular crime, and it proves beyond contradiction the absolute need of a sufficient thoroughly trained and well equipped investigating force to be applied on all major criminal activities.

"A great community like ours will find such a force a real economy. It must be absolutely free, however, from any political or other obstructing influence.

"It would be impossible for me at this time to forego saying a few words of praise for the men who have been in this investigation. Mentioning some of them by name perhaps would not be out of place.

"Pat Roche, whose appointment by me indicated my feeling of confidence in him; Mr. Rathbun and Mr. McShane, who have handled matters in the prosecution of this investigation in so far as the legal aspects were involved—the entire group which has been under the leadership of these three are entitled to receive credit not only from me but from the community at large for the tireless, nerve wrecking efforts which they have applied in this inquiry.

"Seldom have men given so much."

SEARCH OF MORE THAN 6 MONTHS REWARDED BY CAPTURE OF LINGLE SLAYER

He kept himself carefully under cover, making certain that he was never arrested, on suspicion or otherwise, by the police. All these characteristics, it was pointed out, made him a perfect choice for the task of killing Lingle.

"He was the best man in the United States for the job," declared Roche.

Brothers was hired to kill Lingle, the investigators said. Others, the leaders in the plot who desired the death of the reporter, selected Brothers as the slayer.

He was sent on June 9 last into the subway leading under Michigan avenue at Randolph street to the suburban station of the Illinois Central railroad. And in that subway, as Lingle passed through on his way to a train for the Washington Park race track, the slayer came up from behind, lifted a snub-nosed revolver to the back of Lingle's head, and fired a single bullet into the reporter's brain.

Full Evidence Withheld.

As to who hired Brothers, and why, Prosecutor Rathbun and Investigator Roche refused to discuss this subject at this time.

Neither would they reveal the web of proof which they have woven about Brothers, nor could they disclose the story of the investigation which had led to the capture.

These facts are withheld, it was explained, because other angles of the investigation, concerning Brothers' accomplices, the motive, and similar matters, are still pending. The statements made to the investigators by Brothers, except in so far as they concern his past life, are being kept secret for the present.

Witnesses' Names Kept Secret.

To expose the secret details of the investigation at this time, it was stated, would prevent or hinder the proper completion of the inquiry.

The names of the witnesses accusing Brothers as the assassin who crept behind Lingle and killed him will not be made public until Brothers is brought to trial.

"They are the best witnesses in the case," declared Mr. Rathbun. "No one who will have heard these witnesses accuse him could deny this man's guilt."

Climax of Long Search.

The capture of Brothers marks a climax in the investigation undertaken by THE TRIBUNE on June 9, the day that Lingle, a reporter on THE TRIBUNE for 18 years, was slain. Within a few minutes after Lingle was shot down representatives of THE TRIBUNE were at work seeking the assassin.

In the six and a half months following, the inquiry has gone on, financed by THE TRIBUNE and directed by Mr. Rathbun, a member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, regular counsel for the THE TRIBUNE.

The same reporter who was sent to the scene of the murder while Lingle's body still lay there, has remained continuously on the Lingle assignment and was present at the capture of the killer.

Roche Directs Hunt.

Mr. Roche, whose genius as a detective had been demonstrated many times before, was chosen by THE TRIBUNE to direct the search for the slayer, and Mr. Roche was then assigned by State's Attorney Swanson to devote his entire efforts toward that end.

Investigators were employed, some of the regular detectives on the state's attorney's staff were assigned to the case; James E. McShane, an attorney of wide experience in criminal law was retained by THE TRIBUNE and made a special prosecutor; special offices for the investigation were leased.

Expense was not a problem. There was only one objective, and that was to solve the mystery of the murder of Lingle.

Herewith is given first the story of the capture of Brothers, the story of the life of Brothers as it was given briefly by Mr. Rathbun and Mr. Roche, and a short description of the events which preceded and followed the murder of Lingle, and of that crime itself.

AN AMAZING STORY

An amazing stroke of fortune was the key to the capture of Brothers.

Carefully organized as the plans had been, under the direction of Chief Investigator Roche and Assistant State's Attorney Rathbun, the difficulties to overcome would have been a hundredfold more perplexing but for the bounty of the fair Lady Luck.

As it was, the capture came as the grand finale of a drama marked by suspense, by violence, by hope and dismay—touched at times even by comedy.

For days the whereabouts of the slayer, his home and his hangouts, had been known. His associates were under surveillance.

Investigators Move in Secret.

Brothers had no inkling of this, and it was of the utmost importance that he should remain unsuspecting. It was conceded that if Brothers knew he was in danger of capture the task of finding him then would be well-nigh hopeless.

Similarly it was feared that if Brothers' allies in crime came to know of the walls closing around him they might save themselves by sealing his lips. They might murder him.

The suspect himself had never been seen by any of the investigators. To "tail" him would have been fatal. In that eventuality, however careful the follower might be, Brothers would have discovered him.

Actions Closely Guarded.

It was also agreed that when Brothers was arrested it was desirable that his associates should be unaware of his capture, so that the investigation following the seizure might be prosecuted efficiently.

To guard against these dangers the secrets of the investigation were closely kept by the few who knew them.

During the months of investigation of what in the beginning was only "the Brothers angle," caution and deliberation guided the officials of the inquiry in their actions.

When at first it was suggested that Brothers was a likely suspect a hasty effort to take him into custody might have been made.

Set to Work on Clews.

But Rathbun and Roche, who were determined to make no arrests until they were reasonably certain that it was the correct thing to do, quietly set to work on the clews available.

For a time the trail centered in Chicago, and then it shifted to New York. Some of the staff, including Roche and Rathbun, went to New York, and there obtained information which strengthened the case against Brothers.

A representative of THE TRIBUNE had been stationed in New York, working on the Brothers angle, and, he remained there, enlisting the coöperation of the New York police department.

During all this time, and in the weeks that followed when men were being sent to other cities, the closest watch was set upon the movements of Brothers' pals.

PLANNING THE ARREST

At last the decision was made that the time for the arrest of Brothers had arrived and the plans for his seizure at once were formulated.

At 8 o'clock on the night of Dec. 19 Chief Investigator Roche received information that Brothers was in a speakeasy at 224 North Dearborn street which masqueraded under the name of the Taylor Amusement company.

A discussion ensued in the investigation headquarters in the Temple building. Should Brothers be taken there, and, if so, how?

Discuss Raid and Veto It.

A raid might be staged on the speakeasy by the state's attorney's men and Brothers taken with the others in the place. To allay suspicion that he was the real object of the raid, other raids on other loop speakeasies might be conducted.

On the other hand, there was the chance that Brothers might escape and that he would afterward believe he had been the raiders' prey and thus be forewarned.

After a long conference the question was put to a vote and the decision was unanimous that Brothers should not be taken in the speakeasy.

At 11 o'clock on the following morning word came to Roche that Brothers was to leave at 6 o'clock that evening on the Southwest Limited of the Milwaukee road, bound for Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Decide on Train Capture.

A reservation for a Pullman berth had been made in the name of L. Bader, the name used by Brothers throughout his stay in Chicago, and he was to occupy lower 8 in car No. 26.

Should he be taken there? Another discussion was held and the decision was made to stage the capture in the Pullman car.

How was he to be taken? The hours between 11 and 4 o'clock went by as every detail of the plan was considered, some details to be discussed, some to be improved.

Should two men be placed in the car with one of them to follow the suspect if he went to another part of the train, leaving the second to inform the other detectives as to the direction taken by the suspect? Should the entire force board the train in the Union station, or should the complement enter at Western avenue, the first stop? These were problems.

Agree on Downtown Arrest.

It was finally decided that Brothers should be arrested as the train stood in the downtown station. A commotion was to be deplored, for it might summon exposure and publicity. It was believed that if Brothers was arrested, in his seat, and quietly hustled to a waiting automobile, scant attention would be paid to the incident.

Four men were elected to stage the actual seizure of this gangster wanted for the slaying of Lingle, this man for whom the greatest search of a century had been made.

Those chosen were Detectives Wendt and Joyner and two representatives of THE TRIBUNE, one a reporter, the other an army captain during the war and an expert marksman.

Arranging the Details.

The last two, who had been sworn in as special investigators, were selected to prevent Brothers from becoming immediately suspicious, neither of them having the general appearance of policemen. The possibility that Brothers might send in a lookout, to consider the lay of the land before he entered his seat, had also been given thought.

Joyner and Wendt were chosen because they had many times demonstrated great bravery and efficiency.

Sam Lederer, the man of business who proved invaluable as a special investigator, was delegated to look out for Brothers at the ticket office where the suspect would obtain his tickets. He was to watch the hurry and bustle about the ticket cages, spying Brothers as the latter came to claim the ticket reserved for him.

A Link with Four in Train.

This was arranged so that if Brothers did not go directly to his space on the train a means of notifying the four in the car might be had.

Rathbun and Roche remained in Lederer's car, which was to be parked, by prearrangement, at Van Buren and Canal streets. It was agreed that these two, as the leaders of the investigation, were too well known personally to board the train, and that their presence would endanger the success of the plan.

A third man stayed with Rathbun and Roche, and this was Jacob Manassee, as courageous and doughty, despite his five feet four of height, as any six footer. Jake is a veteran investigator for the last 15 years employed by the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, of which Mr. Rathbun is a member. Jake has served during the crucial stages of the inquiry.

Railway Men Coöperate.

To insure that the railway conductors and trainmen would not, in their ignorance of the plan, interfere with its success, the staff called in Edward C. Kilburg, chief special agent of the Milwaukee road, and his first assistant, and these men smoothed the way of the investigators through train gates and past conductors, porters and the like.

It was agreed that when Brothers was in custody he would be taken by a secret exit from the station train shed to the waiting cars at Van Buren and Canal streets, and from there to a secret headquarters maintained by the staff.

HOW PLAN WORKED

The plan was scrupulously carried out. The entire staff, with the exception of Special Assistant State's Attorney McShane, who stayed behind to receive any important messages which should be relayed to the others, left the Temple building singly or in pairs, so that watching newspaper men would not be aroused.

At 4 o'clock Wendt and Joyner went directly to Kilburg's office at 700 West Fulton street. The two TRIBUNE men tarried and arrived at the same destination a few minutes later. Each of the four was armed.

At the Union Station.

At 5:30 Joyner, Wendt, and THE TRIBUNE representatives led by Kilburg left for the station. Entering by a side door, and traveling singly some twenty-five feet apart, the five came to the train shed.

Passing through a gate separated from that through which passengers for the Southwest Limited would enter, the five went far up another platform, crossed in front of a train preparing to leave, and came back on the platform beside the track on which the Southwest Limited already was standing.

It was about 5:35 when the four men assigned entered the car numbered 26. I was next to the observation car on the rear of the train. The four removed their overcoats. One of them, the captain, settled down in a rear seat, it having been agreed that he would guard the exit of the car, so if Brothers made a break for liberty, he would find his way barred.

Four Dispose Themselves.

Joyner sat down in lower 9, at the head of the car. Wendt and the reporter were in the aisle, preparing to find seats, when a baggage porter, bearing a heavy suitcase, came up into the car. His eyes were following the berth numbers on top of the spaces in the car, and behind him came a man.

The "red cap" stopped by Number 8. He pushed the suitcase under the seat, accepted a tip from the passenger, and left the car. The passenger stood in the space between the two seats and removed his overcoat.

Just at this time Kilburg strode up the aisle, and, noticing the man in Number 8, raised a hand and significantly motioned his thumb toward the passenger. The plan had been to permit the suspect to take his seat, but with Kilburg's motion, an immediate action was called for.

Passenger Is Seized.

Wendt lunged toward the passenger, and in a trice had slipped his arms under the shoulder pits of the man, forcing the latter's arms up and away from his pockets or hip. The reporter, who chanced to be directly behind Wendt, ran his hands over the hips, legs and about the waist of the passenger.

He was not armed.

Wendt, still hugging the passenger tightly, asked him his name. The passenger was white. He gasped for breath, then managed to utter the name, "Elliott." Given opportunity then to examine the man the investigators discovered that he was sparer than the man sought, and that his eyes were not the light blue of the killer of Lingle.

The reporter reached up and pulled off the passenger's hat.

It's All a Mistake.

Dismay showed in the faces of the men who had come to take the killer of Lingle. The killer of Lingle was a striking blonde. This could never be he. What terrible mistake had occurred!

"What is your berth number," some one asked.

"Lower 10," gasped Elliott.

The baggage porter had taken him to the wrong space.

"Whew!" he uttered. "You certainly gave me a fearful scare." And he seated himself in Number 10. Joyner joined him there, and in a few moments the two were engaged in casual conversation, the aim being to give the real occupant of Number 8 the impression that Joyner and Elliott were traveling together.

TRAP IS SET AGAIN

Wendt sat down in No. 6, directly behind No. 8, and buried his head behind a newspaper. The reporter sat in No. 7, across from No. 8, and was studying a time-table.

The captain resumed his position at the rear of the car.

It was then 5:45. A few minutes more and another "red cap" entered, heavily laden down with two traveling bags, a hat case, and two paper bound packages. He made directly for No. 8 and piled the baggage in the space. Behind him walked a man wearing a light grey felt hat and a light gray overcoat. He had gray hair.

As the porter was settling the baggage in the space, the man said:

"Just set that in there. There will be some other people here in a moment."

New Fears Assail Watchers.

Then he glanced about him, and it seemed to at least one of the watchers that he stared with more than ordinary curiosity at the men seated in positions surrounding the berth. Then he left the car.

New fears assailed the watchful waiters. Had Brothers sent in a pal to "case" the place, to look it over carefully before he dared to come in himself? If so, would a report on the presence of these men keep Brothers from entering? The hatbox indicated that a woman was coming with Brothers. That would complicate matters somewhat.

Each minute now became an hour. Why didn't he come? Then footsteps at the entrance of the car. Several people were entering. One sat down in lower 2. Two kept on until they came to No. 8, and there they sat down. A casual glance directed toward them revealed one a white haired man, probably past 60, with a most benevolent face. The other was a little elderly lady, undoubtedly his wife.

It was agreed that when Brothers was in custody he would be taken by a secret exit from the station train shed to the waiting cars at Van Buren and Canal streets, and from there to a secret headquarters maintained by the staff.

Mistake in Berth Number?

Here was a fresh crop of doubts. Was the information wrong? Had there been a mistake in the berth number? Another minute and another went by, and suddenly they had become precious where before they had dragged.

One of the men hastened to the Pullman conductor and asked to be shown the space schedules. He glanced at the schedule for car number 26 and then hurried back to report to the other men in the car that the elderly couple had upper 8, and that lower 8 was still held under the name of Bader.

Three minutes to 6! Why didn't he come? Had he witnessed the experience of Elliott by some chance, and made away?

Two minutes. One minute. The men conferred a moment and it was decided to ride to Western avenue if Brothers didn't show up.

Train Starts Out of Station.

"Board!" came the trainmen's calls in stentorian drawls. Lederer ran up to say that apparently Brothers had never called for his tickets. He promised to meet the others at Western avenue, reporting first to Roche and Rathbun in their automobile.

To these that last hour of waiting was an age. Waiting, waiting, waiting, with no idea of what was happening in the station nearby. This was the culmination of their six months of effort, and what was it to bring?

The train, without a jerk, began to ease out of the station. Doors were slammed by the porters. Lederer went quickly to the expedition leaders and reported his lack of news. Rathbun and Roche cursed the fates and dejectedly they returned to their office while Lederer drove to the Western avenue station.

Begin Search Through Train.

Aboard the Southwest Limited the four men had decided to search the entire train, on the chance that Brothers had come aboard, but had decided not to go to his seat. They moved first toward the front of the train, scanning every head as they passed along.

They saw no one resembling Brothers' description. At the head of the front car the men decided to retrace their steps, and they went back through the cars, more slowly this time, and giving every passenger a searching glance. No Brothers.

Back to car number 26 and there was but one hope left. He might be in the observation car. But he wasn't, as a search revealed.

No Luck at Western Avenue.

The train was pulling to a stop at Western avenue station. It was arranged so only two entrances to the train were opened, thus permitting the men to be posted at each entrance to scan the new passengers boarding the train there. Again no Brothers.

The men, with sour words, entered the dinky station at Western avenue and one summoned the courage to call the office. Rathbun answered.

"What happened?" he demanded. The explanation of what happened was made, and he directed that an investigation be made at once on other trains to determine whether reservations had been made in the name of Bader.

There is only one train daily going directly to Excelsior Springs at this time of year, but several trains on other roads connect with bus routes going to the springs.

Tickets Not Called For.

Kilburg, who had gone along on the train, was requested to learn from the other railroads whether any reservations had been made. He made the inquiries and reported there were no other reservations under Bader's name. He also established definitely, by calling the downtown terminal, that Brothers had never called for his tickets.

This information was relayed to Rathbun and he directed that all hands should return to the Temple building.

Here there was an overabundance of gloom and several headaches. The men had no appetite for food, but at last they straggled out to dinner, all but Roche and the captain.

It had been of some encouragement to know that Brothers had never called for his tickets. It was argued that if he had entered the train shed at the time of the Elliott incident he would already have picked up his tickets. Therefore it seemed established that this had not kept Brothers away. The belief was general that Brothers had missed the train, or he had changed his mind about going by that route, or that he was not going at all.

A Phone Call to Roche.

If this were true there was assurance that no harm had been done and that Brothers was still unaware of his being the object of search.

While the others were at dinner Roche received a telephone message giving him the information that Brothers had been unaware that he was scheduled to go to Excelsior Springs; that the plans had been made for him by others, who had also made the reservations, and that he had not been found to be notified that he was to go by that train.

Roche also learned that Brothers probably would be at his apartment some time that night.

The information already in the hands of the staff showed that Brothers had maintained quarters in the Riviera apartments, 4900 Blackstone avenue, and in the Lake Crest Drive apartments, 4827 Lake Park avenue. These were within a block of each other, and which he might occupy that night was a problem. It was conceded as foolish to send investigators out to make inquiries of the hotel staffs, because of the chance that Brothers would learn of it and be gone.

OBTAIN A FRESH CLEW

It was at this stage that the astonishing stroke of fate, the one chance in a million, too unreal for fiction, for even a Van Dine murder clew, came to pass. It was born in the ingenious mind of Roche.

He and the captain had gone to dinner, and upon their return Roche sat beside his desk, slouched down in the chair, his feet perched upon the desk. As he sat there, pulling on the black stogy in his mouth he seemed not to be joining in the general discussion. Suddenly, but without changing his position, he interrupted a speaker.

"Sam," he said, "hand me that telephone book, will you? It seems to me I know a girl who worked for me in the federal building several years ago who lives near that number on Lake Park avenue."

Roche Finds the Girl.

The address was 4827 Lake Park avenue.

Roche called Miss Huebsch's number, had her on the wire, and asked her to come at once to the Temple building. This was at about 8 o'clock.

Within a half hour Miss Huebsch was in the office. She is a quiet young woman, dark haired, and gives the impression of confidence and courage and competence. The impression became a certainty before the night was out.

For several years, while Roche was the ace of the special intelligence unit of the department of internal revenue at the federal building, Miss Huebsch served as his secretary. When Roche left the government service three years ago to become chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, Miss Huebsch remained in the federal service and she is still there.

She Describes Apartments.

She gave to Rathbun and Roche a detailed description of the Lake Crest Drive Apartments building. It is a five story modern structure, in which there are some 75 furnished apartments, mostly of the one room kitchenette type. There is a canopy stretched over the sidewalk leading in from Lake Park avenue and just inside the outer door is a small corridor.

Here is the directory of the residents of the building with a pushbutton beside each name. A house telephone is set on the wall from which the visitor may explain his identity to the building occupants.

An electric release, operated from any of the apartments, permits the inner door to be pushed open. Inside is a lobby with the office of the building off in a corner. The elevator, of the self-operating type, is directly ahead of the door.

On the Upper Floors.

On the upper floors the elevator door opens on a long corridor, extending the depth of the building, and on either side of the corridor are the doors to the apartments.

Outside, the building is flanked on the north by another apartment building with a court between some twenty feet wide and on the south is a large residence on a spacious lot. The rear stairway of the Lake Crest Drive Apartments is inclosed within the building and the doorway at the bottom, opening on the court to the north, has a spring lock permitting it to be opened from the inside but not from the outside.

Miss Huebsch explained the telephone system in the building. Some of the tenants, including herself, have private telephones in their apartments. Others have no direct telephone service. However, there is a house telephone system, of which the communicating telephone at the outer door is a part. In the clerk's office is a public telephone and there is also a switchboard connecting with the house system but the two services cannot be joined.

How the Phones Work.

Explained more simply, if some one on the outside desires to speak on the telephone with a resident of the hotel who does not have a private telephone he calls the office number of the hotel.

The clerk answers and when inquiry is made for the resident the clerk lays down the telephone, pushes the buzzer for the resident's house phone, and informs the resident there is a call for him on the office wire. The resident then comes to the office to take the call or he receives the message and calls back later.

Roche had already discovered that Brothers, living there under the name of Bader, had no private telephone in his apartment and that persons calling him were accustomed to giving their messages for Bader to the clerk. As it turned out, this circumstance proved of great importance in effecting the capture.

MISS HUEBSCH ON JOB

Miss Huebsch then was asked to return to her apartment, noting as she entered the outer corridor whether the name of Bader appeared on the directory, and, if it did, to obtain the number of his apartment.

At 10 o'clock Miss Huebsch telephoned to Roche, and, scarcely able to restrain her excitement, she told Roche that the man called Bader occupied apartment number 410.

Miss Huebsch's apartment was 411. The two apartments are directly opposite each other, with only a six foot hallway intervening. By opening her door a few inches Miss Huebsch could obtain a clear view of Brothers' door.

Here was a freak coincidence that a writer of the most lurid detective tales would scorn to invent because of its gross improbability. The fates were uncommon kind this night.

Girl Sees the Suspect.

"Watch the door closely and let me know if you see or hear anything," Roche told Miss Huebsch.

Within ten minutes Miss Huebsch was back on the line.

"I had my door standing open," she said, "and I sat beside a floor lamp, reading a magazine. Then I heard the door of the elevator slam, and footsteps sounded in the hall. I looked up, just in time to see a man pass and stop before apartment 410. He pulled out his keys and entered."

"What did he look like?" Roche asked.

"Well, he was blond, and he had eyes, blue eyes, that seemed piercing and dangerous to me. He looked to me like a bad man. His nose was straight. He was fairly tall and well built."

This was just a glance, but to Roche and to the others when he retold Miss Huebsch's description it was enough. It was a description of Brothers, and, more, it was a description of the man who killed Lingle.

PLAN QUICKLY LAID

A brief colloquy ensued, and it was brief because all were of one mind.

Brothers should be taken that night in his apartment. The plan was quickly made. Roche chose Wendt, Joyner, and Lederer to accompany him to Miss Huebsch's apartment. Rathbun and THE TRIBUNE men were to take posts at the front and rear of the building and beneath Brothers' window.

Once in the apartment Roche would have Miss Huebsch call the telephone number of the apartment building. She would ask the clerk to call Bader. The clerk would ring Bader's house phone and notify him there was a call in the lobby. He would leave his apartment to go to the lobby and as he left the door he would be seized.

If he instructed the clerk to take the message, Miss Huebsch was to give the name of an intimate associate of Brothers.

Four Go to Apartment.

Roche, Joyner and Wendt were taken by Lederer directly to the apartment building and they entered in pairs, going to Miss Huebsch's apartment. Rathbun and the others left the office a few moments later in a taxicab, instructing the driver to go to Lake Park avenue and 47th street.

A heavy snow was falling and it was turning colder.

The cab drove up to the corner and the three men alighted, paid off the driver, and entered a drug store. They sat at the soda fountain and ordered drinks. They were killing time to permit Roche, in the apartment, to perfect any loose detail of the plan.

At last Rathbun went to the telephone booth and called the Huebsch apartment. He rejoined the others in a moment and said for them to wait, that he was going to the apartment. The two left behind wandered about the drug store.

Rathbun Tells the Program.

The hour was now 11 o'clock. Rathbun returned, beckoned to the others to leave with him, and the three crossed to another drug store on the other side of the street.

"I am going to call Roche now," he said. "Exactly ten minutes after I call him Miss Huebsch will put in the call for Bader. We are to take our posts outside the building."

Rathbun entered the store, made the call to Roche, rejoined his companions, and with them started slowly toward the Lake Crest Drive apartments. As they trudged through the snow Rathbun explained the posts they were to take.

One would be at the rear, by the doorway leading from the back stairs to the outside. Another would cover the front door. The third was to keep a watch on Brothers' window. Miss Huebsch's apartment window faced on the south, Brothers' faced on the north. They were almost exactly in the center of the building.

REACH BROTHERS' HOTEL

Arriving at the building, the three men first entered the courtway together. Brothers' apartment windows were easily located. Bright lights burned in the combination living and sleeping room, and also in the adjoining bathroom.

One of the men climbed stealthily up the stairway of the adjoining apartment building, hoping to peer into Brothers' windows. The living room windows were covered completely with heavy curtains. The bathroom window was frosted.

By this time the zero hour was at hand. The three men discussed what posts they would assume, and then took them. The man at the rear stood on the threshold of the locked door. The one watching Brothers' window stood in the shadows, his back to the wall of the other building.

The chance, admittedly a rare chance, that Brothers had secreted a rope in his apartment, with which to lower himself if danger showed, had been considered and was guarded against.

Keeps Watch as Cars Pass.

The third man walked slowly up and down the sidewalk outside. Cars were passing—street cars, automobiles, taxicabs—and occasional pedestrians went by. With an eye always on the doorway of the Lake Crest Drive apartments, the front watch kept a slow pace, retracing his steps time and again until it seemed he was wearing a track in the snow.

There followed weary minutes of waiting. Somewhere far off a clock boomed, its hammer striking against a massive chime, slowly, in heavy dull tones sounding the hour. Midnight.

A few minutes later Miss Huebsch appeared.

Phone Calls Stopped.

"We called the apartment building office," she said. "They told me that the call service was discontinued at 11 o'clock at night, and that they would be unable to call Mr. Bader to the telephone. I asked the girl to ring his buzzer, but she said she couldn't do it.

"The men are still in my apartment trying to decide whether to break in on Bader, or to wait until he comes out in the morning."

There was little need now for front and rear guards, and the men left outside stood together in the shadows until they grew impatient. Then they climbed the rear stairways to the fourth floor and to apartment 411, Miss Huebsch's home.

The door was standing a few inches ajar, but it was dark inside and no sound came forth. Venturing a few short steps toward the closed doorway of apartment 410, one of the watchers listened for a guarded moment. Silence.

THEY ENTER APARTMENT.

Moving stealthily into the Huebsch apartment the two men were silently greeted by its occupants. These were sprawled all over the tiny apartment, in which the living room was perhaps 12 by 15 feet. On the west wall was a closet, in which the in-a-dor bed stood on its rollers, and a wide cabinet, in which stood the kitchenette, composed of a pantry, a stove, a sink, and an ice box, all built on midget dimensions.

At the right of the cabinet, next to the ice box, was a narrow door, 10 inches wide and the same height as the regular apartment door. This opened on the corridor, and was used by the janitor for removing refuse, but this night it served a different purpose.

Guard Posted at Door.

For it was through a crack between this door and its sill, when the door was opened 2 or 3 inches, that a full view could be obtained of Brothers' apartment door. A guard was posted in the kitchenette, his eye fixed constantly on that narrow slit through which a glimpse was had of that most important doorway across the hall.

On the east side of the Huebsch apartment was a small dressing room, in which a wardrobe had been built. Miss Huebsch's telephone hung on the wall, and with the dressing room door closed there was no chance that any one outside the apartment could hear the conversation.

Next to the dressing room was the bath. The windows of the bathroom and the living room faced to the south.

This was the apartment, and it was a counterpart of the Brothers apartment.

Wait in Darkened Flat.

With all the lights of the apartment darkened, only a faint glimmer from the far off street lights saved the rooms from utter blackness. One man was stretched out on the floor at full length, wooing momentary sleep. Another one partly reclined in an easy chair by a window. Two sat upright on wooden chairs. The fifth man was crouched in the kitchenette, his gaze a steadfast one on the center of the doorway. The light in the corridor shone dimly on him, and while this light was not enough to permit passersby in the hall to see the man out, he was clearly visible to the men watching him from the inside.

Miss Huebsch was moving about the apartment. Always silent, perfectly composed, she sought to bring comfort to the men who had invaded her home. A pillow beneath this man's head, a headache tablet for another, a cigaret, a match and an ash tray for a third.

Miss Huebsch Stands Fast.

Roche urged the young woman to go elsewhere for the night. She would have none of it; she wanted to remain.

"This is my home; I'm going to stay," she said, and nothing could move her to seek a safer spot. She was ready for any test, and sometimes went into the corridor to hear Brothers' door and to listen there. She could do this, as a resident of the building, without arousing suspicion if she were seen.

The decision had been made that the vigil would be kept until Brothers came out of his apartment. Several arguments against storming the door were voiced, and they prevailed.

The one thought uppermost in the minds of Rathbun and Roche was that Brothers should be taken alive. If Lingle's presumed slayer were killed in the taking, the buzz of the gossip mills would be multiplied, it was argued, and it was also believed that the tale spinners would go about saying that in order to hush warning tongues the investigators were fastening the crime of Lingle's murder on a dead man unable to speak in his defense.

Brothers must be taken alive, Roche and Rathbun were agreed. They knew their quarry as a desperate man, as a hired killer, a wanted murderer. They had heard of his boasts never to be taken alive.

Fear Suicide of Quarry.

To smash a fist heavily on Brothers' door, calling simultaneously, "Police officers! Open up!" would have been the simple, routine police method. But it was believed certain that were this done Brothers would shoot, keeping his vow, reserving the last bullet if he had to spend it, for his own head.

There were other reasons for avoiding a gun battle. One shot would have summoned excited residents of the building and policemen from the district. This would have destroyed the investigators' hopes of questioning Brothers privately and of carrying out the secret inquiry forging the other links in the chain of evidence which had first given them Brothers.

All of those huddled so closely together in the little apartment were of one mind: to wait. They had waited six and a half months for this night; why bother about a few sleepless hours now?

Seven men and a woman forced to sit in silent darkness for who knew how long?

TAKE TURNS ON GUARD

The duty of lookout was going the rounds of the men. A system of signals by which the men in the front room could be warned of Brothers' door opening had been devised. When the door opened the lookout was to raise up his open hand, holding it aloft until Brothers had entered the corridor and had closed the door behind him. Then the hand would be dropped.

This signal was to be followed by a rush through the apartment door, and it was hoped that the warning which this noise would give Brothers would be too late to permit him to prepare for fight or flight.

Hear Plan for Trip.

A message was relayed to Roche that Brothers was planning to take a 6 o'clock train that same evening for Excelsior Springs. There was no such train, but there was no knowing that Brothers didn't believe there was.

It was twenty minutes to 1. If Brothers was planning to take a 6 o'clock train he would be leaving around 5 o'clock. A little more than two hours.

One of the watchers went out to procure food. When he returned he reported definite proof that some one, if not Brothers, was behind that door across the hall.

"I looked up at his windows as we went out," he declared. "The light in the bathroom is out! The light in the living room is dimmed now, as though the white center light had been put out, leaving only the soft glow of a shaded lamp."

But what man of untroubled conscience sleeps with lights agleam? The men fell to speculating what visions haunted Brothers' dreams. What shades came to hover by his bed, and to accuse? Was one of them Lingle's? Brothers was afraid of the dark.

THE SNORING EPISODE

One man's eyes grew leaden, and he stretched out on the floor. He was sound asleep in an instant, and then a rasping snore broke the silence. Roche went to the bathroom and returned with a washrag, soaking wet. He walked over to the sleeping man and laid the sopping thing across his face. The dozer awoke and hurled the wet rag violently at a man on the davenport. His aim was wild, and with a squish the cloth struck against the center of the papered wall. Then it dropped, tilting a picture in its fall. Miss Huebsch, ever uncomplaining, straightened the picture and picked up the washcloth.

Rathbun by now had succumbed to the spell of sleep and, hoping to be safe from tomfoolery, he had curled up in a corner of the little dressing room.

A Surplus of Covers.

Roche glanced at him and then got up, picked an overcoat from a hook in the dressing room and laid it compassionately over the sleeping lawyer. It was chilly and drafty in the apartment now, and a cover for the sleeper would ward off a cold. Then Roche brought another overcoat and spread it gently over Rathbun. And then he brought another and another, until the prosecutor was sweating under seven overcoats, and about to smother.

Dawn Begins to Appear.

The lights above the eastern horizon, harbingers of day, were a bit brighter now. It was 5 o'clock. The captain went outside again and in a half hour returned to say that the lights in Brothers' apartment were now burning brightly.

The suspect was up! The eyes of the lookout peered ever the sharper toward that never moving door across the hall.

It was irritating to the watchers to believe that the man they had sought for so long was almost within arm's reach and still beyond their immediate grasp. More than once during that long night came proposals to crash in the door and have it over with.

And when the sun was up, flooding through the windows of the apartment, the desires for action were almost as potent as the desires for sleep. Seven hours already in that little place, and who knew how many more hours before the zero hour would strike.

Sets 10 o'Clock as Hour.

Nine o'clock dragged around and the suggestion was made to Roche that Brothers be lured from his room by the same plan which had been frustrated the night before. If the building office were called on the telephone now, the clerk would answer, he would ring Brothers' house phone, give him the message, and Brothers would come out.

"All right," said Roche. "We'll do it if he doesn't come out by 10 o'clock. It's too early now for hoodlums to be up and about and calling other hoodlums on the telephone. Ten o'clock."

With the time limit thus set, the last hour of waiting was not so long. At 10 o'clock all hands were in the apartment, with Miss Huebsch ready at the telephone, Roche, Wendt and Joyner at the door, the reporter at the lookout spot, and the others alert for action.

The muffled sound of Miss Huebsch putting through the call could be heard through the door. Later she repeated the entire conversation.

"Kenwood 8675," she called. The connection was made, and the clerk answered.

"Lake Crest Drive apartments," he said.

"Mr. Bader, please."

"Just a minute."

A Five Minute Wait.

The lookout heard the buzzer ringing in Bader's apartment, and then heard a man's voice, but could not distinguish it. The clerk came back on the line to Miss Huebsch.

"Mr. Bader says to take the message."

"Please ask him to call ——"

"Just a minute . . . Mr. Bader says he will call back in five minutes."

Five minutes and that door across the hall, watched so steadily now for seven hours, would open.

Roche stood at the door, his hand on the knob already turned so that the door could be pulled open in a single movement. Behind him, crouched like a runner, features tense, was Wendt, and beside Wendt was the solid Joyner.

A Click; the Door Opens.

A click across the way. The lookout stiffened, but his hand did not rise. A latch was pulled. Then slowly that door moved back, noiselessly.

The lookout's hand went up.

A man stood behind the threshold, looking out. His gaze fell on that small pantry door across the hall, opened three inches.

Those inside, panting to be out through the door which held them, wondered at the delay.

Then the man stepped over the threshold and he swung the door shut behind him.

THE CAPTURE

Brothers had taken no more than four steps down the hall, and the three detectives were already upon him before he could have realized what had happened.

Stopping dead, Brothers shot up his two hands, high above his head. Roche had him pinioned in an instant and Wendt and Joyner deftly "fanned" the prisoner. He carried no weapon.

Brothers was white-faced, but his mien expressed shock rather than fear. He was a blond. Here was a man of athletic build, fairly tall, a straight nose, blue eyes.

His blond hair, waving high as though a dry comb had been hastily run through bed rumpled locks, brought confidence and satisfaction to the men who had run down so many suspects, only to find most of them with dark hair.

Back to His Own Room.

He stood there clad in a white shirt, open at the neck; a pair of gray trousers, and a pair of black shoes. He must have been eager for the call, for he had disdained to bother with socks, tie, and coat.

"Where is your key?" Wendt whispered to Brothers.

"In my pants pocket," the prisoner whispered back. He seemed as willing as his captors were eager to preserve silence and prevent the building occupants from being aroused.

A tug in the prisoner's pocket brought forth the key, and he was hustled into the apartment he had just quitted. Less than a minute had been consumed in effecting the capture, and not a soul beyond the actors in the scene had been aroused.

The door was shut, and while Roche asked Brothers brief questions, every drawer, every nook and crevice in the apartment was carefully searched by the others.

Wendt, prying through a heavy suitcase found in the dressing room, pulled out an army automatic, .45 caliber and fully loaded, cocked ready for use.

Letters, papers, pictures and all other possible evidence in the room was piled, without examination, into the suitcase. Two suits of clothing and a full supply of linen were laid in the bag, and Brothers' toilet articles went in also.

Nothing was left in disorder, and when at last the room was quitted any of Brothers' pals might have entered and they could have gained no impression further than that he had packed up for a trip and left.

Questioning Begins.

"What is your name?" Roche asked the prisoner as the latter was clothing himself for the outdoors.

"Louis V. Bader," was the reply.

"Where do you work?"

"I'm not working now."

"How long since you did work."

"Six months or more."

There was time for no more. The coats of the group were brought from Miss Huebsch's apartment, and hastily the men paid their respects to the courageous young woman. Roche and Lederer left first, by the front door, to prepare Lederer's car for the prisoner.

Joyner slipped a handcuff around Brothers' right wrist, and locked the other cuff to his own left wrist. Wendt joined with the two, and together the trio went quietly down the back stairway. They encountered no one.

Rathbun, the captain, and the reporter went casually down in the elevator and passed to the street. The prisoner already was seated in the automobile, with Joyner beside him, and Lederer and Wendt were in the front seat.

The car drove off, and Roche, Rathbun and the other two men walked to Lake Park avenue and 47th street, where they hailed a cab. Both cars were then driven, by separate routes, to the downtown hotel in which the secret headquarters of the staff had been prepared.

STORY OF THE MURDER

Alfred Lingle came to his death, as has been stated, on June 9, in the tunnel under Michigan avenue at Randolph street which leads to the suburban station of the Illinois Central railroad.

The assassin followed Lingle into the tunnel, lifted a snubnosed .38 caliber revolver to the back of the reporter's head, and fired one shot. Lingle, killed instantly, fell face forward to the floor of the tunnel, a cigar still in his mouth, a copy of a Racing Form clutched in his fingers.

Lingle had been on his way to the Washington Park race track and was hurrying to catch a train leaving at 1:30 p. m. He was walking alone.

On the street, parked beside the Chicago public library, was an automobile, and one of its occupants hailed Lingle as he passed, crying out, "Hi, Jake, play Hi Schneider in the third."

This was believed to have been a signal to the slayer by which Lingle was identified to him.

Immediately after the killing THE TRIBUNE offered a reward of $25,000, to be paid to any one furnishing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer. The Chicago Herald and Examiner posted a similar reward and the Chicago Evening Post offered a $5,000 reward on the same terms.

THE TRIBUNE editorially announced that the murder of Lingle appeared to be a challenge to law and order and THE TRIBUNE accepted the challenge.

Newspapers Join for Probe.

Immediately the work of organizing for an investigation of the murder was begun. Lingle was a member of the craft, his murder was believed to have been an assault upon newspapers generally, and the publishers of all the daily newspapers in Chicago met and passed a resolution pledging their resources, and their cooperation, in arriving at a solution of the crime.

Mr. Rathbun, a member of the law firm regularly retained by THE TRIBUNE, was selected to direct the inquiry, and State's Attorney Swanson appointed him a special assistant state's attorney, Mr. Roche, whose record in the investigation service of the government and the state's attorney had given evidence of his singular fitness for the task, was appointed to devote all his time to running down every clew to the slayer.

The first phase of the investigation uncovered circumstances in the life of Lingle which had been undreamed of by his superiors on THE TRIBUNE.

Lingle had received a salary of $65 a week, but it was no secret that he lived in a manner which his salary could not sustain. He had given his employers and associates on THE TRIBUNE to understand that he possessed an independent income inherited from relatives, and that he had profited from speculations on the stock market. No one in THE TRIBUNE organization doubted Lingle's integrity and loyalty.

However, when Mr. Rathbun, seeking a motive for the reporter's murder, began a thorough investigation of his personal affairs, it became known, through a public statement issued by Mr. Rathbun, that Lingle had received almost nothing from the meager estates he had described so extravagantly. He was found to have suffered heavy losses, instead of profits, on the stock market.

Bank Deposits $30,000 a Year.

His bank account showed he made deposits, always in currency, in amounts ranging between $500 and $5,000, and that these deposits aggregated on an average $30,000 a year. Mr. Rathbun also disclosed that Lingle had received gifts, in the form of loans, which he never repaid, from politicians, public officials and others.

Lingle's work had been that of a police news reporter. He did not write stories; he had no ability to write them. He obtained data for a news story, and gave it to other reporters who prepared the articles for publication.

Lingle had a wide acquaintance among people in all walks of life in Chicago. He knew the leaders of the underworld intimately. He knew more policemen, perhaps, than any policeman. He also mixed freely with politicians, city and county officials, and he had not a few friends who were prominent figures in the business life of the city.

Investigator of Gang Wars.

With the advent of gang wars in Chicago Lingle fell naturally into the work of obtaining inside information as to the nature of the gang disputes, and the reasons for the gang killings.

Almost since his boyhood he had known William F. Russell, who when they first met was a sergeant of police. The friendship of the two continued through the years, and when Russell rose through the ranks, finally becoming the commissioner of police, Lingle made no secret of his jubilation.

The murder of Lingle was followed by a wave of public indignation, and Commissioner Russell, whose record as a police executive had won him praise, resigned from office.

Many Rumors About Lingle.

A flood of rumors and gossip swept over the city, hinting that Lingle had been the "unofficial chief of police," and that he had bargained with gamblers and underworld bosses, selling them privilege to operate with immunity from arrest.

These tales, which were not accompanied by any proof of their veracity at the time, were broadcast by some of the newspapers of Chicago, and coupled with this came attacks by the other newspapers on the organization of the Lingle investigation.

Before long the resolution signed by all the metropolitan newspapers of Chicago, pledging cooperation in the hunt for Lingle's assassin, had been violated by most of them. Valuable clews in the possession of the investigators were ferreted out by newspaper reporters, and the other newspapers published these clews, ignoring the plea of State's Attorney Swanson that to do so would work untold injury to the inquiry.

Gangster Foster Indicted.

Despite these handicaps, the investigation went on. Clews by the hundreds were run to earth and many suspects were arrested. Frank Foster, gangster who fled from Chicago after the Lingle killing, was captured by Roche's detectives in Los Angeles, and he was brought back to Chicago after waging a strenuous battle against extradition. He was indicted as an accessory in the Lingle murder. Foster made demands for an immediate trial, but the prosecution elected to postpone the trial until the investigation which is now at a climax had progressed further. Foster, after being held in jail four months, was released on bail, and his trial is set for February.

Jack Zuta, vice and gambling lord, leader of the Zuta-Moran-Aiello gang, had been accused in grapevine information which reached the prosecution as one of the men who arranged for the murder of Lingle. Zuta was arrested; he declined to make any revelations concerning the Lingle case, and on his way from police headquarters he was set upon by gangsters who fired shots into the automobile in which Zuta, accompanied by a police lieutenant and others, was riding.

Zuta Shot to Death.

Later Zuta was found by his enemies in a summer resort near Delafield, Wis., and a gang of men, one of them wielding a machine gun, came upon Zuta watching a group of dancing vacationists. Zuta was shot to death.

Rathbun and Roche began an investigation of Zuta's affairs, hoping to reach some clew to Lingle's death. They unearthed the safety deposit boxes in which Zuta stored the evidences of his briberies and many mementoes of his alliances with politicians, and these were made public by the prosecutors.

The vagrancy law was first invoked against notorious gangsters in Chicago through the efforts of Mr. Rathbun and Investigator Roche, who preferred charges of vagrancy against two hoodlums arrested in connection with the Lingle inquiry. These were the first public enemies to be sentenced by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle.

Roche's men, in raids aimed at the breaking down of the gang rule, and particularly at the gang of Scarface Al Capone, arrested many of the most notorious members of the ganga, and paved the way for sending them back to penitentiaries.

During all this activity the primary purpose of the Rathbun-Roche forces was to find the murderer of Lingle, and to disclose those who had aided him, and their motive for desiring Lingle's death.

LIST THE INVESTIGATORS

Among the personalities in the Lingle case who were active in the work which paved the way toward the capture of Leo Brothers, and who took part in the capture itself, are some individuals deserving of special mention.

The names of Charles F. Rathbun, special assistant state's attorney, and of Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, the two leaders of the investigation are well known.

James E. McShane, criminal attorney, appointed a special prosecutor to assist Mr. Rathbun, has also figured publicly in connection with the inquiry.

Another man who has figured importantly in the conferences over vital angles of the Lingle case, and who has served actively in many phases of the inquiry, including the capture of Brothers, has heretofore never been given public recognition.

A Business Man Detective.

He is Samuel Lederer. Mr. Lederer is a business man, independently wealthy, the secretary and treasurer of Jac Lederer, Inc., manufacturers of store equipment. He lives at the Park Lane hotel.

Mr. Lederer has a penchant for detective work and more than that, an ability for it. Some years ago—and not so many, for Lederer is only 34 years old—he took ill of overwork. He did not improve and cast about for a hobby, finding it in police work.

The Lederer home at that time was in Winnetka, and Chief of Police W. M. Peterson of that village had been one of his dearest friends. So Lederer went with the Winnetka police on many sorts of police duties, and eventually he was given the honorary title of assistant chief of police.

Lederer came into contact with Roche, and made a fast friend of him also, accompanying the state's attorney's men on raids, arrests and in taking part in investigations, all this without compensation.

Speaks Eight Languages.

At the outset of the Lingle investigation, Lederer became a confidant of Roche and Rathbun, joining with them in the work that has been done, giving help when it was needed and asking nothing more than the privilege of being one of them.

Sam is a Jew who speaks eight languages, mimics successfully even the brogue of the Irish—all of which increases his usefulness at many times.

Mr. Lederer is an authority on firearms, and his private collection of weapons is rated among the most complete in the city. He is an ardent huntsman of game as well as of criminals.

Of the men who did the actual work of investigation, under the direction of Mr. Roche, two are special investigators. They are Walter Wendt and Leonard Nevans, and it was largely due to their tireless efforts, all of a dangerous and highly confidential character, that the capture of Brothers was made possible.

The other investigators on the Brothers angle of the Lingle case are detectives selected by Mr. Roche from the Chicago police department, and assigned to work for the state's attorney's office under his direction.

Police Win High Praise.

These men are Fred Joyner, a veteran policeman who is proud that he is a copper and who has an enviable record for devotion to duty and for honesty; John Greer, a fearless officer who has been Mr. Roche's driver; David Levin and Julius Slegan, a pair of the biggest and most courageous officers on the staff; Michael Casey and Louis Capparelli, two "partners" whose capability and integrity has often been demonstrated, and Arthur Seyferlich. George "Doc" Williams, one of the investigators on the Roche staff, also served energetically and faithfully on the Lingle inquiry.

During the many weeks of the investigation, all of these investigators worked at all hours of the day and night, enduring many long stretches without sleep. They held steadfastly to themselves the secrets of the investigation, spurning the offers of certain newspapermen who sought to buy the information they possessed, the publication of which would have been so ruinous to the inquiry.

The investigation prosecuted in New York was aided greatly by the work of Capt. William McVeigh and Inspector Michael McNamara of the New York police department.

Several undercover men, working directly under Rathbun and Roche, obtained information of paramount importance, but so that they may remain useful in their confidential duties, their identities are not to be revealed.

IDENTIFIED AS LINGLE SLAYER

LEO BROTHERS.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Killer a Chicago Stranger, Fugitive from Old Crime

Leo V. Brothers, held as the murderer of Lingle, is 31 years old. He was born on April 14, 1899, in Belleville, Ill.

When he was still a child his parents, Harvey and Rose Brothers, moved to St. Louis, and there his parents separated and were divorced.

Brothers has almost no recollection of his father, who was a barber. His mother, now the wife of Robert Jessen, lives at Webster Groves, Mo.

Leaving the public schools in St. Louis at the seventh grade, Brothers took one job and another, messenger boy, window trimmer, taxi driver, and other trades.

Joined Navy in 1917.

In 1917 he joined the navy, enlisting from St. Louis. He was sent to the training station at Great Lakes, Ill., and after two or three months' training he went to New London, Conn. He was assigned to a submarine chaser, and served aboard it until two years later, in 1919, when he was discharged honorably.

He returned to St. Louis then and lived with his mother and sister. In the middle part of 1928 his mother remarried, his sister also married, and Brothers then went to live in a rooming house, staying there until July, 1929.

On about July 15, 1929, on the King's highway and Delmer boulevard, St. Louis, John De Blazo, 25 years old and a driver of what in St. Louis is called a "service car," was shot to death.

Battles with Drivers Frequent.

A "service car" in St. Louis is a privately owned automobile used in taxicab service. The drivers of the taxicabs and service cars in St. Louis had been unionized, but battles between various factions of the business were frequent, and sluggers were employed.

Brothers was one of these "heavy men." On the day of De Blazo's death the victim had been cruising about the neighborhood of his murder. Brothers stood on the corner of the King's highway and Delmer boulevard, and when De Blazo rode past a series of shots rang out, and De Blazo slumped down in his driver's seat, dead.

Brothers was named by witnesses as the slayer. He fled from St. Louis, taking a motor bus to Chicago, and ever since he has been a fugitive from the St. Louis murder charge.

Tells Conflicting Stories.

The prisoner told several conflicting stories concerning the St. Louis crime. At first he denied altogether that he had ever been in that city, but later he admitted that he was being sought for the De Blazo murder.

He stated that arrangements had been made by officials of his union for the blame for the murder to be shifted upon a man who has since died, and who was also a member of the union. This dead man's brother had agreed to testify that his brother had committed the crime, Brothers asserted.

At other times Brothers claimed he shot De Blazo in self-defense. Again he would deny that he shot him at all, and would claim that some one, after killing the man, had placed the revolver used in the slaying in his own hand. He declared that De Blazo had threatened to kill him, and that De Blazo had stood upon a street corner earlier in the day, twirling a revolver about his index finger.

Admits Two Robberies.

Two robberies were admitted by Brothers. He said that in the latter part of 1927 he held up the Arco cafeteria, 400 North Broadway, St. Louis, obtaining $500. In July or August of 1928, Brothers admitted, he held up a man in an automobile at Grand and Bell streets, St. Louis, taking the automobile. The complainants in these cases were "induced" not to appear, Brothers said.

He was also accused, Brothers said, of hurling a stench bomb into the plant of the Paris Cleaners and Dyers, St. Louis, at about May, 1929.

On numerous other occasions, the prisoner admitted, he had been arrested on suspicion. According to St. Louis police records Brothers has been arrested more than 60 times, but never convicted of any crime.

Since coming to Chicago, Brothers acknowledged, he has done no lawful work of any kind. He said he had been provided with recommendations to Thomas Malloy, business agent for the Moving Picture Operators' union, and that he had connected with Malloy, but had been given no jobs.

Spent Time Playing Golf.

Most of his time in the past summer, said Brothers, has been spent in playing golf. He played at many south side public fee courses, including Jackson park, Marquette, Coghill, Evergreen, Indian Ridge and Turkey Creek. He frequently played the races, laying his bets with bookmakers making their headquarters on the south side.

Questioned as to how he maintained himself during the sixteen months he has been in Chicago, Brothers replied that he received $25 a week from the secretary of his union in St. Louis. He paid $12 a week for the apartment he held at the Lake Crest Drive apartments, was well dressed, and gave other evidences that he had a much more substantial income.

The results of questioning Brothers on the Lingle murder, and on his associates in that and other crimes, will not be disclosed at this time, the officials stated.

HIGH POINTS OF THE LINGLE CASE

June 9, 1930.—Alfred Lingle is murdered by a tall, blond gunman, who escapes. THE TRIBUNE offers a $25,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the killer.

June 12.—Charles F. Rathbun, member of the law firm regularly retained by THE TRIBUNE is appointed a special assistant state's attorney, and with Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, is placed in charge of the Lingle investigation.

June 16.—Police Commissioner Russell resigns and Chief of Detectives Stege is demoted as a result of the Lingle murder.

July 1.—Frank Foster, gunman, is arrested by Roche's detectives in Los Angeles, is indicted and charged with being an accessory to the killing of Lingle.

Sept. 14.—Theodore Geisking, Indiana gangster sought for months by Rathbun and Roche, is captured in Louisville, Ky.

Sept. 17.—Witnesses to the killing of Lingle declare Geisking is not the killer of Lingle.

Oct. 3.—Frank Bell, awaiting trial for murder, tells a coroner's jury that he drove the murderers of Lingle to the scene in an automobile, and he accuses Joseph Traum, Indiana gang leader, and Richard Sullivan, as accomplices. Rathbun and Roche declare their disbelief in Bell's "confession."

Oct. 19.—Bell and Sullivan are found guilty of the murder of Christ Patras, restaurant manager, and are sentenced to death.

Dec. 21.—Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman, is captured and is identified by witness after witness as the killer of Lingle.

Jan. 7.—Rathbun and Roche disclose the capture of Brothers.

TRIBUNE REPORTER GIVES ALL HIS TIME TO HUNT FOR KILLER

Within five minutes of the time that Alfred Lingle, a reporter for THE TRIBUNE, was slain on June 9, 1930, John Boettiger, another reporter for this newspaper, was assigned to the case. From that day to this he had no other assignment. No other duties were allowed to interfere. From one dawn to the next it was his duty, his only task, to keep in precise touch with every development in the case.

For almost exactly seven months he sacrificed what is known to newspaper men as their "day off," he spent the time that otherwise would have been leisure hours, he devoted his days and his nights to the one cause—the solution of the mystery of who killed Lingle.

In the meantime there were other TRIBUNE reporters named to aid in the inquiry. One man spent four months entirely given to the one subject. Several others spent weeks on this or that angle; many followed one or more of the many clews discovered during the long hunt.

In the more than half a year that the pursuit continued incessantly not a single bit of information, even one recognized as false, was ignored. Throughout all that process John Boettiger was on the job.

Rope Breaks First Time; He Tries Again and Dies

"FLYING WIDOW" HOPS TO BERMUDA ON WAY TO PARIS

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The white monoplane Tradewind, washed by rain that was driven before a strong northwest wind, sped down out of gray skies to safe landing in Hamilton harbor this afternoon. It thus completed the first leg of a pay load flight from Norfolk, Va., to Paris.

Its motor roared again almost as soon as the pontoons touched the water, and its red-haired woman pilot, Mrs. Beryl Hart, drove the plane upward from the choppy seas and flew to a safer spot in front of the hangar on Hinson's island.

Mrs. Hart and her navigator, Lieut. William S. MacLaren, appearing fresh and untired after their long journey, stepped into a waiting motor boat and proceeded to a hotel, where they were greeted by a large crowd that had scanned the skies for their arrival.

Slight Trouble With Oil.

The landing was made at 1:55 p. m [1:55 a. m. Chicago time], 6 hours and 55 minutes after the takeoff from Hampton Roads.

Slight oil trouble developed during the flight, which is to be continued by way of the Azores as soon as repairs are made, but it was insufficient to hamper the functioning of the motor. The side of the plane was spattered with oil, and mechanics tonight prepared to locate the cause of the leak.

Shortly after the plane climbed into the sky and pointed eastward at Hampton Roads at daybreak this morning, MacLaren said bumpy winds were encountered, and occasional rains occurred.

The skies were cloudy and during most of the trip the ship kept close to the sea that heaved in mountainous swells before the strong wind.

Mrs. Hart Does the Piloting.

Mrs. Hart held the controls most of the way with MacLaren navigating, which he found extremely difficult on account of the poor visibility.

Excited over their safe arrival after their disappointment Saturday, when the two flyers were forced to turn back and land in Hampton Roads because of having lost a sextant after taking off from New York, Mrs. Hart and MacLaren were eager tonight to continue to the Azores as soon as the plane is ready. The start may be tomorrow.

HUNT PAIR FOR DEFRAUDING MAN OF $$7,000 SAVINGS

Police last night were searching for two men who last Monday swindled Albert Wilkie, 65 years old, retired school engineer, of his life savings of $7,000.

Wilkie and his wife, who live at 7008 Oriole avenue, last week advertised a piece of property for sale. A man who said he was Joseph Stasick appeared and while he was there another who introduced himself as Joseph Biasmiski appeared and said he was looking for heirs to a $20,000 estate.

Stasick and Biasmiski agreed that since the heirs could not be found the money should be given to charity and persuaded Wilkie to act as distributor. They would give him the money to hold, they said, provided he would put up money of his own as evidence of good faith.

Wilkie put his $7,000 in a box which the men produced and on Tuesday he opened it and found only a few $1 bills.

Near End of Fourth Day in Air

STORM DRIVES GIRL FLYERS FAR FROM BASE

Pass 80 Hour Mark in Endurance Flight.

Imperial, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Driven 150 miles away from their base by a drenching rain, the aerial girl endurance team, Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper, arrived over the Imperial valley airport here tonight.

They were forced to break the circle in which they had flown about the Los Angeles municipal airport for 72 hours, when the storm made refueling impossible and flying dangerous at 2:30 p. m. A fully loaded refueling ship accompanied the flyers here.

Take on Fuel for Night.

Over March field, Riverside, a contact was made, but scarcely had the refueling plane landed at the army air school there and taken on more gasoline than the storm, before which the ships had fled, closed in.

The girls flew through the hazardous San Gorgonio pass and another refueling contact was made over Palm Springs, in the upper reaches of the desert, guarded from storms by high mountains.

Pass 80 Hour Mark.

With its gasoline tanks full the Lady Rolph rounded out its 80th hour in the air at 10:30 p. m., Pacific standard time, prepared to fly until morning without refueling.

But with all their troubles and the grimy tasks of oiling and fueling and piloting their ship, the day was a happy one in the narrow cabin. It was the 25th birthday of Bobbie Trout and celebration was in order.

An angel food birthday cake, baked by Miss Trout's mother, was the high spot of the celebration and a turkey dinner topped it off.

FINE PAID BY SERGT. BEGLEY; ORDER REMOVAL

Police Sergeant William Begley, who was recently found guilty of malfeasance, yesterday paid a $2,500 fine in Judge Joseph Sabath's court. The judge at the same time entered an order calling for the removal of Begley from the police department. A copy of the order was forwarded to Acting Commissioner Alcock.

Begley was charged with being involved in a blackmail plot against the late Jean Hassawer, south side cabinet maker.

DAVID DECIDES TO HEAR CANAL TRUSTEES' CASE

Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court has definitely decided to hear the so-called sanitary district fraud cases against Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district, and other officials, it became known yesterday. Preliminary motions in the case are to be heard next Monday.

It was reported yesterday that the judge will spend the remainder of this month hearing the preliminary motions and that he will then take his usual winter time vacation. When he returns he will be prepared, it is said, to proceed with the trial.

Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who is in charge of the prosecution, is reported to be prepared to file a certificate of objection to Judge David because of the necessary delay due to the contemplated vacation of the judge.

Gun He Won as Prize in Navy Sends Him to Jail

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 7.—(AP)—While Philip Scoma, 22, was in the United States navy, he won a prize for marksmanship. The prize was an automatic pistol. A city court judge today sent him to the penitentiary for 30 days because he had no permit to carry the weapon.

RANCHER HELD AS SLAYER OF TWO.

Craig, Colo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—E. J. Farmer, rancher, was held today in connection with the slaying of two men he accused of attacking him in an argument over a hay contract. The victims, Earl Hopkins and J. J. Jones, former sheriff of Moffat county, were shot to death yesterday at Farmer's place in Axil basin.

SQUATTER CLAIM TO $600,000 DUNE LAND IS UPHELD

Mrs. Carr's Heirs Win Long Battle.

Another victory came posthumously yesterday to Mrs. Drusilla Carr, pioneer of the Indiana dunelands, when Judge Albert W. Chipman, sitting in Porter county Circuit court at Valparaiso, upheld the fisherman's widow in her claim to squatter's rights over 80 acres of valuable lake shore property at Miller. Mrs. Carr, who fought her case in various courts for 23 years, died three months ago at the age of 76 years. The value of the land is estimated at $600,000.

Pitted against the widow in her last contest were attorneys for the Gary Land company, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation. The defeated litigants said they would appeal, thus bringing the case to higher courts for the 13th time.

Rules Against Land Company.

Testimony in the case was concluded last September, a few days before Mrs. Carr's death, and Judge Chipman has since had his decision under advisement. In his decree the judge held that the land company, seeking title on the basis of tax payments, obtained by those payments a mere tax lien and that Mrs. Carr's heirs retained the title in fee simple.

While awarding the heirs a clear title, the judge directed them to pay to the complainant $59,053 for sums expended to gain title by tax payments and liens. Gary realty experts appraised the 80 acres at $600,000, because the parcel adjoins the plant of the Illinois Steel company on the east and has been coveted by that concern for expansion purposes.

History of Long Battle.

In her long legal strife, Mrs. Carr won eight victories, her first foes being the heirs of two trappers, George Hitt and George Hall, who claimed their trapper ancestors had purchased the land from the Pottawatomie Indians in 1807 for a cask of rum, a pot of vermilion paint and a string of beads. These litigants were eliminated by the Indiana Supreme court some years ago.

Judge Chipman allowed the land company 75 days to perfect an appeal and schedule an appeal bond. If the Supreme court denies the appeal thirty acres of the property will go to Mrs. Carr's two sons, two daughters and three grandchildren, all of Gary. The remainder will be divided by six attorneys who supported the widow through two decades of court engagements. The attorneys are E. G. Ballard, Chicago; Henry Warrum, Indianapolis; Daniel Kelley, Valparaiso, and Lemuel Darrow, Clarence Shields and Earl Rowley, all of La Porte.

R. H. Hunter, Insurance Man, Civic Leader, Dies in Depot

Robert Henry Hunter, president of the Rollins Burdick Hunter company, an insurance concern, and vice president of the Chicago crime commission, fell dead yesterday noon in the rotunda of the La Salle Street station as he was on his way to board the Century for New York. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

Mr. Hunter was talking with John C. Griswold, a business associate, when he was stricken. Claire Hartigan, assistant general passenger agent for the New York Central railroad, was standing nearby when he fell and called a physician, but Mr. Hunter was dead before the doctor arrived. With him at the station was his daughter, Ruth, 20 years old, who was to accompany him on a business trip to London, and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Wilson Hunter, who had gone with him to the station. Mrs. Hunter collapsed and was taken to the Hunter home at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Born in Chicago in 1869.

Mr. Hunter was born in Chicago on July 29, 1869. He was educated in the Chicago public schools. As a boy he started work in a wholesale drug concern and afterward he was employed by a meat packing company. He entered the insurance business in 1899.

He had been a member of the crime commission since its organization and at the time of his death he was a director of the group as well as vice president. He also was a director of the Citizens' association of Chicago and Legislative Voters' league, and was vice president of the citizens' advisory committee of the citizens' police committee. On Tuesday he was engaged in considering the final report concerning the police department. He was a veteran member of the First Illinois infantry, now the 131st infantry.

Mr. Hunter was a member of the Knollwood, Chicago Athletic, and Forty clubs, and was a Mason.

Praised by Frank Loesch.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, said of him yesterday:

"He was a gentleman of high character, of great personal charm, and a loyal friend. His passing takes from Chicago a citizen whom it can ill afford to spare."

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

U. S. PETITIONED TO END SPENDING ON BOULDER DAM

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Delegates to the Southwest Water league, an organization representing 48 southern California cities, have sent a resolution to congress demanding action to stop further expenditures on the Boulder dam project.

The reason assigned is that congress should not authorize the use of money from national taxes for a project which will benefit Los Angeles until that city shall have strengthened and cleared up asserted illegalities in its present diversion of water from Owens valley, Cal., through the Owens valley aqueduct.

The league asserts that Los Angeles has never been able to obtain title to water obtained in Owens valley.

EX-KAISER'S KIN WAITS ON TABLES; FAMILY ANGRY

LUXEMBOURG, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Zoubkoff, the Russian dancer who married the former kaiser's late sister, has taken a job as a waiter, permitting his employer to advertise, "Here you are attended by the kaiser's brother-in-law."

This displeased persons interested in maintaining the kaiser's dignity and Zoubkoff received a visit from the Countess von Spaht, accompanied by his own mother.

The women remonstrated with him and when he remained obdurate they left after giving him the address of a "nice quiet home," where they advised him to go for a rest. Zoubkoff looked up the address and found it to be that of an insane asylum.

H. R. Arris, Veteran Printer, Dies at Earlville; Age 64

H. R. Arris, 64 years old, a veteran printer, died yesterday at Earlville, near Aurora. He had a commercial printing business at 117 North Wells street in Chicago for twenty years. In the early nineteen hundreds he was a compositor on THE TRIBUNE. He is survived by his widow and one son, Lee. The funeral will be held today at Earlville, with burial there.

SENTENCED FOR BURGLARY.

Acidity
is the Right Name for Many a Case of "Nerves"!

You may call it "nerves," restlessness, overwork or mental strain, but when you're easily agitated and can't sleep at night, it's usually Acidity!

When the stomach secretes too much acid it causes acid-indigestion, with gas, sourness, and burning. It also sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines, creating poisons which pull us down physically and mentally and make us nervous, restless and sleepless. A marvelous German development, called Magnesia Oxoids, corrects Acidity in the right way. Upon contact with the gastric juice, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus which keeps the acid in check; corrects intestinal fermentation and stimulates peristalsis or the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary, and only Magnesia Oxoids supply them because it is the only magnesia product known to science, which, when taken internally, releases oxygen in the system.

To see just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Walgreen Drug Stores, Economical Drug Stores, or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If after taking the contents of one bottle, the results don't more than amaze you, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money promptly and in full.

Here you have exact information about ONE Dentifrice

STARTLING FACTS DISCLOSED BY UNIVERSITY LABORATORY TESTS OF 10 AMERICAN TOOTH PASTES

THIS tells you some hitherto unknown facts about 10 dentifrices.

All 10 dentifrices were tested and found to be in one of the classifications following:

TWO DENTIFRICES CLEAN BUT BOTH SCRATCH ENAMEL

ONLY ONE DENTIFRICE—DR. WEST'S—CLEANS TEETH WITHOUT SCRATCHING ENAMEL

All these dentifrices were given exactly the same tests—on normal teeth. Photographs recorded first how dirty the teeth were before brushing. After brushing, photographs were made to show whether the cleansing had been thorough, or not. Finally each dentifrice was tested to determine its effect upon enamel. Microscopic lenses measured and recorded scratching or injury after brushing the teeth.

DR. WEST'S Tooth Paste, alone, cleansed teeth thoroughly, without any scratching or injury to enamel!

This delightful modern dentifrice combines cleansing with a gentle double polishing action that cannot scratch or scour enamel.

In addition, it is deliciously refreshing and cooling to the whole mouth. And gives all other good results any dentifrice can safely provide.

You'll like DR. WEST'S Tooth Paste. It is already the most sensational success in dentifrice history. All good stores have it for you: big tube, 25c; double-quantity, 40c. Most economical, as well as the best! Get some tubes today. End guesswork in caring for your teeth. Brighten teeth the sure way!

POLICE CRITICS CALLED AS JURY OPENS INQUIRY

Judge Says Sale of Jobs Is Public Knowledge.

The critics of the police department are to be given the first chance in the special grand jury investigation of police conditions in the county. The special jury was impaneled yesterday by Chief Justice McGoorty of the criminal court. That the critics would be heard first was made known when the jurors announced that the foreman of past grand juries would be called to tell what they know of alleged corruption and on what they base their charges of an alliance between police and gangland. Grand juries recently have denounced the department.

Judge McGoorty in his charge to the jurors told them not to overlook in their investigations the fact that political expediency often causes the police to turn their heads, and the accusations that promotions within the department are bought and paid for.

See Civil Service Inquiry.

The jury as a result of the instructions of the judge are expected to delve deep into the doings of the civil service commission for many months past.

The first official act of the grand jury was an order on Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock for six policemen, to be picked by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles E. Lounsbury, to work exclusively for the jury. State's Attorney Swanson and his two assistants then pledged their cooperation. The announcement was then made that the foremen of previous juries would be called to tell the new jury on what they based their accusations.

G. F. Slaughter, foreman of the September grand jury, Solomon T. Kiddoo of the October jury, J. Fred McGuire of the November jury, and R. B. Peters of the last regular jury are the men to be summoned, it was announced. Following them, it was reported, various police officials will be called in to divulge their financial conditions and tell how they have accumulated their money.

Peabody Is Excused.

Joseph A. Farmar, assistant freight traffic manager of the Chicago, Milwauke, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, was chosen foreman. Another member is R. C. Wieboldt, president of the Wieboldt Construction company. Augustus S. Peabody, millionaire president of the Citizens' association, was excused because of illness.

"The logic of events demands an investigation at this time," said the judge in his charge. "It should transcend any considerations of political expediency. It should be the supreme effort of Chicago and Cook county, through you and the state's attorney, to go to the very root of the crime situation. There is no valid reason why your combined efforts should fail. We are facing a grave situation. I regard this investigation upon which you are about to enter the most important in the history of Cook county. If public money is required, it should be forthcoming.

Says Evidence Exists.

"The evidence exists and should be forthcoming in support of the findings of preceding grand juries, of an alliance between the police department, corrupt politics and crime. This is a time and an occasion which calls for courage and determination."

"It is the withering blight of corrupt politics that has made Chicago a crime ridden city," continued the judge. "A commissioner of police, however capable and honest, cannot wholly succeed in suppressing organized crime until that menace to good government is removed.

"Evidence will be presented to you of rankling injustice to the police department in regard to promotions. It is a matter of common knowledge that for many years there has been a fixed scale of prices for advancement in the police department, according to the rank and salary of the office sought. A determined and persistent effort by you should disclose that promotions have thus been paid for and bestowed by vice lords upon those thus promoted, like feudal barons conferring titles and emoluments upon their trusted vassals.

Promotion Held Big Issue.

"The personnel of the police department, excepting the commissioner, is appointed by the Chicago civil service commission. All promotions under the classified civil service are made by that body. Your investigation in this regard should cover a sufficient period to acquaint you fully with the entire subject matter of such promotions. I regard the question of police promotions one of the most important and far reaching subjects of your investigation."

The judge, who also praised the temporary administration of Acting Commissioner Alcock, had to retire to his home because of illness after he had charged the jury. He is expected to be absent for several days at least.

Mother and Two Children Drown in Well at Home

Greenville, S. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Minnie Copeland Brookshire, 30, wife of Alex Brookshire, and her two daughters, Loreen, aged 4, and Doris Lay, aged 1, drowned this afternoon in a well at the Brookshire home, two miles from Greer.

ALCOCK ORDERS POLICE TO END ABUSE OF POWER

Bans Arrest of Innocent Citizens.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock issued a general order yesterday on the making of arrests which he believes will end abuses and protect the rights of ordinary citizens. The order does not apply to the arrest of criminals and hoodlums.

Many persons arrested for violation of city ordinances and minor misdemeanors, the order states, have been detained in police stations for hours without being permitted to communicate with friends for the purpose of obtaining bail. Police also have favored professional bondsmen rather than friends or relatives of prisoners in giving bail, said the commissioner.

Bans Indiscriminate Arrests.

"The indiscriminate arrest of persons not suspected of a crime, who are able to give a good account of themselves, and who are not guilty of any violation of any law or ordinance, will not be tolerated," Commissioner Alcock stated.

"This regulation shall not be construed to mean that professional criminals, gunmen, and hoodlums who have police records shall not be arrested and held for investigation, or that persons suspected of committing serious crimes shall not be arrested and held for investigation.

To Encourage Cash Bail.

"Members of the department must advise defendants having no criminal record that cash may be accepted as bail by an authorized police official, where such is a fact, and shall encourage, rather than discourage, the scheduling of cash as bail.

"Any person not having a criminal record who is arrested and charged with a violation of a city ordinance or a minor misdemeanor shall be permitted to communicate immediately with relatives or friends by telephone within the city for the purpose of obtaining bail."

FINED FOR BEATING WIFE.

Michael Crilly, 42 years old, 2302 West 48th street, a switchman, was fined $65 yesterday in the Stockyards court for beating his wife. He was sent to the Bridewell because he could not pay the fine.

AUTO SALESMAN MISSING; GIRL TELLS OF THREAT

Charles W. Mader, 35 years old, salesman for the Austin Motor Sales company, 43 North Laramie street, has been missing since last Friday, it was learned yesterday, and police are investigating at the instance of his employer, Reed S. Murphy, general manager of the company.

Mader, who lived with his 72 year old mother at 433 North Waller avenue, was sent to Glen Ellyn on Friday to collect a $300 draft on a bank there. He drove away in a car belonging to the company. Since then nothing has been heard from him.

A switchboard operator told the police she had accidentally overheard a telephone conversation shortly before Mader left the office in which a man threatened, "I'll get you if you don't come through with that money. I've waited long enough." Mr. Murphy said he had faith in Mader and did not believe he had absconded.

Mr. Black Is Whitewashed; It's Mrs. Black Who Pays

Sistersville, W. Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The officers were all wrong; that liquor they charged Beachy Black had in his possession wasn't his at all.

When Black was arraigned yesterday he spoke right up and said he was not guilty. Then he looked at Mrs. Black and she got up and said that her husband was right—the officers were wrong—it was her whisky.

So the court fined her $100 and costs and sentenced her to jail for 60 days.

THOUSANDS GET JOBS BACK AND ORDERS PILE UP

Road Building May Keep Giant Force Busy.

Recall 1,500 Here

The Ford Motor company announced last night that 1,500 men had been called back to work at the Hegewisch assembling plant, effective today. The order ends the shutdown which was ordered a month ago for the taking of inventory. The plant employs 2,500 men when operating at full capacity and this figure will be reached, according to the announcement, by the gradual addition of more men during the next 60 days.

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The delicate needle on the gauge of national employment shot upward today under the pressure of encouraging news.

The prospect of work for an additional 100,000 men was announced at Washington by Thomas MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads. That many men, he said, will cash in on the increased road construction funds voted by congress.

Chairman Woods of the Hoover committee on unemployment told a senate committee he thought there would be no improvement in employment conditions until spring, but even as he spoke industry in every section of America began answering in brighter tones than it has hummed for many months.

Many Pay Rolls Increased.

A survey by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce showed 69 concerns there planning to increase their pay rolls this month. One thousand employés already have been recalled by one clothing company.

The Beech Grove repair shops of the Big Four railroad at Indianapolis reopened today with 1,910 men having the encouraging prospect of steady eight hour a day employment five days a week. Six hundred workmen returned to jobs at the Ford plant in Indianapolis.

The first weekly steel trade reviews today noted a sharp business upturn. Ingot production, placed at 41 per cent of its rated capacity, was reported by Iron Age to have recovered its December losses. Automobile steel, railroad steel, tin plate and structural tonnage are contributing most to current mill activity, the magazine said.

Big Steel Order Placed.

The Pennsylvania railroad announced the placing of orders for 200,000 tons of steel rails for the year, the contracts at present prices totaling $8,500,000. Expenditures for attachments—frogs, switches, tie plates—will bring the expenditure of the Pennsylvania to more than $15,000,000. Fifteen per cent of the rail order is for immediate delivery.

Shops of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which have been shut down several weeks, reopened with more than 1,000 skilled workmen returning. About 1,500 men went to work in Newark, where steam shovels are being replaced by hand labor to create more jobs on a city railway project.

4,000 Working Again.

The RCA-Victor company plant at Camden, N. J., reopened after a month's suspension, affecting about 4,000 workers.

There were numerous increases in employment in New England.

On the west coast similar optimistic reports were heard. Between 2,000 and 3,000 workers heard the promise of employment soon in the Los Angeles area by reason of the expansion of 14 industrial plants and the opening of 11 new concerns.

Buick Rehires 1,700.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Officials of the Buick Motor Car company today ordered 1,700 former employés to return to work Thursday. This step will bring resumption of activities in four more departments and will place the personnel at 11,775, most of whom have returned to their jobs this week.

4,000 Back on Rail Jobs.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Approximately 4,000 shop employés of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railways were back at work today after the usual two weeks holiday shutdown.

700 Resume Work.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Seven hundred Norfolk and Western Railway company maintenance of way workers who were laid off Dec. 18 will return to work Monday, the company announced today. The number makes a total of 3,500 men returning to work for the road since Jan. 5.

St. Louis to Construct $4,000,000 Auditorium

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Construction of a municipal auditorium at a cost of $4,000,000 was ordered today by Mayor Victor Miller as the first step in the city's program for relief of unemployment in the building trades.

Capitol Hears Gloom and Cheer Stories on Hard Times

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—With Arkansas' two senators denouncing governmental indifference to suffering, and officials of the executive branch telling the senate appropriations committee what was being done to relieve that suffering, the capitol today heard the gloomy side and the optimistic side of hard times.

"May God forgive the indifference of human beings to the misfortunes of their fellows," pleaded Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, minority leader, on the senate floor.

"When John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross, said that only forty persons instead of 300 took part in the food demonstration at England, Ark., he said what he knew wasn't true," declared Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.]. "I ask him to produce a single witness. I used to have great respect for Mr. Payne. I now have some pity and no respect."

Work on Roads to Aid.

While they were speaking, Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, was telling the appropriations committee that the increased funds—amounting to maximum of $437,500,000—to be spent on federal aid roads this year should mean the employment of an additional 100,000 men.

And Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's employment commission, was testifying that there were between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men out of work, that improvement could not be looked for until spring, but that industry was exhibiting a different attitude, trying to economize without laying men off entirely, and that of two billions 500 millions in public works, about one billion dollars is at a point where work is almost ready to commence.

Senators Robinson and Caraway attacked Mr. Payne's testimony given before the committee yesterday. He had said the Red Cross had $4,500,000 f relief work.

Depict Distress in Arkansas.

The two senators said that in Arkansas alone, where the drought destroyed the crops, where the farmers even in normal years make their crops on credit, and where the failure of 116 banks has destroyed credit, there were now 100,000 persons close to starvation, with a likelihood of there being 250,000 before the end of the winter.

They said the Red Cross aid was pitifully insufficient and declared that neither President Hoover, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde nor Mr. Payne was aware of the true conditions.

"Men who have toiled a life time providing for their families have been stricken by the forces of nature, conquered, humiliated, rendered helpless," Senator Robinson declared. "Men of that type ought not to be forced to accept charity in order to be enabled to live under our flag."

Asks Credit, Not Charity.

All he asked, he said, was such an extension of credit as is sought in Senator Caraway's amendment to the drought relief bill to provide $15,000,000 to be loaned and secured by crop liens so that the hungry may buy food.

"All I ask," he pleaded, "is for a rehabilitation measure. Let congress give them credit, let it take this little chance, in order that hope may spring anew and industry be restored. What I ask is credit, not charity; encouragement, not humiliation."

WINTERBOTHAM ESTATE $650,000; GOES TO FAMILY

The will of John H. Winterbotham, for many years a leader in the industrial and business life of Chicago, was filed for probate yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The bulk of the estate, valued at $650,000, is left in trust to the widow and two daughters. Mr. Winterbotham died Dec. 29.

Bequests to charity amount to $25,000 and include $15,000 to the Chicago Art institute and $5,000 to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. The sum of $68,500 is divided among relatives and friends.

A trust fund of $356,000 is created for the widow, Mrs. Anne Winterbotham, 1301 Astor street, and two daughters, Mrs. Theodora Badger, 190 East Chestnut street, and Miss Rue Winterbotham, 700 Rush street.

The balance of the estate—about $200,000—is left in another trust fund for the benefit of Mrs. Winterbotham. Mr. Winterbotham was president of the J. H. Winterbotham & Sons, cooperage manufacturers. He took an active interest in charitable work.

SHOOTS TIN CANS OFF PLAYMATES' HEADS WITH GUN

Marion, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A modern William Tell who used .22 caliber bullets in place of arrows and tin cans instead of apples has been found here.

The youth was taken to police headquarters after reports had been received from neighbors that he was shooting a rifle recklessly. He was released, but his two .22 caliber rifles were kept at headquarters.

Today his mother called at police headquarters and asked that the rifles be returned. She admitted her son put small cans on the heads of his playmates and knocked them off with rifle bullets.

ICE PILED UP HIGH IN RIVER BY STRONG WIND

Ice in the Chicago river, broken up by the warm weather and driven in opposite directions by the current from Lake Michigan and a strong wind, piled up at numerous spots in the loop district yesterday and provided an unusual spectacle for thousands.

Another help in fighting dread

DIABETES

Sufferers from other diseases little know the fear of coma that haunts the diabetic every minute, every hour, day and night. It takes courage to fight it—and wise choosing. Water is one of your important allies. The right water. One of hundreds of recent letters reads, "I am pleased with the help Mountain Valley Mineral Water brought in a severe diabetic condition." Certainly it allays thirst more pleasantly than ordinary water. Certainly, too, the mild minerals subtly combined by Nature aid in the everlasting battle against ketone acidosis. In the vital problem of elimination, also, it helps safely and easily to keep active all four of the natural channels. Drink plenty of Mountain Valley Mineral Water. Always pure, always effective, always delicious. Learn more—phone for booklet today.

KEEP ON GIVING FOR JOBLESS, IS CLARKE'S APPEAL

With approximately 32 per cent of the $5,000,000 emergency relief fund yet to be collected, Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the relief fund committee of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission, yesterday warned that the public must not consider that relief measures are no longer necessary.

"Right now there is an average daily increase of 700 new families seeking relief from the governor's commission and welfare agencies," Mr. Clarke said. "Many of the new families are emergency cases, and, while the general tone of business and the more hopeful general outlook is highly encouraging, Chicago must not be blinded to present needs."

In an endeavor to prevent a recurrence of the present difficulties the commission yesterday was considering two new recommendations: the enlarging of the present state free employment bureau, with an increased mobility of labor for available jobs, and appropriation of state funds for a survey of employment and unemployment conditions in order to recommend corrective legislation.

LIQUOR REPORT COMPLETED, BUT TO BE DELAYED

Wickersham Body Meets Again Jan. 14.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The Wickersham commission completed its prohibition report today and there is every reason to believe it was signed by a majority of the eleven members of the group which has been delving into the wet and dry question for eighteen months.

While no definite announcement was forthcoming, the fact that three members planned to leave Washington for an extended period immediately after today's two hour session was pointed to by officials as conclusive evidence that an agreement on the controversial prohibition problem had been reached.

Baker Going to Europe.

Immediately after the session it was learned that Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, is sailing for Europe tomorrow, while Judge William S. Kenyon is leaving for his home in Fort Dodge, Ia., within the next day or two. Judge Paul J. McCormick is leaving for Los Angeles tomorrow and although the next meeting of the commission was set for Jan. 14, it was indicated at the Wickersham headquarters that it was not expected that all members would be present at the next session.

Just when the prohibition report will be placed in the hands of the President was uncertain tonight, although there were indications it would not be until after next Wednesday's meeting. The President this morning expected the report to arrive today or tomorrow. Later in the day it was indicated at the White House that the document may not arrive for some days.

Hoover to Forward Report.

It was stated at the White House that President Hoover will not delay the report once it reaches his desk. The plan, it was said, is for Mr. Hoover to forward the conclusions of the commission, together with a message of his own, to congress as soon as he has had an opportunity to read the report.

New demands for secrecy on the part of Chairman George W. Wickersham today intensified the smoke screen that has been thrown about the results of the comission's investigations.

No new hints as to the nature of the commission's findings were forthcoming from the Wickersham headquarters. All indications today, however, reinforced reports that the commission's conclusions will not carry any recommendation for the repeal of the 18th amendment, the legalizing of light wines and beer, or any serious tampering with the Volstead act.

GOVERNOR CROSS OF CONNECTICUT FLAILS DRY LAW

Asks Legislature to Demand Repeal.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Three ways in which Connecticut can express "its dissatisfaction with results of national prohibition as inferred by the recent election" were suggested by Gov. Wilbur Lucius Cross, in his inaugural message to the general assembly this afternoon. He was the first Democratic governor since Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin served from 1911 to 1915.

The three ways, he said, were to memorialize congress for repeal of the Volstead act, for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and to join with legislatures of other states in application for a constitutional convention for repeal of the amendment.

Denounces National Prohibition.

Gov. Cross, in a political speech to the Democratic state committee in June, a few days before he relinquished the deanship of Yale graduate school, denounced national prohibition and advocated repeal of the 18th amendment.

In his message today he laid particular stress on his opposition to national prohibition. He recalled that Connecticut never ratified the amendment because "the assembly was unwilling to cede to the national government rights originally reserved to the state under the constitution." He said it was "unnecessary to present a picture of graft, corruption, and violent crimes in a new underworld created by national prohibition, the increased use of distilled liquors by the younger generation, and the disrespect for law by all classes which threatens the foundations of civil government.

Stands for Temperance.

"I would that all persons were temperate in their habits," said Gov. Cross. "But it has been shown once more in history that mankind cannot be made good under compulsion. Temperance is a virture to be inculcated in a people by education and persuasion."

Gov. Cross said the country was floundering in a morass from which the only outlet is a repeal of the amendment. He added that if the assembly agreed with him it would express disapproval of national prohibition in ways deemed appropriate.

MONTREAL AND QUEBEC SHAKEN BY EARTHQUAKE

QUEBEC, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A slight earth shock was felt in the lower town districts of Quebec tonight. Although no damage was done, books in the library of the technical college were jarred from the shelves.

Felt in Montreal District.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Two distinct earth shocks were felt tonight. In Westmount a vase was toppled over while residents at Pointe Aux Trembles on the east end of the island also reported earth movements. At Vitoriaville a tremor was noticeable at 7 o'clock.

House Wets Battle in Vain to Defeat Greater Dry Fund

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—House drys today rode rough shod over the wets in a lively skirmish over funds for more prohibition agents.

The drys voted down half a dozen amendments proposed by a persistent wet minority to an item in the first deficiency bill for $543,370 for the prohibition bureau of the department of justice.

The bill which carried a total of $92,000,000 for various departments, was passed without any change in the prohibition item except the elimination of a clause authorizing the use of $10,000 for propaganda work against which a point of order was sustained.

When passed by the senate the bill will make possible the employment of 257 additional persons, including 130 prohibition agents, in the field service of the prohibition bureau.

Protests Get Little Attention.

The wet speakers received scant consideration from the drys, being greeted with shouts of derision and constant interruptions. There was a sudden lull in the storm, however, when Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], former solicitor general of the United States, gained the floor after the last of the wet amendments had been voted down.

"The time will come when this and similar debates will be regarded the same way that some of us who are descended from the Pilgrim fathers now regard their attitude toward witchcraft," said Mr. Beck. "It will be regarded as extraordinary.

"If I could do one thing I would change today's minority into a majority or else lose my high regard for the members of this house. I could bring that change if I could assemble these 60,000 convicted of violations of this law in the last year and invite the house to sit on yonder terrace and watch them march by. Why, Mr. Chairman, marching in regular military formation it would take six hours for these 60,000 who have been changed from honest and upright citizens to criminals by this law to pass in line.

Predicts Certain Failure.

"I would like to know how many criminals you are going to make before you can enforce a statute which has not in ten years been able to change the fundamental desire for human liberty in the human heart. Experience has shown that you can spend all the money you want and you won't kill the instinct in the hearts of the American people that in this matter they are going to order their own lives."

An amendment by Representative Linthicum prohibiting the use of any part of the money in the establishment of speakeasies or other means of entrapment of persons in the violation of the 18th amendment was defeated by a vote of 54 to 106.

An amendment by Representative Sabath to reduce the appropriation to $250,000, thus eliminating the extra 130 prohibition agents, also met defeat as did an amendment by Representative Schafer prohibiting the use of any part of the funds for wire tapping.

Reveals Upshaw as Employé.

Representative LaGuardia during the debate disclosed that former Representative W. D. Upshaw, dry crusader from Georgia, had been on the payroll of the prohibition bureau from January to June, 1930, receiving $1,590 in salary and $1,166 in expenses as a lecturer.

Mr. La Guardia also charged that a 16 year old son of a leading woman dry worker had been given a job. He accused the prohibition bureau of having set up a club in New York, a pool room in Norfolk and a still at another point, all for the purpose of entrapping violators. Representative Linthicum renewed his charge that the bureau had sponsored a speakeasy in Indianapolis.

Tells of Illinois Election.

Representative Sabath brought the Illinois situation into the discussion.

"I believe this money is unnecessary," said Mr. Sabath. "In my own state of Illinois the late lady Republican candidate tried in every possible way to evade the prohibition issue and for the first time in history Illinois, a Republican dry state, having experience as to what prohibition has done, elected a wet Democrat for senator by a 750,000 majority.

"Wishing to comply with the wishes of the people of my state I can no longer vote the taxpayers' money for the purpose of supplying professional prohibitionists with a few more positions for their favorites."

Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.], asked if it was not true that Representative Richard Yates [Rep., Ill.], a dry, was reëlected by a majority of a million. Mr. Sabbath retorted that the Texan was "wrong as usual," and that Mr. Yates managed to squeeze through by a few thousand in spite of being dry, but that "if he had been right on prohibition he would have won by a million."

One Policeman Is Killed, Another Shot by Suspect

Cleveland, O., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Patrolman James Ryan was shot and probably fatally wounded and John Cleary, another policeman, was less seriously wounded, when they attempted to arrest a suspect in the robbery of an alleged bootlegging place late today.

DANDRUFF
Soon Destroys the Hair
If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.
It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

LYLE PROMISES TO STAY CLEAR OF JOB BARGAINS

If Elected, I'll Appoint the Best, He Says.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Judge Lyle yesterday made what he said would be his only pledge concerning his appointments if he is elected mayor. It was a pledge to the people that he would keep clear of deals and bargains and remaining free to select the men and women best qualified for the positions to be filled.

For another day he was the only candidate in the Republican field who appeared to be making news. For the most part the others seemed to have settled down to a period of waiting until the last day for filing petitions and the last day for withdrawals have passed.

Mayor Thompson was silent at Mount Clemens, Mich., where he is being treated for inflammatory rheumatism. Ald. Arthur F. Albert said he was busy digging up the records of all his opponents. Charles V. Barrett was occupied with organization matters. Friends of Thomas J. Houston filed his mayoralty petition. Efforts to find John P. Walsh, the man named in a sixth petition filed, were unsuccessful.

Judge Lyle's Statement.

"This appears an opportune time for me to make clear and definite my position upon one point which I consider important as a factor in securing good government," said Judge Lyle's statement. "As a candidate for mayor I have not made any bargain nor shall I make any regarding future appointment to office of any one.

"If I am chosen as mayor I would regard it as highly improper to go into office under such a pledge to any individual. I should endeavor to fill every administrative position with the sole aim of securing the service of men whose record and character gave evidence of ability and disposition to administer the positions with honesty, efficiency, and economy.

"To find such men I would counsel with every interest, business, industrial, political, or otherwise, that gave promise of being able to aid in the task, but that duty will arise only if I am elected. Until that time I shall not enter into any understanding as to individual appointments."

Marks Urges Lyle's Election.

Adolph Marks, until yesterday state senator from the First district, where the Thompson forces in November elected City Sealer Dan Serritella, Capone lieutenant, to the senate, issued a statement urging the voters to give Judge Lyle control of the police force where he could do real team work with State's Attorney Swanson in cleaning out the gangsters.

The First ward is known as a Capone ward and until he came out for Judge Lyle, Marks was the Deneen leader there.

"I believe the people of Chicago," read Marks' statement, "have unquestionably shown their confidence in the candidacy of Judge Lyle for mayor. That he merits this confidence, I believe, is without question. He has waged a relentless and vigorous fight to break up the alliance between politics and crime, and in no small measure has already obtained remarkable results."

Fortieth Ward Group Formed.

Lyle headquarters announced the completion of an organization committee for the Fortieth ward that represents all its political groups as well as its political independents. The elected committeeman for this ward, John McKeone, for years a Deneen man, has gone over to Thompson following an offer of a job for himself and places for some of his followers.

The executive committee of the Lyle organization that will handle this ward consists of John W. Chapman, Ingolf Pederson, W. Y. Key, Ernest Schein, W. L. Morgan, William E. Johnson, Prof. A. Samuel Walgreen, and Louis F. Wilk.

Barrett headquarters announced that a Ninth ward organization headed by Clarence Piggott, chairman of the Illinois Industrial commission, had indorsed their candidate.

Petitions for C. Thomas Hanley, 6335 Kimbark avenue, a supporter of County Chairman Snow, as a candidate for city clerk have been put into circulation. City Clerk Smith formerly was a Snow adherent but now is with Thompson.

SEEKS SEPARATION

MRS. NELLIE AMBERSON.

The Dr. Henry Amberson divorce trial proceeded yesterday in the courtroom of Superior Judge Desort. John Christopher, 3244 Fillmore street, a witness for Dr. Amberson, who in a divorce action is contesting his wife's separate maintenance suit, denied the charges of Mrs. Nellie Amberson that her husband attended a football game with a high school girl at Champaign in October, 1929.

Christopher explained that he is a friend and patient of Dr. Amberson, and that when he read of the divorce trial he called the physician and volunteered his services.

"What kind of a day was Oct. 26, 1929?" Mrs. Amberson's attorney inquired.

"Sunshine in the morning, cloudy in the afternoon, and not too cold," Christopher replied.

Dr. Alfred Wolters, a dentist, who shares offices with the physician, testified that he once saw Dr. Amberson with his head cut and heard his wife say, "I'll kill you."

Dr. Amberson is expected to take the stand today.

Introduces Bill for Free Bridge Across Fox River

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A bill to authorize construction of a free bridge across the Fox river, east of Serene in La Salle county, by the state of Illinois, was introduced today y Representative Huckbee [Rep., Ill.].

LAWYER FINDS TIMES CHANGING IN LYLE'S COURT

Loses in Sharp Clash with Judge.

Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Sr., former well known practitioner of criminal law who recently came out of retirement, found out yesterday that times have changed when he appeared in Judge John H. Lyle's Felony court to represent a man charged with being an accessory to murder. The attorney subsided after a sharp exchange with the judge, who has in recent months engaged in the campaign to rid the community of so-called public enemies.

John and William Carr, brothers, were held to the grand jury without bail on a charge of murdering John Guida, a saloonkeeper at 836 North Racine avenue. Joseph Liebroch, 915 North Racine avenue, was held on $15,000 bonds on the charge of accessory. Attorney Cantwell represented Liebroch and protested the action against his client.

Says Lyle Lacks Jurisdiction.

"Judge, you haven't any jurisdiction over my client," said the attorney. "He was brought here on a writ as a material witness and not as a defendant."

"The old style criminal lawyer who used to badger and shake his finger at the court is gone," said the judge. "You haven't been practicing law recently."

"It would be better English to say 'the old style criminal law lawyer,'" interrupted the attorney.

"I said criminal lawyer and maybe I mean what I said," responded the judge. "I do not want to hear any more from you. This court is not going to be run by any lawyer."

White Gets New Setback.

William (Three Fingered Jack) White, public enemy, who was among those named by Judge Lyle in his vagrancy warrants, received another setback yesterday. He was refused bail by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court, despite the protests of Attorneys W. W. Smith and Everett Jennings. White is waiting trial on a revived charge of murdering a Forest Park policeman.

Another activity in the Felony court was the holding to the grand jury in $5,000 bond of Deputy Sheriff Fred Worth on a technical charge of larceny.

Judge Lyle ruled that the deputy had no right to seize an automobile unknown to the owner even though he held a lien writ. The automobile was owned by Albert J. Fisher and was seized because of a $55 bill for work.

Two youthful bandits, Frank Urchell and Michael Dorman, were held to the grand jury in $160,000 bonds each on charges of robbing taxicabs. The judge finished his day's work by allowing probation to Marie Butts, 39 years old, who used the name of Morgan Collins while parading a man. She was charged with passing worthless check and agreed to make restitution.

INDICT LAWYER ON CHARGE OF $180,000 FRAUD

Victims Tell Jury of Their Losses.

Attorney Morris A. Mills, formerly with offices at 30 North Dearborn street, was reported named in true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday charging that he swindled clients out of approximately $180,000. The jury is reported to have voted six true bills for operating a confidence game as well as making additional charges of forgery and embezzlement.

Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, said that Attorney Mills apparently started his fraudulent activities in 1929. He sold fictitious second mortgages and other securities, it is charged, and then kept his clients pacified by mailing regular dividend and interest checks.

However, it is charged that when the depression came, Attorney Mills was unable to get any new clients or customers and his funds to keep up the interest and dividend payments soon dwindled. When he was unable to make the payments his customers started an inquiry and finally appealed to the authorities.

Mills fled from the city and was recently traced to Eudora, Ark., by Detectives Barney Dwerski and Harry Larsen of the state's attorney's office. They reported that he was operating a chain store in that city for his brother. Mills is married and has two children.

Mills was arrested and brought back to Chicago on a fugitive warrant secretly issued by Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court.

Witnesses Tell of Loses.

Among some of the witnesses appearing before the grand jury yesterday are Aaron J. Goldman, 30 North Dearborn street, who is said to have lost $11,000; Abraham Ricover, 1455 South Hamlin avenue, listed as losing $18,000; and Phillip Bloomenthal, 1455 South Hamlin avenue, who invested $11,000.

The prosecutor said he has the name of another victim, who lost $80,000. The latter, however, has refused to come forward and prosecute.

The bonds for Mills will be set at $114,000, it was announced by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro, in charge of the grand jury.

MRS. TRUMBULL HURT BY AUTO AT INAUGURAL FETE

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. John H. Trumbull, wife of the retiring governor, was injured today while watching the inaugural parade in honor of Gov. Wilbur L. Cross.

Mrs. Trumbull, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Coolidge, daughter-in-law of the ex-President, stepped in the path of a slow moving automobile in Lewis street.

She was knocked down. An automobile took her to a near-by hotel. Her injuries, it was announced, were not serious.

Legislature Convenes and Hears Message.

being flanked by party big-wigs from Chicago and elsewhere. Members of the house were given the oath by Chief Justice Frank K. Dunn. Among those towards the front of the chamber who raised their right hands and swore to be true to dear old Illinois was Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien of Chicago, who was sentenced yesterday to serve eighteen months in Leavenworth for violation of the federal income tax laws, and was fined $6,000. He drew his pay check with the others, enough to pay more than half the fine.

Homer Tice, a veteran member from Greenview, nominated Mr. Shanahan for speaker in a speech that seemed to verge on tears.

Kind Words for Igoe.

Mr. Igoe was nominated by Representative Truman A. Snell of Carlinville.

Igoe's nomination was seconded by Representative Thomas J. O'Grady of Chicago, who called the shot by predicting the vote. He likewise taunted the Republicans.

"I know full well," said O'Grady, "the vote will stand 81 to 71. We Democrats are not kidding ourselves. Mr. Igoe has no patronage to dispense, nothing to promise. He came here on his name and record, and nobody hinted any Democrat would oppose him.

"But you Republicans, I've heard for two days that a dozen candidates would be fighting, but the noise seems to have been stilled. You Republicans are running true to form, you call each other names in the primaries, and then get into the same bed when the slate is made."

O'Grady's Count Correct.

The vote stood 81 to 71, Shanahan and Igoe exchanging complimentary votes according to custom. Then the temporary organization was made permanent by the same vote, and Shanahan took the oath for the third time —once as member, once as temporary speaker, once as permanent speaker —he was pretty well sworn in, they remarked.

Edward J. Barrett, flanked by a galaxy of Democratic chieftains, was sworn in as state treasurer. The Democrats made an ovation of it. For the first time since 1913 they were inducting a fellow Democrat into a big state office.

Another bellow from the doorkeeper and Gov. Emmerson appeared in the aisle escorted by Representative James Curran of Chicago, superintendent of the bridewell.

After this the house adjourned until Wednesday morning.

L. V. L. PREPARES CAMPAIGN FOR SOUND STATUTES

A campaign for sound and honest law making has been mapped out for the present legislative session at Springfield by the Legislative Voters' league, Shelby M. Singleton, executive secretary of the organization announced yesterday.

Paul Steinbrecher, real estate man, was elected president, at the 28th annual meeting held at the Mid-Day club. Other officers chosen were Isaac R. Rothschild, vice president; W. Scott Bond, second vice president; Henry A. Gardner, secretary; Lawrence Williams, treasurer. Mr. Singleton was reelected executive secretary.

Mr. Steinbrecher was formerly president of the Chicago Real Estate board. Mr. Rothschild, the new vice president, is a lawyer who served two terms in the legislature as representative from the Hyde Park district.

Adlai E. Stevenson, Francis M. Knight, Robert H. Hunter, Thomas L. Marshall and George A. Paddock were chosen to fill vacancies on the board of directors.

DIGEST OF GOV. EMMERSON'S MESSAGE TO LEGISLATURE

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Reapportionment claimed first attention in Gov. Emmerson's biennial message to the 57th general assembly this afternoon. The communication was lengthy. It touched upon those subjects the governor considers paramount and reviewed in some detail the work of a dozen state departments during the last two years.

A digest of the message follows:

REAPPORTIONMENT

"It is manifestly to the best interest of all that a plan be worked out for a balance of power between Cook county and the remainder of the state, so that neither can override the interests of the other and both can cooperate for the good of the whole, coupled with a larger measure of home rule for Chicago.

"To accomplish this an amendment to article IV. of the constitution is necessary, providing for full representation of Cook county in one branch of the general assembly and for a limitation of its representation in the other branch. The suggestion has been made that full representation be allowed on the basis of population in the state senate, but that the Cook county membership in the house of representatives be retained at approximately one-third of the total membership of that body. The reason for this is that an increase in the number of senators will not make that body unwieldy, whereas a larger increase in the already large membership of the house of representatives would be detrimental to efficiency in legislation."

Sets Forth the Problem.

The governor called attention to the fact that, although the constitution makes mandatory the reapportionment of the legislature after each decennial census, none has been made in Illinois for thirty years.

"It is not so simple as some would have it appear. If the legislative districts of the state are reapportioned on the basis of population, under the present provisions of the constitution, one county will have a majority of the members in both houses of the general assembly and will be able to control all legislation, regardless of its effect upon the other 101 counties. Manifestly, this is a condition which will not be tolerated willingly by the other 101 counties and it is conceivable that in the end it would be detrimental also to the county having control.

"It is a well established principle of the government of the United States that the territory as well as population has a right to representation in legislative bodies."

Cites Other States.

The governor said that New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland have set a limit on the representation from their populous areas.

"When the Illinois constitution of 1870 was framed," he said, "Chicago's population was only one-eighth of the population of the state, and there was no indication at that time that it ever would exceed or even equal the population in the remaining 101 counties. It must be evident that we have reached the point where the rights of territory as well as the rights of population must be considered.

CHICAGO HOME RULE

"In the consideration of reapportionment on the basis of limitation for Cook county in one house of the general assembly, thought also should be given to the question of home rule for Chicago on matters of purely local importance. Chicago has many problems inherent in metropolitan conditions in which the remainder of the state is not concerned. Questions of local finance and much other legislation affecting only Chicago or Cook county could very well be left to the decision of local legislative bodies.

"I am advised that the Supreme court of Illinois has suggested that under the present constitution the legislature may empower to write and amend its own charters. If this is true, the general assembly can delegate authority to the city of Chicago to establish, by revision of its charter, the right of home rule in many matters that now require state legislative action. I urge your serious consideration of this entire subject."

Congress Reapportionment.

"The objections to reapportionment based entirely upon population which are applicable to the legislative situation do not apply at all to congressional reapportionment. While the election of United States senators is not based upon population, the election of congressmen is, and Illinois, for many years, has been electing two congressmen at large because of failure to reapportion the state. There is no good reason why this general assembly should not proceed at once to the reapportionment of all congressional districts of the state on the basis of population, in compliance with the provisions of the constituton, and it is my urgent suggestion that this be done.

ECONOMIC SITUATION

"Illinois was one of the first states to recognize the seriousness of industrial and agricultural depression and to take steps for relief." The governor spoke of the highway work hastened to provide jobs for the unemployed, for which about $26,000,000 of the state's revenue was paid out in 1930, enabling approximately 30,000 men to be employed. He reviewed the progress of the governor's commission on unemployment and relief appointed last Oct. 15. He pointed out that it is now engaged in raising a $5,000,000 fund for Chicago's needs and has been organizing aid for downstate communities.

Urges Tax Relief.

In referring to Cook county revenues the message said:

"The direct and indirect affect of the tax situation in Cook county (the delay in tax collections) upon the finances of the state and certain municipal coöperations is, in my opinion, serious enough to merit your careful consideration to the end that adequate relief may be afforded until the tax collections in Cook county are again at normal times to care for government needs."

The law enforcement passage read:

"It is generally recognized that at least part of the blame for the failure to punish criminals is to be found in the inadequate machinery of the courts or in court procedure which enables the criminal to circumvent the law. One of the agencies which is endeavoring to find a remedy for existing conditions in the Criminal courts is the judicial advisory council of Cook county. The report of this commission to the present general assembly should be carefully studied and its recommendations seriously considered."

Chicago Traction Problem.

Touching on Chicago traction, the message stated:

"Under authority of the legislature, the Chicago city council on May 19, 1930, passed an ordinance for a comprehensive, unified local transportation system for the ownership and operation of the surface lines and rapid transit systems by one company with city owned but privately operated subways in the central business district and transfers between surface lines, elevated lines, and subways. This ordinance was approved by the people on July 1, 1930, by a vote of about 5 to 1."

HIGHWAYS

"In 1930 785 miles of hard roads were added to the state's system, bringing the total to 7,701 miles of pavement. There remain 2,200 miles to be completed, which together with necessary widenings, grade separations and bridges, will cost about $110,000,000.

"If the present sources of revenue are left undisturbed sufficient funds will be collected to complete practically all the work in three years and the counties will be able to make marked headway in improving the secondary state aid road system."

Mr. Emmerson asked the legislature to authorize the highway department to construct and maintain state routes through municipalities where such authority now is lacking.

"Such legislation should carry with it safeguards that will insure that such maintenance or improvements do not exceed the needs of state trunk line traffic.

"Appropriations are being asked to increase the state highway police force from 272, the present number, to 300; for new equipment, district headquarters and telephone communications.

"I strongly urge that no increase in truck or bus weights or speeds be permitted by the general assembly."

The Boxing Law.

A paragraph on the state athletic commission states:

"Under the administration of the state athletic commission there have been no scandals or other incidents that would bring discredit to boxing or wrestling in this state. The commission is recommending amendments to the law designed to clarify the provisions covering amateur boxing and wrestling, also to increase the number of rounds allowed for professional contests. I suggest that this whole subject receive your careful consideration."

TAX EQUALIZATION

The calling of a special session of the assembly last June to meet Chicago's financial situation, caused by the delay in tax collections, and the work of the special commission on revenue were discussed under this heading. The failure of the proposed revenue amendment, "Liberalizing the revenue section and giving the assembly more power in tax legislation," to win the approval of the voters was outlined, and the governor noted that no proposal to amend the revenue section of the constitution can be submitted for four years. The message said:

"Nevertheless, the effort to find some measures of relief for overburdened real estate must be continued. The huge increase in the number of unpaid real estate tax bills indicates that in some instances at least these taxes are becoming confiscatory. Whatever can be done under the existing constitution to secure greater equality of assessment and at least some degree of justice in the distribution of the burden, so that intangible property will pay a larger share, should be undertaken.

"Organizations which have assumed an attitude of obstruction, opposing any effort to reform but offering nothing constructive, owe it to the public in general, and particularly to the people whom they represent, to coöperate in any honest effort offering hope for some measure of relief."

On Election Reform.

In another section the governor said that the commission investigating election laws believes the work of preparing a new election code to be a work of tremendous importance and labor and will recommend that this phase of the work be extended into another biennium.

The waterways section read:

"The Lockport project, costing, $1,973,000, is almost completed. The lock and dam at Brandon road and the retaining walls through Joliet, the estimated cost of which is $6,760,000, are 72 per cent completed. The lock and dam at Dresden island, costing $2,300,000, is 35 per cent completed and the dredging in the pool above the lock and dam is 30 per cent completed. The dredging of the Marseilles pool is 42 per cent completed; the canal connecting this pool with the lock 95 per cent completed and the lock itself 97 per cent completed. The Starved Rock lock and dam, costing $3,350,000, is 95 per cent completed and the dredging in the pool above the dam is 84 per cent completed."

BILLS OFFERED IN SENATE

1—Barbour—Motor drivers' license law. Examination by secretary of state. Fee of 75 cents to go into road fund.

2—McDermott—Repeals Illinois liquor laws of June 27, 1921, and June 21, 1919.

3—Michel—Amends park airdrome act. Makes rate of one mill apply to districts less than one hundred thousand. In districts of one hundred thousand and five hundred thousand rate is one mill for five years and one-fifth mill thereafter.

7—Barbour—Authorizes Lincoln park commissioners to extend certain parks, boulevards and driveways. Grants submerged lands and riparian rights for purpose.

8—Barbour—Provides for election of mayor, city clerk and city treasurer of Chicago at same time and in same manner as aldermen. Run-off elections if no candidate receives majority vote.

Resolutions which were offered in the senate follow:

1—Searcy—Asks congress to call convention to propose amendment to eighteenth amendment as follows: "The exclusive power to tax, license, regulate or suppress the manufacture, sale, transportation, exportation and importation of intoxicating liquors shall be vested in the congress." Exec. com.

2—Searcy—Creates joint legislative survey committee on appropriations and expenditures, five from each house covering state departments, counties and municipalities to report this session. Exec. com.

3—Mills—Memorializes congress to provide for immediate cash payment to veterans of world war of cash surrender value of adjusted compensation certificates. Exec. com.

4—Kessinger—Proposal for constitutional convention to be submitted at next general election. Exec. com.

Both houses adjourned to Wednesday, Jan. 14.

Fred Neilsen Named to Mexican Claims Board

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Appointment of Fred K. Neilsen of Nebraska as the American member of the Mexican-American special claims commission was announced tonight by the state department. Nielsen, since July 31, 1926, has been the American member of the general claims commission of the two countries and also will continue in this capacity. He replaces Ernest B. Perry of Nebraska, whose resignation was accepted recently by President Hoover.

REDISTRICT PLAN IS NOT FAVORED BY CHICAGOANS

Emmerson Scheme Seen Withholding Rights.

Gov. Emmerson's proposal for reapportioning the state to give Cook county full representation in the senate while limiting its constitutional right in the house of representatives, as expressed in the governor's message to the 57th general assembly yesterday, met with little favor among prominent Chicago men who long have been active in seeking Cook county's rightful representation in the state legislature.

Silas Strawn, lawyer and civic leader, said he sympathized with the governor's proposal. "I would not want to criticize it without an opportunity to study his message," Mr. Strawn said. "I sympathize with his attitude and appreciate the fact that it would hardly be fair to give Chicago and Cook county complete control over both houses to the exclusion of the 101 other counties.

Should Get Representation.

"Obviously, however, we should be given the representation we properly should have in at least one of the houses of the legislature, denied us for so many years."

E. E. Gore, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who headed former Mayor Dever's committee of 200 on reapportionment, was emphatically opposed to the governor's plan. "I don't like it," he said. "I think Chicago and Cook county are entitled to their constitutional representation their population requires. We should not have to concede any superiority to the rest of the state. We are entitled to full representation in both the house and the senate and that is what we should have. We would accept nothing else and retain our self-respect."

Prof. Merriam Also Opposed.

Similar opposition to the governor's suggestions was expressed by Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, who also has played a leading part in Cook county's fight for reapportionment.

Prof. Merriam said the state constitution provides for equal representation and "Gov. Emmerson's proposal is quite contrary to both the letter and the spirit of the state's fundamental law."

Amounts to Minority Rule.

"I would be strongly opposed to any such amendment disfranchising Cook county," the professor stated, "and would predict its overwhelming defeat. The constitution provides for majority rule and what the governor proposes amounts to a system of continuing minority rule. It is impossible to successfully shackle large metropolitan centers permanently, and in the long run we will win our rightful and constitutional representation."

Prof. Merriam said a proposal virtually the same as Gov. Emmerson's was contained in the new constitution proposed in 1922, and he said the defeat of that measure then was caused largely by its repudiation by the voters of Chicago on the grounds that it deprived them of their constitutional rights.

SOVIET RUSSIA OPENS CAMPAIGN TO CONVERT AMERICANS INTO REDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 7.—Strenuous efforts are being made to convert American engineers and mechanics employed in soviet undertakings to the communist viewpoint, according to a group of Americans who arrived today for a short visit in Riga to purchase fur coats and other articles of winter clothing impossible to obtain in Russia.

They claim that bolshevik agitation is interfering with their work, since every interpreter is an enthusiastic missionary. The meetings they are compelled to attend, they say, often develop into political discussions.

A society for the promotion of cultural relations abroad has been organized by Mme. Kemenev, wife of the former commissar of the Moscow district, who is heading propaganda work. The society will provide 700 specially trained guides, educated to conduct visitors and tourists next season as interpreters. The commissariat of education and the central council of Russian trade unions are offering a special course in agitation work for foreigners willing to introduce communism in American factories. Despite the efforts, few converts are being made, according to an American engineer.

YOUTH GETS LIFE FOR KILLING OF IOWA VIGILANTE

Tipton, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—When Mrs. John Kile of Canton, O., heard Judge John T. Moffit sentence her son, Wain S. Kile, 20, to prison for life there today she fainted and had to be carried from the courtroom. Kile was sentenced for the murder here on Aug. 8 of Robert G. Sproat, prominent business man and vigilante. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge, said to have been the first time a person ever entered a plea of guilty to a capital crime in Iowa.

MALONE RESIGNS AS TAX CHIEF AND RAPS EMMERSON

Report Ignored, He Will Run for Governor.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Chairman William H. Malone of the Illinois tax commission resigned late today in a letter to Gov. Emmerson.

He withdrew because none of the recommendations made by the tax commission was included in the governor's message read an hour before to the evening 57th general assembly, Malone said, and closed his resignation with the declaration that he would become a candidate for governor in 1932.

Upon receiving the resignation, Gov. Emmerson said he could make no appointment of a successor at this time, as strong predictions were made in the state house that Omer N. Custer, the retiring state treasurer, will be the choice. Former Cook County Assessors Charles Krutckoff and Charles Eisser were mentioned for members of the commission.

Letter of Resignation.

Malone's letter to the governor follows:

"I have just returned from the capitol, where I listened to the reading of your message to the Fifty-seventh general assembly.

"The fact that the question of taxation is the most important issue in this state, and the fact that you failed to make the recommendations submitted by the state tax commission, which had for its purpose the corrections of the evils which now exist, to the end that each person should pay only his just share of the ever-mounting taxes, causes me to tender you, sir, my resignation as chairman of the tax commission to take effect not later than Jan 12, 1931, at which time all assessments will have been certified to all counties.

"I can no longer continue the struggle when you, as governor, have repeatedly and definitely ignored every recommendation submitted by the commission for the purpose of equalizing honestly and fairly the tax burden of all taxpayers. I have fought for many years past to create a condition where no one would be called upon to carry a greater share of the tax load than that which his property value indicated, and I do not intend to permit these years of labor to go for naught. Therefore I shall take this issue directly to all the citizens of our state, now that I am free to do so.

Announces His Candidacy.

"Again I say the question of taxation is the first of importance in this state.

"Upon a platform of honest taxation, strict business economy to be brought about by the adherence to the recommendations of the state tax commission made to you officially on two separate occasions, which you have seen fit to ignore, I hereby announce my candidacy for governor of the state of Illinois."

Malone has been a member of the tax commission since 1921, when he was appointed by Gov. Small. He was made chairman in 1926.

The reassessment of all real property in Cook county for 1928 was ordered by the commission on its motion on May 7, 1928, and the resulting delays in tax collections threw the county into financial difficulties which eventually necessitated a special session of the general assembly last June, when the taxing bodies of the county were given legislative authority to issue bonds and continue their operations.

At the time the reassessment was ordered Malone issued a statement saying that the commission ordered the reassessment because they were convinced "that gross inequalities existed, and that is something no self-respecting community can tolerate. No man has a right to demand that some other man shall pay more than his or her share of this burden of our government, and upon that theory the reassessment was ordered."

Recommendations Ignored.

The chief recommendation to which Mr. Malone referred in his resignation was that tax assessments be put on a full value basis by 1931 and that the legislature reduce all rates so that when assessments are placed on this basis the increase of assessments will not produce a surplus of revenues. It also was recommended that adjustments be made in salaries and fees contingent upon assessed valuations to avoid excessive compensation under increased assessments. An appraisal system of valuation now used in Cook county for all cities and modifications for rural districts also was urged.

RADICALS LEAD UNEMPLOYED IN FIGHTING POLICE

Newark, N. J., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Police and more than one hundred unemployed men and women led by Communists fought today for more than fifteen minutes in ront of city hall when the jobless attempted to force their way into the city commission meeting. Three detectives were badly beaten and many Communists suffered head injuries and bruises from the nightsticks of policemen. Seven men and six women were arrested.

When the riot had simmered down a delegation was admitted to the meeting.

Demonstration in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A crowd of several hundred, demonstrating against unemployment greeted Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota's first Farmer-Labor chief executive, on his initial day in office today, demanding immediate legislative relief and then marched away to return tomorrow for an answer.

For the most part the demonstration was orderly with considerable laughter. Several attempts to sing the "Internationale" broke down, as most of the crowd obviously knew little of the song.

Unemployed Heckle Governor.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—About 250 unemployed men, accompanied by approximately 1,500 onlookers, marched to the state capitol here today but refused to listen to a talk by Gov. James Rolph Jr., who was heckled by the crowd.

The marchers, led by representatives of the Trade Union Unity league, bore placards demanding work, insurance, equal rights, and financial aid.

When the marchers left the capitol they left word they would return. As a result the state capitol police force was augmented.

BILL TO REPEAL STATE DRY LAW FILED IN SENATE

Department Expenditures Inquiry Asked.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The first day's grist of proposed legislation introduced in the senate contained three high spots—a wet bill, a moist resolution, and a joint resolution calling for an inquiry into expenditures made by all state departments and the conditions of employment within each department.

Senator Frank McDermott, Democrat of Chicago, had a prohibition bill repealing the Illinois liquor laws of 1919 and 1921 on Lieut. Gov. Sterling's desk almost the instant that it could be introduced. It was registered as senate bill 2, being beaten to the rostrum only by the motor drivers' license bill, sponsored by Senator James J. Barbour, Republican of Chicago, which was marked senate bill 1.

Convention Is Proposed.

Senator Earl B. Searcy, Republican of Springfield, presented a joint resolution which would place the legislature on record before congress as favoring the calling of a constitutional convention to propose an amendment that would vest in congress the "exclusive power to tax, license, regulate, or suppress the manufacture, sale, transportation, exportation, and importation of intoxicating liquors."

Senator Searcy also fostered another resolution which declared that the "confiscatory tax burden upon tax payers of Illinois demands that the 57th general assembly enact definite relief." He proposed that a joint legislative survey committee on appropriations and expenditures be appointed and that five senators and seven representatives inquire into the matters of expenditures and employment by and within all departments within the jurisdiction of the state of Illinois.

Old Age Pension Advocated.

Senator Charles H. Thompson, Republican of Harrisburg, sponsored an old age pension whereby a tax of one-half mill per dollar would be levied to allow a state payment of not more than $260 annually to any dependent person 70 years old or more. No one having an income of $300 would be eligible to receive the pension.

Senator Barbour also sponsored a bill which would allow the Lincoln Park commissioners to extend their territory by reclaiming land from the lake—a process already extensively followed. The condemned land would be paid for either by bond issues or from the general revenue.

OAK PARK VOTES $137,815 FOR WORK ON ROAD PROJECTS

The village board of Oak Park last night awarded contracts for two street widening projects to cost $137,815. Work is to be started immediately and is expected to go a long way toward relieving unemployment in the village.

The first project provides for the widening of William street, one block between Marion and Harlem avenues from 32 to 70 feet. Property owners have agreed to demolish all present structures and to erect business buildings in "English village" style. In addition there is to be an arcade through one of the new buildings extending north from William street to Lake street.

Oak Park avenue also is to be widened from 32 to 50 feet between Lake street and North boulevard.

In addition, President Charles H. Crysler instructed the village attorney to prepare an ordinance providing for construction of a playground in the southeast section of the village to cost around $125,000. The ordinance is to be ready for the next meeting of the board, Jan. 21, but approval at a referendum in April will be necessary before construction can be started.

TAX EVADER'S HIDDEN $53,000 SEIZED BY U. S.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Government officials here have seized $53,000 belonging to a Spokane, Wash., income tax evader, it became known today. The money, in $1,000 bills, was in a safety deposit box of the First National Safe Deposit company.

According to Thomas J. Layson, an assistant United States district attorney who accomplished the seizure, an assessment of $111,000 for federal income tax, covering a period of several years, was returned in Spokane last year against Reece B. Brown, an alleged gangster.

Officials in Spokane were unable to collect the tax because Brown's holdings were in bonds and cash which were hidden. So was Brown.

Can't Be Funny on a Dime, Al St. John of Films Finds

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Al St. John, film comedian, finds nothing funny in his present financial status. You can't be funny on a dime, he points out.

The screen laugh maker told Referee N. L. Mulville, when asked if he had any money, that he had "exactly 10 cents."

He had been haled before court for failure to pay a judgment of $609 for tuition and board to a military academy attended by his son.

ASKS $6,400,000 TO REDUCE TOLL OF AUTO DEATHS

Chicago Motor Club Urges 55 Grade Separations.

With a total of 1,136 automobile fatalities recorded for Cook county in 1930, an increase of approximately 10 per cent over the preceding year, the Chicago Motor club is petitioning the legislature to adopt a highway improvement program calculated to reduce accidents and at the same time speed up traffic.

A major recommendation of the club calls for the appropriation of $6,400,000 to be used during 1932 and 1933 to construct 55 grade separated crossings at intersections of the metropolitan superhighways and at dangerous railroad crossings. The motor club's engineers have discovered that 64 per cent of all fatal traffic accidents in the area occur in collisions at highway intersections or on railroad crossings, according to Charles Hayes, president of the club.

"Consider two motorists, racing at right angles toward an intersection of two highways," said Mr. Hayes. "It is night, we'll say, and traffic is light. These drivers see a broad, clear road ahead. They crash at the crossing and the rest of the story is told in the records of hospitals and morgues."

Adoption of the separated crossing program, the motor club believes, will boost the efficiency of the widened roads from the existing 50 per cent when the traffic load is heavy to a point near 100 per cent. Again Mr. Hayes illustrated.

Motoring Pleasure Reduced.

"Let's take a summer holiday afternoon," he said. "Every man who owns a car is out with the family for a spin in the country. His trip is more of an annoyance than an enjoyment. He is in a parade of vehicles, the highway is clogged, and the pace is slow. Why?

"Because at every crossing there is a congestion approximating that at a loop corner regulated by stop and go signs. There's little pleasure in that."

Gas Tax Modification Urged.

Another of the motor club's recommendations is for revision of the gasoline tax law to permit unrestricted use of the revenue for widening and improving highway sections within municipalities.

Still another proposal the motor club advances is for carrying the widened highways to their logical limits. The club is urging sufficient appropriations to widen all Chicago's radial highways beyond the zone bounded by highway 22 and to points as far distant as Springfield, Champaign, Danville, Rock Island, Freeport, and Woodstock.

CONFERENCE WILL PLAN EXPANSION OF WATERWAYS

Invitations to the waterway and flood control conference, to be held in Chicago Jan. 12 to 15, were sent out yesterday. The conference, which will be conducted under the direction of the Waterway and Flood Control Association of the Mississippi Valley, according to the invitations, is being held for the purpose of formulating plans for the further development of the waterways of the Mississippi river and its tributaries. The plans are to be based on the possibility of constructing a reservoir system and on the prompt expenditure of the $340,000,000 flood control appropriation made during the Coolidge administration. The meetings will be held at the Congress hotel.

Young Wife Shoots Sons After Dance; Kills Self

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Jealousy was blamed by police today for the suicide of a young wife and the shooting of her two little children, one of them probably fatally. Leaving her husband at a dance where she had accompanied him earlier in the evening, Mrs. Alma Elizabeth Ahlander returned home and, after writing a farewell note, shot her two sons, aged 2 and 4 years, and then put a bullet through her own heart.

FIND MISSING CHICAGO GIRL.

The police at South Bend yesterday found Pearl Fields, 16 year old daughter of Harry Fields, 2944 Jackson boulevard, registered in a hotel there under the name of Marie Gray. She disappeared from her home on Tuesday. She was brought back home last night by her father.

LAY MARNE HERO BESIDE NAPOLEON WITH WAR POMP

Marshal Joffre's Funeral Glittering Affair.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Amid the splendor of hundreds of types of blazing uniforms, both French and foreign, smart regiments, brightly polished artillery, carefully groomed mounts, all held to funereal pace, Marshal Joffre was put away among the marshals of France in the Invalides this noon.

It was a grandiose ceremony, very little behind the obsequies of Marshal Foch in quality, although only a fraction of that memorable occasion in size. The day began at 8 o'clock when the funeral guests of the French government began to crowd Notre Dame's lofty gray aisles. Even the gaudily decked out diplomats and military attachés arrived early. Ignoring the presence in their midst of the body they had come to bury, they engaged in a buzz of cheerful conversation and hand shaking until the very moment the services opened at 9 o'clock.

Petain Shakes Hands.

Even Marshal Petain left his seat at the corner of the Marne hero's lofty catafalque in order to pass among the foreign generals, shake hands, and pass the time of day.

Among the few to preserve a state of dignity was the American military attaché, Brig. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, seated well forward on the right side of the catafalque as one of the pall bearers. He was garbed in an admiral-like hat, deep blue knee length tunic with gold epaulets, a wide gold sash, and a braid played across his left shoulder.

The service opened when the great organ softly began a slow march. The funeral mass was intoned by a mixed choir supported by the organ and occasionally by subdued martial measures from a section of buglers.

Hundreds of tall tapers were scattered over the catafalque and great white and black funeral fanions were draped from the vault between the famous rose windows that served as an ideal setting for the solemn service.

President France's Chief Mourner.

Gaston Doumergue—the Protestant dais level with the altar and well forward, near Archbishop Verdier's throne, in his capacity as chief mourner of France. He preceded even Marshal Joffre's widow, her daughter, her daughter-in-law, and Marshal Foch's widow.

While the organ was still sending mourning music, the coffin was carried out of the church, almost before the congregation was aware of what had happened.

Then, followed by a great concourse of pedestrians, native and foreign soldiery, French statesmen, and foreign diplomats headed by President Doumergue and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium, the funeral cortége began its march up the Rue de Rivoli to the Place de la Concorde between long lines of crêpe swathed street lamps.

In the midst of the temporary stands facing the Invalides a feeble old man sat patiently awaiting the arrival of the slowly pacing cortége. Hunched over his cane, peering keenly from the depths of his military great coat, he quietly awaited the arrival of the funeral cortége of a comparative youngster in the military game. It was Gen. Paul Marie Cesar Gerald Pau, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and already too old to do anything much in the world war.

Barthou Speaks Eulogy.

The old man, dressed in his military best as it was known in 1871, brilliant gold braided kepi, military great coat, and red trousers, emerged from his retirement to pay honor to the younger man who had passed on before him.

The general returned salutes throughout the long march past as meticulously as the youngest whippersnapper attaché in the blazing crowd around him.

Minister of War Barthou then spoke the eulogy. He referred prominently to Marshal Joffre's visit to the United States in 1917. He defended the dead marshal's taciturnity, which has so often been attributed to stupidity, saying:

"Washington and Jefferson are said to have never made orations longer than 10 minutes at a time. Marshal Joffre found even that was too much."

Military Clicks Heels.

Following the oration came the march past Marshal Joffre's gun caisson, as smart and swift and military as the cortége through the town had been impressively slow. It was the kind of snappy review that, living, the marshal would have enjoyed. Following the French cavalry came detachments of Belgians, always closest to the French heart. Then a small detachment of Italians. They were followed by the color guard of the Paris post of American Veterans of Foreign Wars. Two wide ranks of American officer veterans of the world war came next.

Then came the magnificent British Coldstream guards, carrying black bearskin bushies atop their minimum height of six feet and bearing their rifles stiffly at the reverse.

As guns boomed artillery men wheeled Marshal Joffre's gun carriage around to face away from the Invalides and attached the traces to black horses. The carriage was followed by Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, Marshal Liautey, Marshal Petain, and 50 French generals, and Marshal Joffre entered the wide gates of the Invalides to be laid away under the dome which houses France's great heroes—from Napoleon to Foch.

MASS FOR JOFFRE SUNDAY.

A solemn high requiem mass in memory of Marshal Joffre, French war hero, will be sung at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in the Holy Name cathedral, 30 East Superior street. Msgr. Victor Primeau, appointed last week as pastor of Our Lady of Grace church, at 2456 North Ridgeway avenue, will deliver the sermon.

Alfonso Bids for Support of Army; Raises Officers' Pay

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Jan. 7.—King Alfonso today made a move which was expected of him in the slow, undercover struggle for the loyalty of the army, on which all depends in this country where right and might have long since been synonymous.

An official bulletin issued by the ministry of war carried a quiet announcement to the effect that the pay of officers will be raised from 10 per cent for generals to 25 per cent for lieutenants. This boost applies to all members of the swollen hierarchy of 19,000 officers—one to every ten men in the army—the only exceptions being three lieutenants who are already drawing $3,300 per year.

Officers Poorly Paid.

Spanish officers are miserably paid, lieutenants getting only $440 per year and colonels $1,320 and, in view of the congestion in their ranks, advancement is slow.

For this and other reasons the army has cocked its ears to the song of the republican sirens. With the air force and artillery openly enamored of republicanism and the infantry corrupted to a degree which is a mystery it has been evident that the next move was the king's, for the collapse of the recent revolt, in which its leader, Alcala Zamora, claimed that 27 garrisons had signed up, settled nothing. So Alfonso has made what the cynical consider the first bid for the army's loyalty.

Republicans Also at Work.

But the republicans, despite their clamorous assertions that they will disband the whole military machine, are not so stupid. Their agents, working under the direction of the chief conspirators, even though the latter are in jail, are deep in negotiations with important officers for a reasonable plan for army reduction, if any, when the day comes.

They are promising to continue salaries, over a stated period of years, while the demobilized war dogs find other employment. They expect to get money for this by sending home conscript privates, who would be only too pleased, and generally cutting the annual expenditure of around $44,000,000 to about one-third of this figure. Since future army rackets are expected to be limited in Spain, with no wars on the horizon and Moroccan contests no longer popular, many respected army chieftains are listening sympathetically.

Censorship Is Tightened.

Meanwhile there are dire rumors afloat. The government shows no intention of relaxing the martial law and tonight orders were issued to tighten the censorship on outgoing news. Reports of political developments, which the heavily censored local press was allowed to carry, were not permitted to leave the country by normal telegraphic channels.

The universities of Spain opened tonight with an attendance 50 per cent below normal and with every evidence that the students intend to seize the first opportunity to cause trouble as part of the republican movement's plan to harrass the government.

At the Madrid Law school today the republican leaders of the student body called a strike of protest at the continuance in power of Premier Berenguer and his alleged maltreatment of students arrested in connection with the recent abortive revolt and his imprisonment of Fernando de Los Rios, popular professor.

At the central university, in the heart of the capital, a small disturbance too place in the inner halls, but the police were forbidden to enter. Various hotheads, both male and female—there are only 250 girls in all the universities in Spain—made impassioned speeches against the government and called on their comrades to rise.

BERGDOLL 'LOST'; VANISHES FROM GERMAN REFUGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Jan. 7.—The millionaire American slacker, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who was reported yesterday en route to the United States, is not in Weinsberg, his German refuge. A telegram sent to him personally was returned today by the postoffice with a note: "Bergdoll cannot be traced." The Frank family's imposing yellow house in Weinsberg has been the home of Bergdoll for years. Frau Bergdoll today turned down all telephone calls and no visitors were allowed to enter the house.

A police officer of Weinsberg, when asked whether Bergdoll was still registered as an inhabitant, answered:

"I really cannot tell whether he is or not. He is supposed to be living within a stone's throw from my house, but I have not seen him or his big car for a year."

Seen on Dec. 29.

THE TRIBUNE'S representative saw Bergdoll in his car in Weinsberg on Monday, Dec. 29. The big trees in front of the police offices may have obstructed the view of the officials for a whole year, but confidentially the friendly Weinsbergers will tell you that they are helping Bergdoll to play hide and seek with Americans, whom they consider to be his enemies, after repeated attempts to kidnap him.

The American consulates in Berlin, Stuttgart and Frankfort deny any knowledge of Bergdoll's effort to return to America. Since he was American born, he can attempt to enter the country of his birth with the help of his birth certificate.

Washington Lacks Information.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—War, state and justice department officials today denied knowledge of any new attempt on the part of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, Philadelphia millionaire draft dodger, to enter the United States. War department officials stated flatly that no agreement had been reached with Bergdoll permitting his reentry. Bergdoll's status, department officials said, was that of an escaped prisoner who would be returned to prison to serve out the remainder of his sentence, if taken into custody.

Mother Wants Him to Return.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of Gover Cleveland Bergdoll, said today she had no knowledge of the present whereabouts of her son, except that she believes him still to be in Germany. The wealthy 70 year old mother said she wished the report were true that Grover had come home.

"I have begged and pleaded with Grover to give himself up many times, so that he could be here with me during the remainder of my life," she said. "Every time I asked Grover to come back he promised to do so. I should think he has been punished enough and would decide to come home."

CATARRH

Is That Good News?

30 Days' Free Trial Say
All Walgreen-Economical Stores

Catarrh is caused by germs—wicked, vicious, persistent pests that multiply rapidly and by digging into and devouring the tender membrane cause soreness, swelling, inflammation and mucus discharges.

A few years ago, Catarrh was considered incurable, because no one was clever enough to get together a formula that would spread over the membranes of the nasal tract a purifying substance in which catarrh germs could not exist.

But Opex changed all that, and now all you have to do to get rid of catarrh is to spray on Opex and send the germs to eternity.

When you spray Opex you can send the healing, purifying vapor from one nostril thru the other (see picture), or from either nostril to the bottom of the lungs and out thru the mouth—you can actually see this steam-like smoke coming from nostrils or mouth.

That's the way to end catarrh and to lessen those annoying, ringing, buzzing noises in the ears. Many people say it is the only way.

The price of a bottle of Opex that will last two months is $1.00—it is easily worth one hundred dollars to any man or woman who wants clean, healthy nostrils, free from disgusting mucus.

Opex will end the most stubborn cases of catarrh in a few days, because it soothes and heals the sore, inflamed membranes, reduces the swelling and purifies the entire nasal tract.

And remember this—the toughest old head colds are knocked out in a few hours with Opex—it's the magic treatment of science, for with this new discovery you can reach the entire respiratory tract—right down to the bottom of the lungs.

Bear this in mind also, for it will be joyful news to millions. After you spray Opex for two or three weeks there won't be any lump of mucus in your throat to hawk up every morning—what a blessing!

Opex is sold in this city by all Walgreen Economical Stores, with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly returned. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance. Inhale as you spray if you want to reach the bottom of the lungs—you can also spray that sore throat with purifying Opex.

FIRST GUN FIRED IN TENNESSEE'S "RASCAL HUNT"

There's $5,000,000 Worth of Blame to Fix.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 7.—[Special.] Political and social thrones of Tennessee were shaken today with the opening gun of the Sixty-seventh general assembly, organized under the malevolent dictatorship of Ed H. Crump of Memphis.

It was a declaration of war on Gov. Henry H. Horton, Rogers Caldwell, and Col. Luke Lea, the political and financial triumvirate which is held responsible for the jeopardy and probable loss of millions of state funds and also for the present lack of confidence in Democratic leadership in the state.

This action, which took the form of a joint resolution, adopted in the house but put over until Friday in the senate, calls for a complete investigation by a special legislative committee of 12, to be begun immediately, into all the departments of state. It was significantly amended to include specifically the activity of "private citizens" who have been connected with state affairs and officials.

Chockful of Dynamite.

Certain to be adopted, although possibly amended, this resolution sets in motion a lot of political dynamite. It may result in the political destruction of the governor and members of his cabinet, and its repercussions will reach into the 1932 elections with possible influence on the presidential situation.

It is quite possible that with the committee of 12 appointed, the legislature may adjourn for a month to give it a chance to function. Not more than three well known lawyers are to be appointed to assist the committee, also a firm of outside auditors. Gov. Horton, Col. Lea, Mr. Caldwell and others are expected to be called for testimony. All necessary documents are to be impounded and special mention is made of punishment for perjury.

It bears all the earmarks of an honest, sincere effort to get at the buried facts and uncover the personalities that have led Tennessee to this pass.

Governor Faces Critics Today.

Gov. Horton is to address the assembly in joint session tomorrow. He is to appear in person instead of sending in his paper to be read, breaking precedent in the state. The governor has put himself on record for an investigation also, but he wanted it carried out by his friends and used all his power to organize the legislature to carry out "my policies."

Now he stands at the mercy of the blind boss of Memphis, Mr. Crump, who, reading and capitalizing public opinion shrewdly, lost no time in delivering this blow, which, he assures all comers, is no idle gesture. He remained over in the city today to act as field marshal of his forces in house and senate, and came out of the capitol swinging his stick and beaming with pleasure. By his strategy he had outmaneuvered both the administration and the opposition, and had emerged as the shining champion of the people, reform, and honest government.

Move to Repeal Funding Law.

Another move of the day was the introduction of a bill by Senator J. T. Durham of Gallatin to repeal "chapter 11 of the extraordinary session of 1923."

"That was the law that wrecked Tennessee," said Mr. Durham after the session.

The law, passage of which was engineered by the Caldwell group, was drawn up in part by a Caldwell lawyer. It authorizes the funding board to select state depositories for the millions in highway funds that were voted at the same session.

While it did not specifically nullify the old law, which limits the amounts to be so placed to one-fourth of the capital stock of the selected bank, it resulted practically in doing just this thing, with the result that when Caldwell & Co. failed and their banks collapsed, state funds to the amount of $5,721,681 were on deposit there, backed only by the personal guarantee of Caldwell and his friends.

That is what all the shouting is about chiefly.

Backed By Crump Forces.

The only shadow on the present Crump reform program is that his organization in the 1929 session assisted in passing these same laws. Although Scott Fitzhugh, the new senate speaker, was not recorded as voting on chapter 33, Senator Brown of Memphis, floor leader of the Crump forces now, voted for it.

But this is to be forgotten. They made a mistake then and know it and do not intend to cover up its consequences. Speaker Fitzhugh and Walter Haynes personally introduced the investigation resolution in their respective chambers today.

"We stand for certain definite things in regard to this investigation," said Fitzhugh in offering the resolution. "A resolution on this vital matter has been prepared. There can be no play about this. We must meet the situation face to face."

Mr. Crump Takes Charge.

Brown seconded. Senator A. B. Broadbent, Independent candidate for the Fitzhugh position, who held out with 4 votes to the end, was on his feet with an amendment making it specific that private citizens who have had dealings with the state or its officials should also be investigated. Durham seconded the amendment. Senator Walter Faulkner, who is regarded as a fire eating anti, one anxious to get in on the investigation, possibly as chairman, wanted to know if this was not included in the original resolution. There was a flurry in prospect here, which was instantly quieted when Crump sent up word to accept the amendment.

Senator Charles L. Cornelius, another defeated candidate for speaker, and an anti, said he wanted time to study it and asked for a copy and a delay until Friday. Another flurry, another word from the boss, and this was done.

All of which puts Mr. Fitzhugh and Mr. Crump in a rather fine position.

WOMAN TO TELL OF SEEING PAIR IN LOOTED BANK

Mrs. Nicholas J. Boring, 5517 North Spaulding avenue, renter of one of the safe deposit boxes at the closed Lawrence Avenue National bank, which were looted of about $70,000, will be questioned today by Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West regarding the reported visit of a young man and a young woman to the bank after closing hours.

Mrs. Boring, whom Prosecutor West was unable to reach yesterday, has been quoted as saying that she saw the couple enter the bank with a pass key on the afternoon before Christmas, after the bank had closed.

John E. Malloy, youthful assistant cashier of the bank, has been served with a federal warrant charging embezzlement of $10,000 from the cash drawers, although he insists the bank was robbed on Jan. 1 by four bandits. Miss Mary V. Curran, a young woman with whom Malloy kept company, has been questioned by authorities but released.

Federal investigators are convinced that Malloy's story of the holdup is false; and Acting Commissioner of Police Alcock calls the robbery an "inside job." For that reason the investigators are eager to determine whether there were any irregularities in the bank's books which may have provided a motive for the allegedly fake robbery.

The question of liability of the insurance companies indemnifying the bank was considered doubtful by the investigators yesterday. It was pointed out that in case of the safe deposit box losses, the word of the holders would be the only evidence to support claims.

A receiver is to be appointed today.

BANK ROBBED OF $6,500.

Jasper, Ark., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Three unmasked bandits held up the Newton County bank here today and escaped with cash estimated by bank officials at $6,500.

TWO LABOR M. P.'S SNUB PARTY; BALK AT "SOUP 'N' FISH"

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Swallow tails and starched shirts may keep two Labor members of parliament from the forthcoming Institution of Civil Engineers' banquet.

Walter Ayles, Labor M. P. for North Bristol, refused an invitation because he was not permitted to wear a lounge suit. A colleague, D. J. Vaughan, had accepted, but now says he will side with Mr. Ayles.

George Bernard Shaw, prominent Socialist, refuses to wear a dress suit, but his objection is somewhat different. Shaw says his only suit in the world at one time was a dress suit and, being forced to wear it constantly, he had to wait until evening to go for a walk.

INDIAN LEADERS ACCEPT READING'S SAFEGUARD PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Indian round table conference is getting into its stride for the finishing touches, which are expected within a fortnight. All the committees are working at top speed.

The federal structure committee today held three meetings, at which various representative Indians discussed the recent speeches of Lord Reading, former viceroy of India, and Sir Samuel Hoare, Conservative leader. Lord Reading's speech was praised by all the Indians, who were willing to accept the safeguards he suggested for the transition period during the transfer of government to India. The chief speeches were made by Sir Sultan Ahmed and Sir Ben Mitru. Both declared that the safeguards were entirely welcome.

Most of the Indian representatives are delighted with Sir Samuel's speech, in which he opposed self-rule for India, on the ground that if the Conservative party had blessed Indian freedom together with the Liberals and Laborites, Gandhi's congress party would have been convinced that something was being put over on India. The Indians here believe that India will now realize that the conference has accomplished some real work, because of the opposition of the Conservatives.

Barring of Bible from Jail Criticized by Churchmen

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The barring of Bibles from Seattle's city jail drew the opposition of ministers and laymen today.

"Provide every criminal in the country with a Bible and make him read it three times a day," said the Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews of the First Presbyterian church.

CUBAN STUDENTS CREATE HAVOC IN RIOT IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—University students conducted a surprise demonstration in the Havana business district tonight and did damage estimated at several thousand dollars before they could be dispersed by police. The officers fired a number of shots to break up the manifestation.

The students, both boys and girls, suddenly descending from street cars and buses, unfurled revolutionary banners and began a quick march through the throngs. Many windows were smashed.

Abel Marrero, former governor of the 25th district of Rotary International, which comprises the republic of Cuba, was brought here under military guard from Camaguey today, charged with complicity in a plot to overthrow the Cuban government. Luis Machado, present governor of the local Rotary district and general counsel for the American chamber of commerce, offered his aid in obtaining his release.

PUBLIC TO HAVE ITS SAY ON CITY BUDGET OF 1931

Aldermen Set Hearing for Jan. 19.

A public hearing on the proposed 1931 budget was set yesterday by the council finance committee for January 19. The hearing is compulsory under the financial legislation of the special relief session of the legislature.

Representatives of civic organizations and citizens have appeared in other years before the committee while the budget was in the making, but never before, according to the aldermen, has the public had the opportunity to discuss the completed appropriation bill before the committee. The hearing will be held in the council chambers.

Total Reaches $169,590,597.

By the inclusion yesterday of the budgets of the pension funds, public library, and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium and the approval of budgets for the sinking fund for bonds the special assessment fund and the judgment fund the appropriation bill for municipal activities, with the exception of the schools, was raised from $133,779,469 to $169,590,597.

Under the law the council must adopt the budgets of the library, sanitarium, and pension funds and pass a levy for them and for the school board, but has no authority to change any of the appropriations. All of the budgets, with the exception of that of the schools, will be submitted to the council on Saturday.

Telegrams were sent yesterday to all members of the committee requesting them to appear at a meeting today at which salary increases under dispute will be settled and the number of bond issues for the Feb. 24 ballot will be decided. The deadline for council action on bond issues is Saturday.

Asks Firehouse Bond Issue.

The largest issue is that requested by Fire Commissioner Goodrich for $5,670,000 for new firehouses and for repairs to stations.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, has requested two bond issues totaling $6,550,000. One is for $3,500,000 to pay the public benefits on the widening of North State street. The estimated public benefit is set in the assessment roll at $955,000, but it was explained that the remainder is set up in the event that the courts increase the amount the city must pay.

The other Faherty bond proposition is for $3,050,000 for a bridge and viaduct in North Ashland avenue over the north branch of the river and railroad tracks from Armitage avenue to Fullerton avenue at Clybourn.

Asks Bonds for Bridge.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] has requested a bond issue of $1,600,000 for a new bridge at Torrence avenue over the Calumet river. Health Commissioner Kegel seeks $175,000 to build a new isolation hospital.

The committee also will consider placing a further curb on Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe. The tentative decision to transfer Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, from Wolfe's department to the gas and electricity department will be passed upon. The committee's action was taken because of the trouble experienced under Wolfe's administration with the contracts for maintaining curb flashing traffic signals.

'AMERICAN ENVOY CALLS ON NEW PANAMA CHIEFS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 7.—American Minister Roy T. Davis today called on Provisional President Dr. Harmodio Arias and on the new foreign secretary, Francisco Parades. The Italian minister, dean of the diplomatic corps here, also requested an audience and said that his government wished to resume relations with the new government as soon as possible. British, Cuban, Colombian, Ecuadorean, and Chilean ministers also called at the foreign office.

The provisional government this afternoon disbanded the civil guard, paying each man $10 raised by public subscription. At the same time 600 hastily trained uniformed policemen were put to work. Panama City, as well as the interior, is again calm.

Funeral services for Hartwell F. Ayres, American newspaper man, who died today from wounds received in the uprising, will be held in a chapel at Ancon tomorrow. The body will be sent to Anniston, Ala., for burial. An official message will convey Panama's sorrow to relatives.

2½ ACRE TRACT IS BOUGHT BY LINCOLN PARK FOR $134,225

The purchase by the Lincoln park board of a two and a half acre park site at Granville and Ravenswood avenues from the Chicago Town and Tennis club for $134,225 was announced yesterday after a special meeting of the Lincoln park trustees. The new park is to be named after Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and is the first of seven small parks which it is planned to establish on the north side, President Warren Wright of the Lincoln park system said.

DECLARES COURT CAN NOT BLOCK HIGH TAX VALUES

Taxpayers protesting against high assessments cannot obtain relief in the Circuit or Superior courts of Cook county, according to a decision handed down yesterday by Master in Chancery Samuel Berke. The case on which Master Berke ruled was that of Fred Kinderman, Oak Park real estate dealer, who asked for a permanent injunction to restrain the county treasurer from collecting the balance of his tax bill which he refused to pay on the ground that it was excessive.

Knderman owns a 48 apartment building at Washington boulevard and Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. His 1928 tax bill on this property was $5,100, of which he paid $2,630. He declared that his assessment had been made fraudulently and his suit for an injunction was the first of more than a hundred similar suits filed.

Superior Judge Gentzel issued a temporary injunction and referred the case to Master Berke, who found that the courts lacked jurisdiction. The master ruled that the courts could not review the work of the board of assessors. Kinderman, the decision pointed out, had had a hearing before the assessors and that his only recourse after that was in the County court.

The decision, however, stated that Kinderman's assessment was excessive. A hearing on objections will be held Saturday.

MUSCLE SHOALS PLAN WINS POINT, BUT FACES FIGHT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A conference agreement opened the way today for enactment of Muscle Shoals legislation, but leaders agreed that the road through the house and the White House would be rocky.

The conferees agreed upon a compromise bill for operation of the government's $150,000,00 project after months of negotiation extending over from the last session. Three of the five house members capitulated to the senate demands for government construction of the transmission lines, the last important item in controversy.

The conferees will meet again within a few days to work out the remaining details and draft their report which will go first to the house. A bitter contest is expected there over the provision for government construction of the transmission lines.

If the house adopts the report the bill, with routine approval from the senate, will go to the White House. Many members do not believe President Hoover will sign it as now written, although he has not expressed his opinion.

Fear 3 Men Lost on Lake Dead; 3 Rescuers Safe

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 7.—Of six men missing on Lake Ontario three are safe on Amherst island. They reached there tonight. The men were Stanley Fairbanks, Walter Rikely, and Russell Wemp, who left Bath on Sunday night to search for Capt. William Sheridan, Cecil Phillips, and Anthony Kane, who have been missing since Friday. Finding of wreckage of their boat on Amherst island caused the search. It is believed the Sheridan party has perished.

SEE NEW BOOSTS IN SCHOOL BOARD BUDGET REQUEST

Committee Still Meets in Closed Chamber.

Reports of further school board expenditures to be recommended for 1931, in addition to $96,500,000 asked in the preliminary draft of the budget, continued to issue yesterday from the locked private office in the Steuben building where the board's finance committee is holding its meetings. James A. Hemingway, chairman of the committee, has barred the public from the committee meeting.

It was learned after the morning session that the committee is contemplating expansion of the president's contingent fund from $40,000 to $90,000. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, one of the trustees, explained that, since this is a legislative year, lobbying expenses in Springfield probably will necessitate greater expenditures. Expenses incurred in the issuance of bonds also are paid from this fund.

Plan Lobby for Bonds.

The board proposes to send agents to Springfield to urge approval by the legislature of the second half of a $25,000,000 bond issue, the proceeds of which will go to the working cash fund, principally for teachers' salaries.

The sale of $12,500,000 worth of bonds, recently approved in a State Supreme court decision, is now under way. Another bill will ask for a state tax to provide $500,000 annually for the teachers' pension and retirement fund.

While the committee on the budget is scheduled to finish its work before tomorrow night, Mr. Hemingway insisted that "nothing had been done" in the three days the work has been under way. From other sources, it was learned that William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, had made a plea for Prof. Nelson Henry's school expansion program which will add $537,000 to the preliminary budget estimates.

The board is said to favor Prof. Henry's recommendation that more teachers be hired at a cost of $300,000. But creation of a bureau of publicity at $65,000 a year, is not being considered seriously, it was said.

An Explanation on Secrecy.

Mrs. Hefferan yesterday explained Mr. Hemingway's objection to the attendance of newspaper men at the meeting by saying: "He doesn't like to have people sitting around."

In a perfunctory board meeting in the afternoon the trustees hastily moved to transfer $2,135,000 from the working cash fund to the educational fund and adjourned for committee meetings. Mr. Hemingway made the motion to adjourn until Monday afternoon.

Gordon C. Hamilton, representing the A. H. Andrews company, makers of school furniture, appeared before the finance committee to protest the contemplated approval of a low bid of $84,000 by the Coach and Car company for school desks and chairs. The Andrews bid was $88,000, second in line. Hamilton said that the special committee which considered these bids had drawn up new specifications which were indefinite and more expensive. His company, he said, had submitted an alternative bid of $80,000, using former standard measurements. Action on the matter was deferred.

Pope to Issue Important Marriage Encyclical Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 7.—Pope Pius' encyclical on Christian marriage, which is expected to be the most important document issued by the Vatican in recent times, will probably be released tomorrow. Although it is known the encyclical will insist on a tightening up of marriage regulations and call for a general reformation of morals, nothing is known of its exact contents.

LOVE EXPERT'S WIFE IS AWARDED $125 A WEEK ALIMONY

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Dr. Arthur Frank Payne, psychologist, is an expert in love, by his own stated definition.

"Unless one can love," he has written, "one cannot really live. Love is the greatest of all outlets. God help the person who is not loving something or some one."

Dr. Payne's wife, Jennie E. Payne, stating that she wrecked her health to support the expert in love while he was getting an education, has filed an affidavit in the Supreme court alleging that "when his aim was realized, at no time did my husband permit me to share his station and success with him."

Mrs. Payne, preliminary to filing a suit for a separation on the grounds of cruelty, nonsupport, and abandonment, sued for alimony and $125 weekly and $750 in counsel fees were awarded her by Justice Joseph M. Callahan.

Mrs. Payne, now an invalid, set forth that she was married thirty-three years ago when her husband, now earning between $40,000 and $50,000 annually, was an $18 a week silversmith in Wallingford, Conn.

Dr. Payne receives $25 for consultations at his office, he is a professor at the College of the City of New York, gives a weekly lecture, addresses Y. M. C. A. classes, is associated with the new school for social research, director of the guidance clinic and a consulting psychologist of the United States Veterans' bureau.

LIBERIAN ACTION TO END SLAVERY AWAITED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A move by the Liberian government toward abolition of slavery was awaited by the state department tonight as the American government prepared to publish a full report of the investigation of slavery conditions in the Negro republic.

Under Secretary Cotton said the department had not yet received a reply to its demand upon Liberia on Nov. 17 that slavery be abolished and those responsible for it be brought to account.

The demand was contained in a memorandum handed to the Liberian consul general at Baltimore for communication to his government. President King and Vice President Yancy of Liberia resigned after the memorandum was presented to the Liberian legislature.

Aside from bringing pressure of public opinion through publicity, state department officials have not yet determined the course to be taken in insisting upon compliance. Officials discredited suggestions of forcible intervention. Diplomatic pressure through the American legation at Monrovia was being considered, however.

Harvey Firestone Jr. of the Firestone Rubber company of Akron, O., holders of large rubber concessions in Liberia, urged state department officials to insist that their demands be carried out.

EVERY MARQUETTE DEPARTMENT HEAD A STOCKHOLDER

Colds and Throat Infections May Sit Right Beside You!

Every cold and throat infection is caught from somebody else. During the Winter infection is more common than ever. Do the sensible thing—realize that every exposure to crowds exposes you to danger and act accordingly. A reliable defense is offered you in McKesson's Extol. This is the new antiseptic of new germicidal power and penetrative ability. It revolutionizes all former standards of antiseptic mouth washes.

The "10-Second" Germicide

Extol kills germs faster than any ordinary preparation yet known. And it reaches parts that other antiseptics miss. It penetrates the mucous membrane and reaches the germs that lie hidden underneath the outer layer of mucosa. Hence its action is complete and thorough. Extol is the best "ounce of prevention" you can use but if you have already caught a cold or sore throat, it will relieve it in fast time. Extol is utterly harmless and most delightful to use.

Also, it's economical. Costs less than other preparations and, as you can dilute it more liberally, goes further. All McKesson Service Druggists and all independent drug stores sell Extol. Get a bottle today and be forearmed against Winter ills. Note the name, EXTOL—a McKesson & Robbins product.

ENALTY BOOSTS SSESSMENT FOR AWYERS100,000

ersonal property assessments for dents of Hyde Park were made lic yesterday by the board of as- ors. The largest 1930 valuation ng those revealed yesterday was of Attorney Sam B. King who to pay a tax on a valuation of ,000. The King home is at 5417 kstone avenue.

Attorney King failed to file a per- al property tax schedule, so that, ead of paying a tax on a valua- of $200,000, as scheduled in 1929, must pay on $300,000, the penalty failure to schedule being an in- se of 50 per cent over the 1929 ation.

Harding Schedules $2,500 Worth.

George F. Harding, former county rveyor, filed a tax schedule for 2,500 personal property in his home 6833 Lake Park avenue. This idence houses a collection of armor ich is said to be equaled only by of the Metropolitan museum in w York.

Congressman Morton D. Hull, 4855 indlawn avenue, will pay a tax on valuation of $150,000. Corporation unsel Samuel Ettelson, 1023 East 49th street, was penalized $150, rais- g his valuation for 1930 to $450.

Other Assessments Listed.

...ford, Ida F., 5096 Dorchester venue	78,000

More assessments on South Town properties not situated in the loop were made public. The records re- vealed that the Kuppenheimer com- pany, at 415 South Franklin street, failed to file schedule and was pen- alized $122,500, raising the valuation on which it must pay a 1930 person- alty tax to $267,500.

The F. W. Chapman company, 105 West Adams street, was penalized $60,000. The Western Union Telegraph company, 427 South La Salle street, returned a schedule of $573,790, and the Postal Telegraph company, 166 West Van Buren street, scheduled $33,345 worth of personal property.

TREAT THRONG OF JOBLESS AT FREE DENTAL CLINIC

Hundreds of Chicago's unemployed yesterday flocked to the free dental clinic opened on the 11th floor of the Montgomery Ward memorial building on Northwestern university's McKin- lock campus. It is being conducted by the Chicago Dental society. There were old men, young men, girls, and women with children.

"The clinic," Dr. Harris McClain, president of the society, explained, "was organized as an auxiliary of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment com- mission. It will operate six days a week for 90 days. Emergency cases only will be treated, and all perma- nent dental work will have to be post- poned until jobs are obtained."

Organizations coöperating with the society are the American Red Cross, the Cook county bureau of public wel- fare, the Juvenile court, the United Charities, the Chicago Lying-in hos- pital, the Children's Memorial hospital, St. Luke's hospital, and the Visiting Nurse association.

VIENNA FASCISTS RUN WILD; CALL OUT 2,000 POLICE

Angry Mobs Protest U. S. War Movie.

VIENNA, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Members of the Austrian heimwehr and some soldiers of the regular army tonight joined with masses of Fascists who surged riotously through the streets in protest against the American mo- tion picture film, "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Disorders increased rapidly after po- lice blocked all the bridges leading across the Danube to the Jewish quar- ter. Despite the mobilization of 2,000 police, the National Socialists ran riot in many parts of the Austrian capital. Manyy persons were wounded and more than 100 arrests were made.

Precautions were taken to protect Jewish residents, since all Fascist pro- tests against the film, both here and in Germany, have been directed against Jews as well as the alleged pacifistic sentiments of the picture. The theater where the picture was shown tonight is in the Jewish quarter across the river.

Jewish Shops Close Up.

This theater, the Schwedenkino, was used after demonstrators last week set fire to the Apollo after more than a week of manifestations against the film. All Jewish shops nearby closed early this afternoon.

Repulsed by mounted police guard- ing the Urania bridge and equally un- successful in forcing across the other spans, mobs of Fascists, with the heim- wehr and soldiers backing them, flared into action on their own side of the river, racing through the streets, smashing café windows and battling police.

Police swung rubber truncheons heavily and laid out many of the dem- onstrators, but were unable to check the trouble completely, the trouble completely. At midnight, however, order was fairly well restored.

Raid Newspaper Office.

Bands of shouting manifestants broke loose after dispersals of a pro- cession which began at the Prater, a popular park, and headed for the theater, smashing windows of a Jew- ish café in the Rothenturmstrasse.

Others knocked the glass from the Franzensbruecken restaurant, the Café Cristall, and the Neues Wiener Jour- nal, destroying the furniture in the latter two places.

The picture was shown twice while this commotion was taking place across the river, but the third per- formance was interrupted after a few Fascists got inside and set off stench bombs, driving out the audience.

Wide protests have marked the showing of the picture both in Aus- tria and Germany, where it was with- drawn after much trouble. The film, made in Hollywood from a book written by a eGrman, depicts the life of the German private soldier in the world war.

STEEL HELMETS HATS, NOT HARDWARE, SAYS JUDGE IN RATE CASE

The decision was made in a suit brought by the Chesapeake and Ohio railway against Sternheimer brothers to collect $14.78 on five shipments of helmets from St. Joseph, Mo. A de- cision for the defendants, who claimed the headgear was hardware and should pay a lower freight rate, rendered in Civil Justice court, was reversed by today's finding.

Fire Attorney Hogan Wins Praise for 1930 Record

Fire Commissioner Goodrich yester- day commended Fire Attorney Scott M. Hogan for his work during 1930 in investigating 1,130 fires with the result that 58 arrests were made. Of those arrested 31 were indicted by the grand jury and 18 convicted of arson. Ten persons against whom the evidence was weak were fined for the misde- meanor of causing a blaze, according to the annual report of Attorney Hogan. Four pyromaniacs were sent to asylums and six persons were fined for turning in false alarms.

BRITAIN SELLS 4 BILLIONS IN SAVINGS STAMPS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The prince of Wales tonight paid tribute to thou- sands of small investors all over Great Britain who by saving have demonstrated one way at least of meeting business depression since the war.

Overruling the family mourning for the princess royal, Louise, the prince joined American Ambassador Dawes and leaders of British finance to ex- press his admiration of the British national savings movement, which to- day boasted of having sold its bil- lionth certificates, a replica of which was presented to King George at Sandringham today, incased in a leather box with the royal arms stamped upon it. It arrived fourteen and one-half years after Queen Mary had bought the first certificate, at a time when sponsors of the scheme hoped possibly 5,000,000 certificates would be sold.

Centuries of thrift in business looked down upon tonight's celebra- tion, which was held in the old hall of a fishmonger's company alongside London bridge. Gold and silver plate gleamed from the walls as a symbol of wealth which old London guilds have accumulated in 100 years of ex- istence. The wealth in the hall and the wealth of the financiers at the dinner tables was little, however, com- pared with $4,000,000,000 which Brit- ish savers have accumulated in shil- lings, sixpences, and pennies during the years of Britain's post-war busi- ness slump.

Belcastro, a Public Enemy, Caught, Freed in 4 Hours

James Belcastro, No. 4 on the list of public enemies issued last April 24 by the Chicago Crime commission, established what was said to be a rec- ord for a quick release of a hoodlum last night when arrested at 22d street and Wentworth avenue by Sergt. Andy Carroll of the detective bureau. He was put in a cell at 6 charged with disorderly conduct. He walked out at 10, on a $100 cash bond. Bel- castro is awaiting trial before Judge John H. Lyle on a vagrancy warrant, under a $10,000 bond.

GANG GLAMOUR OF TARDI FADES AT DEATH QUIZ

Victim Revealed as Down and Outer.

The reputation for gang leadership borne by Patsy Tardi until six months ago did not fit him yesterday. At an inquest into the murder of Tardi, the 24 year old product of west side streets, it developed that "Two Gun Patsy" had been down and out, a bum, dependent upon his aged father for the meals eaten by himself, his wife and his 15 month old baby, Mæde- line, until he was shot down Tuesday night as he was walking at Miller and Polk streets with Ralph Costanzo, who was wounded.

"Did Patsy have a gun?" Deputy Coroner Jacob Schemel asked Mrs. Jean Tardi, the 20 year old widow.

"He used to have a revolver or two but we sold them for money for food," Mrs. Tardi replied. "He had not worked at anything for six months."

Auto Burned, She Says.

"Did he have an automobile?" the deputy asked.

"He did but some one burned it up three weeks ago," came the answer. "No, I didn't know anything about his business or his friends."

Lieut. Maurice Wall said he had arrested Tardi six months ago, at which time he was ragged and was going to his parents' home for his meals.

"When he was killed he had on the same clothes he wore six months ago," Lieut. Wall said. "Holes were in the soles of his shoes and his bare feet were touching the sidewalk. We found he was still going to his folks home to eat. Throughout the district where he once was rated highly he had been known as an ex-big shot."

Held in Lingle Case.

Tardi was arrested and held for sev- eral days as a suspect in the shooting of Alfred Lingle which occurred on June 9. It was a month after his release that Lieut. Wall encountered him. For a few days Tardi was re- garded by his fellow members of the 42 gang as a celebrity, Lieut. Wall said, but the notoriety soon faded away. Once before Tardi had achieved gang recognition—when he killed Danny Hartnett after Hartnett shot him, and Hartnett had been rated as a first class gunman.

Representative of the state's at- torney's offices, present at the inquest, said they intended investigating the possibility that Tardi's slaying and the murder Sunday morning of August Battaglia were related events. Cos- tanzo, in the Mother Cabrini hospital suffering from two gunshot wounds in the abdomen, told the police he knew nothing of the shooting—either the reason for it or who did it—and said he believed only Tardi was an in- tended victim.

Another possible gang murder was being investigated yesterday, follow- ing the complaint of Mrs. Dorothy Witte, 1118 Hyde Park boulevard, that her husband, Herman, has been miss- ing since Dec. 9. She was told, she said, that he had left town after with- holding $20,000 he collected for Al Capone.

PROUD STATES AND BEGGING SENATORS.

Among the senators who are demanding that the federal government should undertake to provide food for their constituencies is Senator Barkley of Kentucky, who in presenting letters and telegrams of appeal declared that they disclose conditions "unbelievable in a proud and self-sustaining community."

We, too, had always thought of Senator Barkley's state as "proud and self-sustaining." Kentucky is certainly proud and has been normally self-sustaining so far as we know. But what is the senator of a proud and self-sustaining community doing with its pride and independence while begging for federal money at Washington?

What are the conditions in Kentucky which justify this appeal for federal charity to feed the hungry? Are they so devastating that proud and self-sustaining Kentuckians cannot meet them? Feeding the hungry is not an overwhelming burden in any American state. It is a duty, and for a proud and self-sustaining community we suggest it is a privilege to carry it proudly and self-sustainingly. It is a problem to be solved by local resources, local initiative, and independence, unless the state is destitute, and we have no evidence that Kentucky or any other proud and self-sustaining community in the United States is in that condition.

The appeal from Oklahoma is equally astonishing. Oklahoma has produced and is producing great wealth in at least one commodity. Have all its beneficiaries left the state or are they simply not taking advantage of the opportunity to contribute to the relief of their fellow citizens who have been stricken by drought conditions? The drought is described as a calamity of the nature of a great flood, fire, earthquake, or hurricane. We do not minimize the suffering it is occasioning. But the relief of individuals who are lacking food in certain districts should be provided by private means through philanthropic agencies, both those already established and such as have been set up in most communities for the unemployment emergency. State aid may be added, if needed, by emergency measures. The resort to the central government seems easier, but it is contrary to sound policy.

If the states have any reason for existence as sovereign commonwealths and are not to sink into the status of mere administrative districts of a huge and remote centralized bureaucratic government at Washington they must accept the responsibility of sovereignty as well as its privileges. There is plenty of precedent for national aid for local purposes, and most of it is subversive of the wise American scheme of a union of sovereign states. Private philanthropy, local initiative, state action in so far as it is required, can meet individual suffering from the lack in certain districts of food, fuel, and the common necessities.

The resort to Washington for relief of this character is another sign of the tendency to disparage local self-government, the essential guardian of our liberties, and to build up a vast centralized power founded on parasitic politics and bureaucracy. The sufferings of the people in the drought districts are deplorable. It is painful to know that there can be hunger in such a country as ours, especially at a time when we are supposed to be suffering from overproduction of food products, but there is a wise way to deal with them and a foolish way.

The fact is that politicians at Washington are getting into the national limelight as friends of the suffering but practicing the old system of getting federal money for the folks at home. They are doing very little honor to their states, but they are perverting or trying to pervert the effort to deal with conditions wisely and self-respectingly. It is the plain duty of states and communities to deal with local conditions and the problems of direct relief which they are able and competent to meet. This is the responsibility of the states under the American system, and the politicians sent by them to Washington should respect it.

IMPROPER BANK NAMES.

Far be it from us to call for more laws, yet it would seem that some regulation in the choice of bank names might be justified. Recently an institution called the Bank of the United States failed disastrously in New York City. A large number of its depositors were aliens, many of whom could not read English and all of whom had little knowledge of banking conditions. These individuals undoubtedly were under the impression that because of its name the bank had some support from the government. They may very well have thought it a part of the government, supported by all the wealth of the country. The institution, it is reported, had been for some time a matter of concern because of its policies or methods, but, of course, there would be no warning to its depositors.

At any rate, the bank's name was deceptive in its implications. Banks doing business with aliens or in districts in which direct acquaintance with the institution and its management is impracticable ought not to take names which are possible of misconstruction. Banking ethics ought to prevent it, but in the very cases in which improper names are likely to have the worst effects they are likely to be chosen. A general regulation by law would be difficult, but organized banking pressure might be properly applied. It is not a common or general evil, but might have the attention of the banking fraternity.

The school board's finance committee is at work on the school budget for 1931. No reporters representing the public and the taxpayers are permitted to attend the meetings of the committee, although considerably more than a third of all the local taxes collected in Chicago are spent by the school board. The board this year has $95,000,000 to dispose of.

Nevertheless, the public is not permitted to know the considerations prompting the committee in its division of this enormous sum. The chairman of the committee, James A. Hemingway, who was appointed to the board by Mayor Thompson to kick King George's snoot, says that the meetings of the full board at which the budget will be considered will be open meetings. That may well be too late. The moment for bringing pressure to bear for a sound budget is when the appropriations are in committee.

The matter of an additional appropriation of $300,000 for teachers in the elementary grades is typical. Classes in the grades are too large. More teachers would mean smaller classes and better instruction. Mr. Hemingway has said that the committee has determined that the additional appropriation is out of the question this year, but he has failed to give the evidence submitted to the committee bearing on the point. There is every reason to suspect that Mr. Hemingway refuses to admit reporters to the meetings precisely because the committee's decisions such as this one, if all facts were known, would not bear examination. The most important single task which the board of education faces is to provide sound elementary instruction. If it cannot find an additional $300,000 for its most important task when it has $95,000,000 to spend, the board must be signally weak.

It seems to be the judgment of Mr. Hemingway and his colleagues that their work will be less exposed to criticism if it is done in secret. The fact is that if they worked openly, like honest men and honest public officials, they might be suspected at worst of errors of judgment on particular issues; as it is, their entire work is under suspicion. When men hide, it is fair to assume that they are hiding for a purpose. What is the finance committee trying to conceal?

CAREERS IN THE SENATE.

Prof. Dewey's little testing of the radical spirit in the senate, with his third party suggestion to the Republican noncomformists, touched ice and not fire. He seems to have been prepared for this, but remarks that the radicals lack courage and prefer sniping. Many of the intellectuals associated with Prof. Dewey himself are regarded, by Norman Thomas, for instance, as pitiful temporizers who timidly nibble at reform ideas but withdraw from any real test. They supported Al Smith and not Mr. Thomas for President. Mr. Thomas in turn is no doubt a very mild creature to Stalin, if indeed worthy of a thought, and at times Stalin may be disgusted with himself. Mussolini, getting enough of all of it, jumped the fence to absolutism.

Dr. Dewey found that Mr. Borah, Mr. Norris, Mr. Nye, Mr. Brookhart, etc., have good enough reasons for preferring the Republican table to the husks of independence and a third party. He suspects that they have no thought of changing Republican habits or ideas but enjoy their irregularities within the privileges of regularity.

Third parties are likely to whisk their promoters quickly into political obscurity. That is unpleasant. It is unnatural to desire it. The radicals do not. There is political sagacity in just the program they follow. They are, for the most part, from the smaller states and without eccentricity or nonconformity might be unnoticed in the events of congress. Many a man goes to Washington and leads a pleasant life undisturbed by printer's ink, but this is not to the liking of all. Regularity is bound to put the average fellow in the average place.

Nonconformity not only takes the radical out of obscurity but it makes his political going easier at home. It gratifies the people at home to observe that their representatives must be considered at Washington. If they worry the big states all the better. There are intimations of virtue in that.

Mr. Nye as the censor of elections in the wealthy and populous states is a figure of importance to his constituents. He can make these other electorates and their candidates behave. In that commanding posture there is benefit for him at home and distinction in Washington. These advantages are easily gained. Mr. Norris as an opponent of wealth attains notable proportions. If he were a Socialist this would be taken for granted. He would be taken for granted. Nothing would come of it because nothing would be thought of it. Mr. Norris gains his distinctions by being an irregular in the Republican party. If he gave up the party he would give up his advantage of position.

Dr. Dewey found that none of the nonconformists cared to be so eccentric as to surrender these advantages by following what would seem to be the natural direction of their principles. That would take away the background and they would become inconspicuous. Norman Thomas would dominate them. There would be no benefit in that. They prefer to worry Mr. Fess. That is a career.

Editorial of the Day

TOWN DETOURS.

[The Rotarian.]

Rotary clubs in small American cities have frequently regarded it as an achievement to have helped route motor highways through their main streets. But often they rue their successes. Instead of bringing profitable trade the pikes have brought a spawn of traffic troubles.

In the old world numerous villages that have found themselves on heavily used thoroughfares have solved the problem by posting signs at the outskirts requesting the speeding travelers to detour around the town. Those who care to stop are welcomed. The advantage is obvious to the motorist, for he need not slacken his pace, while the townsfolk are pleased because once again they may tread their own streets in comparative safety.

GOOD ROADS IN PANAMA.

WITHIN ten years good roads have been built over much of the republic of Panama. If present plans are continued the end of the just beginning decade will see a national highway from the Costa Rican border on the northwest to the Colombian border on the southeast, with feeder lines at intervals. Within the Canal Zone there are the newly constructed Madden highway and various paved roads joining together different posts and towns. A proposed continuation of the Madden highway, together with the Panama-Summitt road, will form the American Interoceanic highway.

The development of these great highway systems is proving both disadvantageous and helpful from the health standpoint. The residents of the Zone, for whose health our government is responsible, are being exposed to smallpox, malaria, and other diseases because of the newly created currents of travel between the Zone and the interior. Protecting the health of our Zone population is certain to be more difficult and expensive. On the other hand, the people of the Panamanian interior are learning how to care for their health. In every Panamanian village the authorities have dug at least one village well. The larger towns have put in public water supplies with water mains, piping, bath tubs, and toilets. In these larger places there are sewage systems. In the smaller villages every house has a newly erected sanitary privy. In a few there are health departments and an occasional community has a small hospital.

A resident tells me that it is easy to note the elevation of standards which follow the completion of a highway into a new town and across a new section. They are justified in expecting better health and less communicable disease among the population away from the Zone. And when that day comes, the health of the canal workers can again be maintained with ease. Thus works the law of compensation. Temporary misfortunes often become ultimate gains.

NUMB HANDS AND FEET.

Mrs. T. D. writes: Is there anything that could be done to relieve numb hands and feet caused by anemia? I have not lost the power of either and can get around as usual and feel good. The surface of the skin is always cold and dry.

REPLY.

About all you can do is to treat the anemia with liver, liver extract, or stomach extract.

DIPHTHERIA ANTITOXIN.

Mrs. A. M. writes: Would diphtheria antitoxin, administered to an 18 month old child, in two doses of 20,000 units each, 12 hours apart, cause death, when a culture taken just before the first injection proved negative?

REPLY.

Not unless the child was sensitized to serums. I presume the diagnosis was established by some means. It is customary to test for sensitization to serum.

WARTS CAN BE REMOVED.

Miss J. J. writes: I have many warts about my hands and face.

REPLY.

Some warts appear to be due to microbes of some sort and are catching. Others are not. Where there are many warts they are apt to be of the infective variety. They do no special harm and maybe your beau prefers you with warts. If not, your physician can remove them.

STOMACH WORMS.

J. S. writes: Please state the symptoms of stomach worms that grown people have.

REPLY.

By stomach worms you mean ordinary round worms. As a rule, such worms cause few symptoms. Finding a worm is about the only dependable symptom.

CROSSED EYES.

A reader writes: Is it possible for a person 36 years of age to have crossed eyes straightened by operation?

REPLY.

It is. However, there may be no vision in one eye. The crossed eye gradually forgets how to see. In a man of your age, cross eyed for years, the crossed eye is probably good for nothing except as an ornament.

NO SUCH LAW.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A soldier's son, age 14, father deceased but mother living, has gone to spend the winter with his grandmother in Michigan. The law of that state requires nonresidents to pay tuition while attending high school. Is there a federal law to the effect that soldiers' orphans are exempt from payment of such tuition? C. P.

No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO BECOME A CITIZEN.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine wishes to become a United States citizen, but does not know how to go about it. He came to this country in 1923, entering illegally. He stayed and worked, married, and has a family. He has been here continuously. How can he become a citizen? A. B.

There is no provision of law under which he may become a citizen unless he makes a legal entry into the United States in accordance with the immigration law. This can only be done by him leaving the United States and making a legal entry.

POSTOFFICE CLERK.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—I worked as an extra at the postoffice during the Christmas rush. I think I would like to become a postal clerk. Can you find out for me when the next examination for postal clerks is to be held? E. W. S.

The date of the next examination for postoffice clerk at Chicago has not been determined. It is not expected, however, that the examination will be held for several months.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. —Ed.

SOME GADGETS THEY'VE OVERLOOKED.

The auto shows for the new model cars are exciting madly applauding throngs, BUT if you ask us they don't go far enough. There's all sorts of new gadgets and doodads for the cars, but the trouble is that inventors haven't paid the slightest attention to the drivers. Where is a gadget that when properly fastened to a driver will stop him from driving against the red light and busting into an innocent car that's minding its own business and saying nothing to nobody and proceeding peacefully on its way according to the law? Where is the new fangled doodad shaped like a big hickory club fastened to a driver so that it automatically biffs him one over the bean when he starts out full of hootch? Where is the gadget that gives a driver a swift rap over the knuckles when he suddenly jumps his car out of a side road right into the middle of traffic on the main road? Why has not some genius invented an apparatus connected with a phonograph that will begin to yell, "Quit it, you darned fool, that engine's bigger than you are!" whenever a wild-eyed auto driver tries to race a train for the crossing? Where is the new thingamajig that automatically puts on the brakes and gives the driver a sock in the jaw all at one and the same time when he tries to pass another car on a sharp curve at forty or fifty miles an hour? Where is the double drop synchro-mesh doofunny that automatically runs a careless driver into the ditch as he is about to run down a crippled pedestrian hobbling across the road? Gosh! And not one of those new things is being exhibited at this year's auto shows. Too bad! Come on, inventors, get on the job!

You were wise in wondrous ways
And one way surely when you said,
"April will bring you flowers merry-mad;
Summer will find them dead.

"April will bring you laughter, gay
Laughter to echo down the long
Aisles of silence that will follow after
As silence follows song.

"Learn to hold things lightly, learn
To value nothing overmuch.
Pride is the bravest panoply I know
And pride is dust at touch."

Yes, you were wise in wondrous ways
And I would be an urn to hold
Your wisdom in the small sealed heart of me

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 8, 1915.

ROME.—Italy has fixed Jan. 10 as the time limit for Turkey to apologize formally for the Hodeida incident or suffer the consequences. Italy will not be satisfied unless the reparation includes the release of the British consul who was seized in the Italian consulate, the punishment of the violators of the consulate, and a military salute to the flag.

BERLIN. — The German army authorities have issued a general order prohibiting in the future troops in the field from fraternizing with the enemy as they did at several points on the western front at Christmas. At one place the Germans and British played football Christmas day.

THE HAGUE. — The German military government in Belgium characterized the report published in the Amsterdam Tijd that Cardinal Mercier, archbishop of Malines, had been arrested, as absolutely false. It also is denied that any priests have been arrested. The denial is silent on the case of Dessain, the printer, who published the cardinal's Christmas pastoral letter, but it is understood the story concerning him is also a fabrication.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 8, 1901.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Between twenty and thirty children are dead and at least forty injured, many so badly they cannot recover, as a result of a fire which wrecked the Hubbell Orphan asylum in this city. There were 180 inmates and nearly all leaped from the windows or were hurled out by attendants.

CHICAGO.—J. Ogden Armour, upon whose shoulders falls the burden of directing the future management of the vast interests left by the death of his father, Philip D. Armour, is a young man to occupy such a prominent place in the commercial world. He was born in Milwaukee 38 years ago and immediately after graduating from college entered the employ of the packing company, his brother, the late Philip D. Armour Jr., going into the business at the same time. Mr. Armour resides at 3724 Michigan avenue, his house there being considered one of the finest in the country.

CHICAGO.—A warrant for the arrest of Potter Palmer was issued by Justice J. C. Everett on the complaint of Frank Hall. The complaint alleges that on Sunday, Jan. 6, Mr. Palmer kept open a common tippling house, where drinks were sold in violation of the statutes of the state. Hall asserts that while the front doors of the Palmer House café were closed, access could be had to the bar from the hotel, and that drinks were sold.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gov. Cullom's message to the legislature recommends that the Illinois and Michigan canal be turned over to the general government so that it may be improved and enlarged into a ship canal.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Representative Newberry of Michigan, hitherto chiefly known as the richest man in the house, and little heard from, broke loose in an attack on Great Britain, charging that country with being privy to the Halifax rascality. He demonstrated that in his ability to arraign the British government he is the equal of Zack Chandler, who was noted for his speeches in which he sought to arouse the British lion and to denounce "perfidious Albion."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The senate confirmed the appointment of F. W. Palmer to be postmaster at Chicago and of Miss Emma A. Gale to be postmaster at Delavan, Ill.

CHICAGO.—John B. Gough, noted temperance lecturer, spoke before a large audience in Central Music hall under auspices of Company H of the 1st regiment, I. N. G.

CHICAGO.—George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R., installed E. A. Blodgett as commander; J. A. Freeman, senior vice commander; R. Powel, adjutant, and Andrew Young, W. V.

BREAD AND CIRCUSES.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Your editorial, "Discarding the American Faith," discloses a sturdy masculine grasp of fundamental Americanism too seldom met with in the published utterances of our day.

But you may expect to be misunderstood and misconstrued. When the poor laws of England were proposed, they were assailed by the matchless intellect of Herbert Spencer. His logic was faultless. Nor can it be said that he was devoid of altruism, or without human sympathy, for he gave us the parole system, the most far reaching reform of punitive justice since Plato.

The public largess, under whatever name it may be clothed, finds no authorization in the original concept of American federalism. Strictly speaking, the government has nothing to give. When it takes from its people more than is reasonably necessary for the economic administration of federal affairs its taxation becomes confiscation.

We are starting dangerous precedents. To relieve wheat growers we have already dug deeply into the federal treasury. In some future day, how shall we answer the starving multitudes of our cities? How long before our ears shall attend the olden cry for bread and circuses? THOMAS SPEED MOSBY.

RESPECT FOR THE POLICE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Allow me to say a few words giving reasons just why the public feels the way they do toward the police. If police would enforce the laws as they should without showing any partiality to any one they would be more respected even by the people to whom they try to be lenient, for the general impression formed by a person who is shown leniency is the fact that they know they can be fixed.

The writer plays the horses for pastime and often visits the various rooms where bets can be placed and where sheets are placed on the walls giving the latest information which is helpful to the player, and on fifty occasions I have seen police squads walk into the room and act real tough, insulting every one they come in contact with, and tell them all to get ready as the wagon is coming, and then one of the proprietors will step out and call them aside and give them some money and a handful of cigars, and out they go just as meek and humble as can be.

Only on one occasion have I seen the police take a proprietor, and this man wasn't gone ten minutes when he came back and opened the place again for business, and he said they rode him around the block and he gave them a hundred dollars, and, while I didn't see the money pass, I did see him return in ten minutes and with the data that the officers grabbed when they first came in.

The fact that betting is legalized in this state and that the state derives part of the proceeds taken in at the tracks makes the writer feel that he is committing no crime in visiting the rooms any more than if he would journey to one of the tracks. ERNEST GUILFORD.

PUBLIC CONTRACTS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 2.—In view of the present and future programs with all public bodies are fostering, I believe it an opportune time to put before the public one of the worst conditions that prevail in connection with the advertising for bids and awarding of public contracts.

It has been proven that letting general contracts for building and engineering projects is more costly than letting separate contracts for the several branches of work under any project.

In face of this fact different departments of our governing bodies have made it a practice to take general bids only on many projects, thereby barring the individual contractor and stifling competition.

If the taxpayers are to be considered let every public body be absolutely honest in the spending of our money by taking for bids on separate branches of every project or on any combination of branches, and awarding contracts to the best advantage of the taxpayers.

A. F. BOWEN.

RAIL VS. TRUCK.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 5.—There is no economy in permitting the use of huge and trucks of such width and length as to create extreme hazards to highway travelers and of such weight as to destroy the highways.

If the present situation continues many miles of railway will deteriorate and eventually become junk, many concerns will not receive their customary one or two hundred thousands of dollars in taxes from the railroads, additional taxes will have to be levied on other property to make up the difference and also to build heavier highways, and an extremely dangerous situation will be created in the attempt to transport the bulk of the nation's traffic in this manner.

This is not a gloomy outlook. There is ample evidence that our highways are not standing up under the strain and unless constructive measures are devised before further damage is done the bargain in the way of cheap transportation will not seem so attractive.

HERMAN A. SAWYER.

GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—How often we hear after automobile accidents that "they were crossing the railroad track and their engine went dead." Now, there must be a reason for so many engines going dead at the moment of crossing tracks. It may be that this cause of accidents is due in a large measure to the magnetic attraction of the steel rails and the overmagnetized automobile engine "freezing" or stalling the working parts. Usually railroad tracks are accompanied by highly charged electric wires. Although insulated, they may induce powerful magnetic attraction in connection with the steel rails, at the same time the all-metal automobile with its heavy engine is immediately over the railroad track. WHAT DR. BUTLER OBJECTS TO

[New York World.]

LUCAS EXCEEDED AUTHORITY, SAYS TREASURER NUTT

But Doesn't Blame Him for Opposing Norris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Had Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, been running things during the 1930 campaign there would not be any fuss now over Robert H. Lucas, the committee's executive director, the $4,000 loan Lucas secured by pledging party funds, and the secret campaign he carried out against Senator George W. Norris, radical Republican of Nebraska.

Nor would Mr. Nutt himself have had to testify as he did today before the Nye senatorial campaign committee and answer questions by the radical Republican Senator Nye of North Dakota and the Democratic Senator Dill of Washington seeking to impeach the motives of the Republican party.

Lucas had no business pledging the national committee's special account in order to secure the $4,000 he had borrowed to finance anti-Norris propoganda, Mr. Nutt told Senator Dill.

Says He Made Mistake.

"He exceeded his authority," he replied to Senator Nye. "He made a mistake in judgment in doing what he did in Nebraska. He never should have given his note for the loan, and the letter he wrote pledging money in the special account never should have been written."

Furthermore, said Mr. Nutt, the Republican party should openly have declared hands off in Nebraska. He had told Senator Fess so, after Senator Fess had made a statement promising Senator Norris support. He had tried to get Senator Fess to repudiate that statement, he said, because Senator Norris supported Al Smith in 1928 and isn't a true Republican and it will be time to help him when he gets back in line.

As far as the $50,000 special account which Senator Nye once called a slush fund was concerned Mr. Nutt had an answer ready.

The special account was created to find out help to certain congressional districts. And the money wasn't distributed through the congressional committee because—

"You senators have a little club of your own," he explained. "And so do the congressmen, and if one district got a little extra help, then there would be criticism and other districts would want more."

His Job Financial One.

All he did was handle the financial side, and he'd reported that side according to law. Once he turned over the money, it was up to the politicians to spend it and turn in their reports.

"You've got to hold these fellows down," he explained. "If we had added $60,000 to the $250,000 already furnished the congressional committee they'd have wanted $310,000 for the next campaign."

Refering to Lucas he remarked: "Lucas made a mistake in judgment, but I don't blame him for fighting Norris. That may not be good politics, but that's the way I look at it."

Mr. Nutt loaned Lucas $3,500 a few days ago, so that the loan might be paid off in full.

Nutt Makes Personal Loan.

"I called him," said Mr. Nutt, "and told him the loan must be cleaned up, that I wasn't going to have the national committee mixed up. So I sent him my personal check."

In reply to a question by Senator Nye, he said: "I have a right to use my private funds any way I want. Yes, and I gave Henry Allen of Kansas $1,000 for his campaign. I had a right to do it and I'd do it again."

Mr. Nutt said he was not concerned over report from Galen L. Tait of Maryland, who had received $4,000 from the special account, and J. Matt Chilton of Kentucky, who got $6,500, as they had until Jan. 10 to file reports.

Asked if he disapproved of Senator Norris because of the Nebraskan's stand on the power issue, Mr. Nutt said:

"For more than sixteen years I haven't had a dollar invested in any power company, and that applies to my family, too."

2 ARE FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN FEUD OF ST. LOUIS GANGS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The bullet pierced bodies of Leo Orlando, Cuckoo gangster, and Isadore Katz, a hanger-on of the Cuckoos, were found in northern St. Louis county early today. They had been dead several hours.

St. Louis police said they believed the killing of the two men was the latest outburst of the gang feuds in which Lester Barth and Dewey Goebel were machine gunned to death Nov. 22 and in which Louis Mulconry met a like fate Dec. 19.

The bodies were found lying about 10 feet apart, near a bridge over Coldwater creek.

Orlando, 28, had a police record of more than 100 arrests. He, James Dormondy, and Louis Mandel, all known to be members of the Cuckoo gang, were charged with the midnight murder of Dr. August H. Sante, who was shot to death in his office Feb., 1927, when he failed to respond to a call to attend Dormondy's mother, who died. The three were not convicted, but Mandel and Dormondy were later shot to death.

COURT UPHOLDS LAW LICENSING OUTSIDE TRUCKS

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The Nebraska Supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of a law requiring trucks from other states operating in Nebraska to be licensed within this state.

The statute had been attacked by Peter S. Peterson of Underwood, Ia., on behalf of a number of western Iowa truckers hauling live stock to the South Omaha markets.

Peterson alleged that the law violated the interstate commercial clause of the federal constitution.

The court commented in its opinion handed down today:

"Experience has taught the necessity of regulating motor traffic on state highways. Since the state is expending millions annually for improvement and upkeep of its highways it is legal to collect a reasonable fee for enforcement of regulations on the highway and for improving and maintaining them."

Steering Committee Plan Meets Censure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Four measures were given preferred places on a program announced today by the Republican steering committee of the senate.

First on the list was the Howell prohibition enforcement bill applying to the District of Columbia. Next was the house bill for a shorter work week for postal employés. Third was the house bill revising civil war pensions. Fourth was the Cutting-Hawes bill for Philippine independence.

Appropriation bills will have the right of way over all other legislation.

Thought to Brew Trouble.

The program caused considerable speculation. Many senators thought it promised to cause controversy and embarrass the efforts of the administration to avoid a special session.

The general theory seemed to be that these particular bills had been scheduled as the unfinished business in turn in order to keep other measures from obtaining consideration. Unwillingness to allow the other bills, such as the anti-injunction bill, to come up, it was thought, might stir the radicals to trouble.

There is no prospect, it is said, that either the Howell bill or the Philippine independence bill will become law at this session.

Look Ahead to Next Congress.

Republicans in the house made plans today to organize the next congress. A call for a caucus of Republicans elected to the 72d congress was issued by Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the Republican congressional committee, and Representative W. C. Hawley [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the Republican caucus. It will be held Thursday, Feb. 26. Nominations for speaker and other officers will be made.

Representative Harold Knutson [Rep., Minn.], who is in line by seniority for chairman of the house insular affairs committee, served notice today on the leaders that unless he is given the place he will vote with the Democrats to organize the house. There has been a plan to give the chairmanship to Representative C. L. Beedy [Rep., Me.] because of Mr. Knutson's advocacy of Philippine independence, which is opposed by the administration.

UPPER SILESIAN MINERS, INCITED BY REDS, STRIKE

Ignore Union Orders to Stay at Work.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—A "wild strike" broke out today in the Upper Silesian mines. The strike was instigated by communist agitators, who rushed from the Ruhr valley seeking to retrieve their defeat in western Germany.

The full extent of this new movement will not be discernible until tomorrow, but more than half of the miners in ten of the collieries have already laid down their tools. The unions tonight appealed to the strikers to resume work, pointing out that the question of the Upper Silesian wages had been postponed until after the Ruhr wage dispute had been settled.

A little more than 3 per cent of the Ruhr miners today absented themselves from work, including those who had been dismissed for the recent "wild strike." The wage arbitration proceedings at Essen today were fruitless and were adjourned.

Reds Jeer Chancellor.

Chancellor Bruening today met his first opposition on his tour through the eastern part of Germany to investigate reports of Polish outrages. Fascisti and communists united in jeering at him outside the Insterburg railway station and it was with difficulty that the police cleared the street around the town hall, where a reception was held. Later the Fascisti and communists started to fight among themselves. Twelve were injured. Four received very serious knife wounds.

There were further demonstrations by communists, who assembled on the station platform at Johannisburg, as the chancellor arrived, and chanted: "We want work and bread." Members of the farmers' "black flag" organization chanted: "We have been auctioned off. We ask for bread."

Britain Faces Lockout.

BURNLEY, England, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A lockout involving 25,000 workers in the cotton trade was threatened tonight by a decision of the Burnley Master Cotton Spinners' association, members of which voted to close their mills Saturday unless a strike now in effect at other plants is settled in the meantime.

At present 5,000 weavers are on strike against the introduction of the "eight looms per weaver" system in certain mills. The men heretofore have tended four looms, and they contend that the new schedule would greatly increase unemployment.

If the lockout goes into effect 2,500 other weavers will be affected immediately and officials fear the entire textile industry, employing 500,000 men, ultimately will become involved in the stoppage. Other important developments are expected at a meeting of the Northern Counties Textile Trades federation in Manchester tomorrow.

ROB COLLEGE SAFE.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Cracksmen last night wrecked two Morningside college safes and stole $150.

2 CENT POSTAGE TO BE RETAINED, AUTHORITY SAYS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Letter writers were told today a 2 cent stamp will continue to carry their mail.

Representative Kelly, ranking Republican on the postoffice committee, said in the house that the 2½ cent cost proposed by Postmaster General Brown would not be adopted.

As a service giving institution, Kelly said, "the postoffice is today the most efficient organization on earth. The postoffice has been built on the basis of low rates and large volumne."

Increased volume and better morale of the workers, he concluded, "will do more to accomplish the end desired by the officials of the department than the recommendations they have made to congress."

ARMOUR WIDOW, MILLIONS RICHER, TAKES NEW HOME

$8,216,000 Paid to Her for Oil Process.

Mrs. Lolita Sheldon Armour, widow of J. Ogden Armour, yesterday celebrated her return to wealth in receiving $8,216,058 for 400 shares of stock, once believed to be worthless, by moving into her new home at 295 East Vine avenue, Lake Forest. The new home is two miles east of the 833 acre former estate of the family, Mellody Farm, with its mansion.

The Lake Forest home is a modest one, with five acres of grounds. The whole is valued at less than $100,000. Its plans were drawn before the stock settlement was anticipated. The ground floor of the house is smaller than the ballroom of the Mellody Farm home, which was sold by Mrs. Armour to liquidate debts of her husband, who lost a fortune of $150,000,000 in the post-war slump.

Keeps Part of Estate.

The old estate was purchased by a group of capitalists who are transforming it into a country club. However, the name of Armour will cling to a portion of the estate. It was said yesterday that Mrs. Armour, because of her good fortun , will build a home on a tract which includes 20 acres of the farm, which she withheld from sale, and 20 acres adjoining. Here she will live with her memories. Meanwhile she is to divide her time between the Lake Forest home and her Chicago apartment.

The windfall came to the packer's widow on Tuesday evening, when $22,240,999 was paid for 1,000 shares of Universal Oil Products company stock by the Standard Oil company and the Shell Union Oil corporation. The stock had been spurned by Mr. Armour's creditors after his death three and one-half years ago.

Invests More Than $3,000,000.

Mr. Armour invested between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 a number of years ago in an oil cracking process developed by Jesse A. Dubbs in a small Pennsylvania oil field. In 1926 the stock was transferred to Mrs. Armour by her husband as security for a loan of $1,000,000. Dubbs, who was considered a crank, died, but his son, Carbon Petroleum Dubbs, carried on.

The son received $3,582,045. Hiram J. Halle of New York, president of the Universal Oil company, and the Natomia corporation each received $3,219,414. Alexander F. Reichmann and Frank L. Belknap, attorneys for the oil company, received $1,402,794 and $755,350 respectively. James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri, also attorney for the company, refused to discuss his interests in the case.

Dubbs, who lives in Wilmette, announced that he was going back to work on further research in oil processes. He expressed relief at the end of four years of negotiations.

FOUND ASPHYXIATED IN HOME.

John Julia, 70 years old, was found dead yesterday in the kitchen of his home at 4826 Lake street by his wife. Burners on the kitchen range were turned on.

Erskine Cheery Over Present and Busy Selling His Cars

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Over in a corner on the main floor of the national automobile show at Grand Central palace a man sits on top of an automobile chassis and talks about "free wheeling." There is a crowd about him from the time the doors open until they close. Somewhere in that crowd Albert Russel Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, can be found most any afternoon. THE TRIBUNE reporter found Mr. Erskine today, but had a hard time keeping up with him, for he likes to mix with his salesmen and demonstrators—"free wheeling" after his own fashion.

He's Conservative Optimist.

Mr. Erskine is a conservative optimust. He frankly confesess that no man can see three months ahead in these days and is of the opinion that the country needs action more than it does statements from business leaders. He is not afraid of the future and neither is he expecting too much.

"You want a lot of predictions," smiled Mr. Erskine as he waved the reporter into the back seat of one of his 1931 model Studebaker. "Well, you will not get them from Erskine. The world is not waiting for any message from me, but I will tell you this—there is money to buy automobiles and people are not going to give up individual transportation. I believe we are on the mend and the automobile industry is one of the key industries to prosperity.

"Hey, Joe, come over here. . . . That's one of my men and he's a money-maker. See that man with the overcoat on his arm? He's our Chicago man. . . . No, madame, this model comes only in one color. . . . Of course, it has free wheeling.

Refuses to Overreach.

"Now, young man, what was it you were asking me? Well, I'll tell you, my motto is to go only as far as you can see ahead. I think this is the greatest automobile show the industry has ever staged. Automobiles are bargains this year—the greatest values ever offered."

Mr. Erskine talked to half a dozen men from the window of the sedan, called to one of his salesmen to show a prospective customer a certain model, looked admiringly at the crowd around the free wheeling demonstration, and suggested that we talk about free wheeling.

"It is interesting to speculate on the effect which free wheeling will exert on the motor car of the future," said the automobile manufacturer as he pulled his black hat down over one eye and shifted his position for a better view of the demonstration. "It is my belief that eventually all motor cars will have free wheeling. For the first time in the history of the internal combustion engine momentum has been released from subjection to the engine that creates it and put to work."

The automobile man kicked up the foot rest in the bottom of the car. "That's the way we build them," he said; "out of the way." He looked across the floor at a classy roadster job. "See that automobile?" he asked. "A fellow came in here the other day and looked it over. He had on a dark colored shirt and no necktie. The car costs more than $2,000 and some of the salesmen sort of shied from him, but one of the boys went after him. The fellow was an engineer on the Century and he bought the car and paid cash for it. Sure, there is money to buy automobiles."

Mr. Erskine went upstairs, where his organization has another exhibit. The reporter followed in the rear. Right at the moment no salesmen were about and several truck drivers were admiring the cars on exhibit. Mr Erskine began to explain the advantages of his product. The truck drivers were attentive. Finally the automobile man introduced himself and one of the truck drivers emitted an amazed observation that for a president Mr. Erskine knew his stuff.

"Of course I do," said the manufacturer.

Returns to Favorite Topic.

But all in all, Mr. Erskine's first interest is in free wheeling. He likes to talk about it and the crowd is interested.

Since its presentation in this country six months ago by Studebaker corporation free wheeling has won many admirers, for ft gives a pleasing new sensation of freedom of movement, saves gas and oil, and permits the car to move smoothly ahead under its own momentum the moment you lift your foot from the accelerator, all gears remaining engaged.

The South Bend motor man would like to see business free wheeling to prosperity, but he knows that momentum first must be supplied. He believes in the industry and he believes that the automobiles built this year will help every other industry to turn the corner.

Business Booming

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Figures indicating a revival of activity in the automotive industry were announced by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce today. Production of passenger cars and trucks in December totaled 155,185 units, a 24 per cent increase over that of December, 1929, and a 15 per cent increase over that of November, 1930.

The December production brought the total for 1930 to 3,505,061 units, 38 per cent below that of the record year of 1929, but only 2 per cent less than that of 1927.

Evanston Wife Wars on Early Rising Pigeons

Mrs. Charles R. Mahan, wife of the comptroller of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, appealed to Evanston police yesterday for relief from the cooing of pigeons which she said wake her up at 3 to 4 a. m. every day. Sergt. Bert Kinder assured her he would "do something about it." The Mahans live at 2727 Woodbine avenue, Evanston.

Bankruptcy Hearing for Wm. Mitchell Blair Begun

A hearing before Harry Parkin, referee in bankruptcy, was begun yesterday on the voluntary petition of William Mitchell Blair, son of Mrs. Chauncey Blair of Lake Forest. One of the creditors was Mrs. Anne M. E. Henry of Philadelphia, who loaned Blair $5,500, said to have been used in paying off the debts of the Petrushka club, which he owned. The hearing was continued until Jan. 16.

BANKERS SMILE AT BROOKHART CHARGES HERE

Deny Dissension Story He Seeks to Prove.

Efforts of Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, a member of the senate committee on banking and currency, to get facts from the smaller city and country banks to support a charge that there is a "concerted plan to eliminate the independent community banks," seem to be meeting little success in Chicago.

Many banks have received Senator Brookhart's request for information, but, as far as can be learned, the request either has been disregarded or the replies have assured Senator Brookhart that there is no dissension among Chicago's banks. In fact, Chicago bankers are inclined to regard Senator Brookhart's suspicions with both amusement and resentment.

"Interested in Tendencies."

Senator Brookhart's request for information, according to his letter to one Chicago bank, follows:

"As a member of the committee on banking and currency of the United States senate, I am interested in the tendencies now taking place in the banking structure of the country which give grave concern to the public welfare.

"Information has been reaching me for more than a year of far reaching changes in the banking picture in Chicago. I have been told that what appears to be a concerted plan to eliminate the independent community banks has been in operation in your city for months and that many substantial neighborhood banks have actually been eliminated.

"I should like to have you write me fully [in confidence, if you so indicate], what your own observations have been in this matter. Please indicate whether there is any evidence that the national bank examiners have had a hand in this and whether the state or clearing house examiners have been active in this direction.

Gives Purpose of Letter.

"Will you also indicate what the attitude of the large loop banks has been toward the outlying banks during this period? Have they come to the assistance of the neighborhood banks or have they declined? Is there any evidence that they have actually aided or abetted in the program to eliminate the outlying banks either through campaigns to attract savings from these banks or otherwise?

"Do you know whether the outlying banks have experienced any difficulty in getting bonds for public funds due to dominance of the bonding companies by the big metropolitan banks? What, if any, part has the federal reserve bank in your district taken in this program? What, if anything, has it done to stop it?

"My only purpose in writing this letter, you will understand, is in the public interest. If the community life of this country is to be preserved, the community bank must be retained and protected. Your assistance and coöperation is invited to that end."

$100,000 BONDS SET FOR BUSCH HEIR KIDNAPER

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 7.—(AP)—A warrant charging first degree robbery with a deadly weapon, a capital offense under the Henry law, was issued today against Charles Y. Abernathy, Negro kidnaper of 13 year old Adolphus Busch Orthwein.

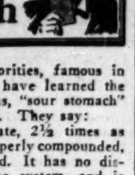
Abernathy is charged in another warrant with kidnaping, which carries a maximum punishment of ten years in prison.

Bond on the robbery charge was set at $50,000, the same amount required on the kidnaping charge, so Abernathy must give $100,000 bond for his liberty pending trial.

Open Library for Prisoners in Lake County's Jail

The library in the Lake county jail at Waukegan, which was authorized last month by the board of supervisors on the plea of the Waukegan Ministerial association, was started yesterday with the receipt of the first forty-five volumes and the election of a prisoner librarian. There are forty-seven prisoners in the jail, and Sheriff Lester Tiffany said they were enthusiastic over the books and showed a decided preference for the better grade of fiction.

A Doctor Knows what is best for any Stomach



Well-known authorities, famous in the medical world, have learned the certain relief for gas, "sour stomach" and similar troubles. They say:

"Calcium Carbonate, 2½ times as effective as soda, properly compounded, is the ideal anti-acid. It has no disturbing effect on the system, and is utterly safe in the hands of the patient. It is best used in the form of tablets."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—just the right compound of Calcium Carbonate and other soothing substances, provide swift and certain relief from sour stomach and attendant ills. Nothing equals them, and they are safe and harmless to use.

With no mess or fuss, Vapex lets you breathe your cold away with a delightful fragrance

ONCE a cold meant days of distress—but now all you need to relieve your cold is Vapex and a few deep breaths.

Vapex is swift and sure. As you put a drop on your handkerchief or at each end of your pillow, a crisp and bracing vapor wells up. Deep into the nose and throat it goes, clearing your head, stopping sniffling, relieving and refreshing you.

And Vapex is safe. In fact, it is particularly recommended for little children who seldom take kindly to messy and fussy remedies. Just put Vapex on their handkerchiefs as you send them off to school. Just put them to bed at night with Vapex on their pillows.

Always ask for V-A-P-E-X—the original inhalant discovered during the war. For you can be sure of its pleasant results and of its safety. Vapex is very inexpensive. There are fifty applications in the $1 bottle—an average of only 2c an application. Because of its pleasantness and safety, Vapex is very popular. Millions of bottles are sold each year. It is approved by Good Housekeeping.

BUSINESS GONE TO DOGS, SAY 109 WANT ADS

The Rabbits, Birds, and Cats Also Get Their Full Share

There is one group of Chicago business men who know for certain the "business has gone to the dogs," and are quite happy about it, despite the fact that many think so, and are none too cheerful. These business men are the kennel owners and dog fanciers whose business generally goes to the dogs, except on occasion when a proud pussy steals off to a new home, or a warbling canary, a talkative parrot, or a troupe of dancing mice depart with the blessings of their late owner upon their heads.

109 Ads; 31 Breeds Offered.

It will be a hard-to-please Chicagoan who cannot turn to the Dogs, Cats & Birds classification in the Tribune and not be able to find just the type of dog that pleases his fancy. In a recent issue of the Sunday Tribune Want Ad Section there were 109 ads offering dogs for sale of 31 different breeds. There were four different kinds of bulls: Toys, English, pit, and French; dachshunds, Russian wolf hounds, Yorkshire terriers, spitz, fox terriers, chows, collies, Pekes, poodles, Airedales, cocker spaniels, Chihuahuas, Irish terriers, Canadian shepherds, German shepherds (police dogs), Pomeranians, pointers, St. Bernards, Skyes, Samoyedes, and a host of plain alley mutts. And most interesting of all dogs, an American prairie dog!

Nice Kitty, Nice Kitty!

While the cats were outnumbered in this Sunday's paper, they were there, none the less, in all their sleek, regal glory. The Persians were the leaders. They were there in colorful array, blacks, white, silver, red, tortoise shell, and mixtures. A few haughty Angoras were offered, and a Siamese, too, and no end of ordinary midnight songsters.

Tweet, Tweet, Tweet!

For every cat offered there was a toothsome canary! Warblers, Choppers, Harz Mountain rollers, Seifert rollers, plain English, American fancies, and mixed breeds. In color, there were cinnamons, golden operas, and mixtures. All of them, except the breeding types, were singers, and several offered singers trained for radio presentation!

If You'd Rather Have—

Chicago pet stores certainly aim to please. If you would rather have something else besides a dog, cat or canary, then you might find a Chinchilla, New Zealand, or a fat Belgian hare much to your liking. If not these, then there were white mice, turtles, gold fish, waltzing mice, talking parrots, or an organ grinder's friend, the monkey, from which to choose.

Pals and Friends.

There is no need for any family to be without a pet of some kind. Just turn to any Sunday edition of the Chicago Tribune and you'll find most any time a choice almost as varied as the list we have just analyzed for you.

From Arts and Antiques.

THOMAS D. HARTNETT

Tribune readers who habitually turn to the Want Ad Section to find economical transportation will be interested in meeting, via the Want Ad Tribune, the young man whose efforts along "Automobile Row" have resulted in placing before Tribune readers as fine and varied a selection in used automobiles as can be found anywhere. In fact, there are none better.

Mr. Hartnett came to the Tribune in 1928 after a short career in real estate selling. He received preliminary training in several departments of classified advertising, and was then given the "Automobile Row" as his territory, where now he is quite well known.

Member of a "Book-a-Month" Club Profits Little Here!

FOR SALE—BY PRIVATE PARTY. Latest best seller novels; only read once. Call Longbeach 0000.

Yes, sir, for culture, there's nothing like belonging to a "book-a-month" club! But whattaya gonna do when you've read everything? Sell your collection through Tribune Want Ads is the logical solution!

Probably the owner got more out of them than did Mrs. Jack McGill, 478 Drexel avenue, Glencoe, Illinois, who, however, won the $3 prize this week with a wise bit o' poetry about these books. Mrs. McGill says in rhyme:

There was a young man named Penny,
Who read all the best sellers, if any—
He said, "I guess I'm a dunce,
Cause I've read these just once,
And for me that's just once too many."

Everybody Works But Father.

Miss Rose I. Zackem, 3412 Jackson boulevard, thinks that times are really bad. Commenting on this want ad,

WANTED—WORK; ANY KIND, FOR Ford Coupe; also for 1 ton Chev. truck. Vin. 0000.

She says, "Gosh, things must be bad nowadays! Not only are people out of work, but hard-working Fords and Chevvys, too! It's bad enough to find jobs for men, without hunting jobs for robots and automobiles!"

"Horrible Example"

This third prize, $1, given this week, goes to Miss Pauline Greenstein, 663 Buckingham place, because Miss Greenstein makes a snappy wise crack about a type of want ad that is so inefficient as to be almost useless to the advertiser. We refer to the too liberal use of abbreviations in writing want ads. The one submitted is without particular meaning even to the editor, who wearily tries to decipher many similar ads daily:

ATTENDT.—MED. SUITE, TYP, COL. U. grad., Gentile; pos. avail. Jan. 4; state age, salary, phone. Address X 000, Tribune.

Miss Greenstein says, "What does the advertiser want? Wonder if this ad is meant for a short bedtime story or a clew from a detective tale?"

Found His Diamond!

DIAMOND—LOST—FROM MASONIC ring emblem. Reward. Hum. 0000.—From Lost and Found.

Mr. H. G. ordered this ad to appear 3 times in the Tribune. A Tribune reader returned his diamond!

CHURCH LEADER OF ZION KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Five Deaths Raise Toll in County to 35.

Fred J. Rickert, 80 years old, of Zion City, a leader in church circles for more than thirty years, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile while crossing a street in Zion City. Mr. Rickert was en route to church when he was run down by the automobile of John Myers of Zion. He died while being taken to a hospital.

Mr. Rickert came to Zion City thirty years ago and for ten years had been an apostle of the church headed by Wilbur Glenn Voliva. His home was at 3113 Ezekiel avenue, Zion City.

Five deaths in Cook county yesterday raised the motor toll for the year to 35. The victims;

John Angelaponias, 8 years old, 3116 Addison avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by a truck while playing in an alley at the rear of his home. The driver, Isidore Nettis, 1142 South California avenue, was held.

James Dotson, 5 years old, 1350 South Peoria street. Killed when he was struck by a truck while playing in the street in front of his home. The driver of the truck was Edward Below, 2858 Elston avenue.

Anthony Bujaun, 7 years old, 7303 South Peoria street. Died at the Englewood hospital of injuries received Jan. 3 when he was struck down by an automobile near his home. The driver of the car was Mrs. Peggy Hanna, 36 years old, 9304 Escanaba avenue.

Edward Gilgendach, 22 years old, 1231 West North avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by another automobile as he was leaving his own car which he had stopped in front of 1200 North Oak Park avenue. The driver of the second car assisted Gilgendach into a residence nearby and then drove away without leaving his name.

Richard Brooks, 42 years old, colored, 531 East 46th place. Died in the County hospital of injuries received Dec. 29 when he was struck by the automobile of James Matthews, 3230 Carroll avenue.

Hammond Woman Killed.

Mrs. Caroline Davis, 65 years old, a widow of Hammond, Ind., was killed late last night at Hammond when the automobile in which she was riding overturned after being struck by another machine. Two other women and a man, occupants of the same car, were slightly injured. Theodore Soulas, 43, driver of the other machine, fled on foot after the crash and was arrested later at the Lincoln hotel in Hammond. He is being held in $5,000 bonds for the coroner's inquest. The injured, all of Hammond, are Elmer Brandenberg, 41, and Mrs. Brandenberg, 40, of 150 Indiana avenue; Mrs. Albert Towle, 40, of 1018 Bower street, and Mrs. J. D. Pontiac, 55, of 708 Price street. The accident occurred at 19th street and Calumet avenue.

STILL IN HOME OF POLICEMAN SLAYER SUSPECT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, held for investigation in connection with the fatal shooting of 19 year old Beulah Limerick, was charged today with owning paraphernalia for the manufacture of liquor after discovery of a still in the cellar of his home.

Police said they found the still of about seventy-five gallons capacity in a small basement room and also located ten guns in addition to the two .25 caliber weapons already found in Langdon's possession. The bullet which caused the girl's death was of .25 caliber.

U.S. RECOGNIZES GUATEMALA'S 4TH CHIEF IN 3 WEEKS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The state department extended recognition today to Provisional President Andrade of Guatemala, the fourth chief executive that country has had in three weeks. Instructions were sent to the American legation at Guatemala City to inform the Guatemalan government that the Andrade regime was formally recognized by the United States. Undersecretary Cotton said the recognition was in line with the policy under the treaty signed by the Central American governments in 1923.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed by the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

RAIN KNEE DEEP IN LOS ANGELES, WITH PACIFIC ON RAMPAGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Terrific rain swept Los Angeles this afternoon, leaving behind debris, accident cases which took two lives, and stalled traffic. The downpour stalled trolley cars, marooned scores of automobiles, and gushed down the main downtown streets in a knee deep torrent.

Landslips were reported in hillside residential sections. In Los Angeles harbor high, pounding seas sent all small craft fleeing to protection. The tremendous seas threatened two $300,000 ocean piers. Long Beach's shore thoroughfares went under water and at Belmont harbor the seas tore porches off cottages.

Welcome Boat Aground.

New York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A violent nor'wester—a fifty mile an hour gale—rammed the city's trusty welcoming ship, the Macom, hard against the rocks off Swinburne island. She was pinned there for an hour, stranding seven city officials aboard. Further down on Long Island the collier William N. Page still was aground off the bar at Westhampton Beach tonight after a tug failed to pull it off at high tide.

CHAS. S. WHARTON MAY BE OUT OF PRISON JAN. 20

Charles S. Wharton, a former member of congress from Illinois and a former assistant state's attorney of Cook county, who, since June 14, 1929, has been in Leavenworth penitentiary for conspiracy in the $133,000 Evergreen Park mail robbery, may obtain his release Jan. 30, according to Washington dispatches quoting department of justice officials yesterday.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson sentenced Wharton to two years. If he receives the maximum time allowed off by the government for good behavior he will be freed in 13 days. His term would not end until next June 13 if time off for good behavior were not allowed.

An application for parole a year ago by Wharton was refused.

Helping Hand Helps Itself to His Gold Filled Cork Leg

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—C. L. Jones, grocer, is curious concerning the loss of his cork leg, $90 in gold, and a woman customer.

He became ill in his store, he told police, and the woman offered to care for him. He accepted. At his home she made him hot lemonade. He soon fell asleep.

When he awoke, he related, the nurse was gone and so was his artificial leg, in which the gold was hidden.

TWO AVIATORS, BOY PASSENGER KILLED BY CRASH

Farmers See Texas Plane Dash Victims to Death.

Marshall, Tex., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Two aviators and a boy, the latter returning to school in New Orleans after spending the holidays with his mother in Fort Worth, Tex., were killed in an airplane crash west of here today.

The deady Arthur C. Brown of New Orleans, pilot; Erret Williams of New Orleans, co-pilot, and Robert Wilson, 10, of Fort Worth.

The plane, flying the Weddell-Williams passenger line between Dallas and New Orleans, had taken the Wilson boy on at Fort Worth. The crash happened about two hours later.

Two Negro farmers reported they observed the plane flying low in a dense fog. They said the motor was sputtering. The ship started gaining height and then suddenly came straight down, they said. The ignition had been cut off and there was no sign of fire.

Brown was a well known pilot, having flown planes for the Davis Air Lines between Atlanta, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., and Williams was a widely known southeastern pilot, having participated in Atlanta and Miami air races.

Plane Crashes in Oklahoma; 2 Die.

Ada, Okla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Wayne Spencer, 21, operator of the Spencer Flying school, and Lee Davis, a passenger, were killed in the crash of their airplane five miles southeast of Ada late today. They lived here. Spencer held a transport license and owned two planes.

Two Army Men Die in Crash.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Private Milo Stearns of Yakima, Wash., died in the army hospital today of injuries suffered in an airplane crash near here Monday. Lieut. Louis W. Strieber of Yorktown, Tex., pilot of the plane, died a few hours after it fell in the Waianae mountains.

Charges Wife Made Him Use Old Golf Balls; Sues

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Charging his wife made him use second hand golf balls, refused to let him buy more than one shoe lace at a time, and rebuked him for passing out cigarets to his friends, Earl F. Miller, prominent Appleton architect, today sued for divorce.

DIVIDED INDIANA LEGISLATURE AT ITS TASK TODAY

Myers to Be Speaker; Saunders Dies.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The seventy-seventh biennial session of the Indiana legislature will convene here tomorrow, with considerable uncertainty as to just what work it will accomplish in its two months of session because of the divided party power.

By sweeping the general election last fall throughout the state the Democrats gained a dominant majority in the house of representatives. They also elected all the officers at stake in the state house administrative divisions. Republicans regained a small margin in the state senate because of holdovers.

Death Revises Speakership Race.

Party caucuses were held tonight to organize both houses. The Democrats named for speaker of the house Walter Myers, who was an officer in the A. E. F., an advocate of modification of prohibition and former candidate for mayor of Indianapolis. He probably will be elected tomorrow.

The selection of Myers followed the sudden death of George Saunders, who had been unanimously slated for the post. Saunders, a former member of the state senate and a member of the last two lower houses of the legislature, was publisher of the Bluffton News Banner. He died of heart disease in his hotel room here while the caucus was in progress.

The house Republicans chose as minority leader James Knapp of Hagerstown, Wayne county. He was speaker in the 1929 house.

Senate Leaders Chosen.

Senator Lee J. Hartzell was chosen senate president pro tem. at the Republican caucus. He received sixty votes, including the support of Lieut. Gov. Edgar Bush, who is a leader of the farm bloc.

Senator James J. Nejdl received eight votes; Senator C. Oliver Holmes, four, and Senator I. Floyd Garratt, one vote.

The Democrats named Senator Walter S. Chambers of Hancock, Henry and Madison couties [Newcastle], as their senate leader.

The Democrats have the best position in Indiana since the war. They won a preliminary skirmish today when they induced senate leaders to join with them in a compromise caucus to effect reorganization of Indiana's thirteen congressional districts. The Hoosier state loses one seat by the next congressional reapportionment. Gov. Harry G. Leslie, Republican, had previously conceded the need for harmony by agreeing to the bi artisan caucus.

DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

DYING GIRL SAYS YOUTH LEFT HER IN BLAZING AUTO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—A 28 year old girl, scorched from the flames which had destroyed the car she was driving, gasped out the story of her murder in the arms of her father early this morning, while the police undertook to search for a mysterious young man whom she charged with her death in her dying account of the night's ordeal. The tragedy occurred in a deserted district, near the Scotch border.

The girl, Evelyn Foster, is the daughter of J. J. Foster, a garage and bus line proprietor of Ottenburn, near Newcastle. A number of passengers who had missed the last bus on her father's line to Rochester asked the girl to drive them there. On her return journey a stranger at Elishaw asked her to drive him to Newcastle. The rest of the story is told in the girl's statement:

"I took him as far as Belsay, when he asked me to turn back, which I did. On the way he stunned me with a blow on the head and he threw me into the back of the car. He then set the car on fire and pushed it over a stone bank. I remember being jolted over the moorlands and managed to crawl out of the blazing car. The man was young and clean shaven."

MORE GUARDS ON DUTY AT ESTATE OF ROCKEFELLER

Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The guard placed around the John D. Rockefeller estate at Pocantico Hills has been increased by one-third its former number this week, a precaution believed to have been motivated by the recent wave of crank letters from a mysterious inventor who is at the same time threatening Owen D. Young and many others of financial and civic prominence.

Formerly working in two shifts of 12 hours each, an additional number of men have been added at the Pocantico Hills estate so that each shift is now on duty only 8 hours a day.

The mysterious notes threatening the lives of both Mr. Rockefeller Jr. and his father are among some 500 letters which are believed to have been sent by the same fanatic person during the last 17 months.

Dutch East Indies Plan Airship Line to Holland

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, said today he would sail for New York late this month and go from there to the Dutch East Indies, "where the people are greatly interested in establishment of an air route to the mother country." It was the first intimation that plans for airship communication between Holland and her colonies in the far east are under consideration.

DR. E. CHANNING, HISTORIAN AND TEACHER, DEAD

Boston, Mass., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Dr. Edward Channing, 74, winner of the 1925 Pulitzer prize in American history and McLean professor emeritus of ancient and modern history at Harvard, died suddenly today at his home in Cambridge. He was the son of the late William Ellery Channing, the poet, and Ellen [Fuller] Channing, a sister of the famous Margaret Fuller of Brook Farm, the scene of Hawthorne's "The Blithedale Romance."

Born in Dorchester, June 15, 1856, he had had a notable career as a Harvard professor and historian and since 1895 had been engaged in his life's undertaking, the writing of a history of the United States from the time of the Norsemen in 1000 A. D., to the present time.

Six volumes of the history have been published, the seventh is ready for the press, and there are voluminous notes available for the completion of the eighth and last volume.

He was graduated from Harvard in 1878. From 1883 until 1913, when he was appointed McLean professor, he was an instructor and professor at Harvard.

Dr. Channing was awarded the Pulitzer prize for the sixth volume of his history, which was entitled "The War for Southern Independence."

Castoria corrects CHILDREN'S ailments

WHAT a relief and satisfaction it is for mothers to know that there is always Castoria to depend on when babies get fretful and uncomfortable! Whether it's teething, colic or other little upset, Castoria always brings quick comfort; and, with relief from pain, restful sleep.

And when older, fast-growing children get out of sorts and out of condition, you have only to give a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation to right the disturbed condition quickly.

Because Castoria is made expressly for children, it has just the needed mildness of action. Yet you can always depend on it to be effective. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment and cannot possibly do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue, is fretful and out of sorts. Be sure to get the genuine; with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

FOUR DEAD FROM POISON LIQUOR IN CALIFORNIA TOWN

Salinas, Calif., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Four persons were dead today and another in a serious condition supposedly as a result of drinking poison liquor.

The dead: Mrs. Fred S. Peters, 28, Salinas; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Angle, Porterville, Calif., and John Nikil, 45, San Francisco.

District Attorney Russell Scott said he believed three of the four died from the effect of liquor consumed at a party here Monday night.

Bootleggers Not to Blame.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Deputy County Attorney John Marrer, in charge of investigation into the liquor deaths of 12 men here recently, today stated that the deaths did not result from liquor sold by bootleggers, but from denatured alcohol, rubbing alcohol and similar mixtures lawfully sold by drug stores.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Riechtenburg, are killed at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury, companion of Chandos in many adventures. Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, wires that she can not come.

Prince Paul, ruler of Riechtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and swore revenge, fearing for Marya's safety because of her friendship for Leonie. Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, go secretly to Virgil, capital city of Riechtenburg, where Marya resides. A peasant named Ramon, whom they befriended, leads them through a secret border passage.

Marya tells them that she sent no message. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to get them to Virgil, they are preparing to flee with Marya when the prince appears. They escape and reach the border, but find it is so closely guarded that crossing is impossible. Ramon is sought and he hides Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house, while Chandos and Rowley join a traveling circus. Marya sends Carol to take them to Ariola, across the border, in a car which they recognize as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Ariola, they receive a message from Marya stating that she is to be released but she must remain in Riechtenburg and not communicate with them.

Knowing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made some impossible arrangement with Grieg, they return to the border. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is detained. He proves to the inspector that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg arrives and, with Chandos a prisoner for Virgil. Hanbury and Rowley, knowing their friend's plight, hold up and capture the chief's car. They drive to the estate of Baron Sabre, where they find Marya. Grieg they left, tied to a post along the roadside.

Marya tells them that she was married that morning "to Grieg—her price for their freedom. Hanbury, who is in love with Marya, is stunned at this news. Chandos sets out to find Grieg and kill him to free Marya, but Grieg has escaped. Chandos returns to Baron Sabre's and overhears the prince, who has arrived, arguing with Grieg. Grieg forgives when he tells the prince he has a trap set to catch his prey that evening at the secret border pass, as well as Leonie, who is to meet them there. The prince departs. Chandos narrowly misses a bullet fired by Grieg. He intercepts a telegram to Grieg from Littai—one of many which Lelia, a young peasant girl, has delivered. Lelia leads Chandos to a mill where his friends are hiding. He finds Hanbury sleeping. Marya implores Chandos not to kill Grieg, and while he is bathing in the mill pond Marya disappears. Chandos sends George and Rowley to follow Marya, and he leaves for the border with Lelia, who has fallen in love with Chandos, at the risk of her life, finds him and tells him that Leonie has entered the country an hour before. Grieg traps them and fires at Chandos, but Lelia throws herself in front of him and receives the bullet. Grieg escapes with Chandos in pursuit. He is trapped at the brink of a gorge and forced to fall to his death below. Chandos then returns to the police and surrenders, and in their company sets out to return the body of Lelia to her home. En route they are seen by the local coroner, who demands the girl's body for inquest.

INSTALLMENT XI.

ENRAGING THE ENEMY.

Ten minutes later I carried Lelia into the principal inn.

There, on a great four poster, I laid her down, with the mistress weeping beside me, to see such beauty cut off, and the sergeant keeping the door against the whispering maids.

I turned to the doctor, who was standing at the foot of the bed with his bag in his hand.

"I am helpless," I said. "If I could I would watch by her side, but I can do no more because I am under arrest. And the sergeant has been very civil and I cannot abuse the lenience which he has shown. Will you see that her relatives are summoned? She lived with her uncle at Merring, and I know that she was called 'Lelia,' but her surname I never heard. And—and I would not like her disturbed, if that may be. I will pay all the charges."

"I will see to it," said the other.

"And the dog," I said, pointing to the wolfhound stretched dull-eyed upon the floor. "He was here. The poor brute cannot understand."

"I will take him," said the doctor kindly, "and do what I can."

"And you'll summon my wife?" I hesitated. "It is right that she should be there. And I am very anxious that she should see this—this great heart who lost her life for her sake. She will certainly be at Vigil; I think she may be in the Lessing Strasse, at the house of Mme. Dresden of Saim. I'm afraid she is in great danger, but, as I have said, I am helpless. If she has been taken they will say she is not in the country, but that is not true. She passed through Elsa last night about 10 o'clock.

The doctor said nothing, but stood staring straight before him.

I turned again to the bed to look upon Lelia in her beauty for the last time.

She was very pale now, and might have been made of marble instead of flesh and blood. All her loveliness was there, but death had so changed it that now she seemed to belong to some other and rarer school. And this, I suppose, was at it should be, but the veiled eyes and the grave droop of the lips that I had known so eager were like a knife in my heart, and I turned away blindly and stood to an open casement with the tears running down my face.

The window looked out upon the country which I had come to know, and though I could not see them, I knew it was commanding the meadows which George and Bell and I had traversed at this hour six days before. To the east the sky was paling and the tops of the mountains rose up in a long, black screen, jagged and sinister, standing against the dawn. Very soon this would lighten their darkness and the sun would clothe them with color and make honest hills of them again. But not for me. I knew them for what they were. They and the clouds . . . Instinctively I lifted my eyes. The heaven was clear. Look where I would, the sky showed nothing but stars. The pall of cloud was clean gone.

After a little I turned again to the room to see the coroner stooping to Lelia's wolfhound and trying to coax the poor dog to lift up his head.

I passed to his side.

"When will you hold the inquest?"

"At 3 o'clock tomorrow," he said.

"I shall hope to be there," said I.

"Never fear, sir," said he.

I thanked him and bade him goodby.

A moment later the detective sergeant and I were descending the stairs.

There must have been three hundred people without the inn. As I emerged I saw a general movement and every man took off his hat.

Instinctively I put up my hand to find that I was bareheaded. I think I had been so for hours.

As I entered the car the crowd surged forward.

"Who touches her man touches Leonie," roared a deep voice.

An angry murmur answered, and the sergeant went something white.

I stood up in the car at once.

I could not let the man down. If he had not let me take Lelia, long before this he would have lodged me in jail.

"Sirs," I shouted, "I thank you. But we must be in order whatever we do. These men are doing their duty. They have treated me very well. And I am content to go with them. But listen, I have said that Leonie is in danger and so she is. We will come to the court here tomorrow—she and I."

"At what hour, my lord?" cried some one.

"At 3 o'clock. But if we do not come—if Leonie does not come—you will know there is something wrong and that the danger I speak of has lifted its head."

A long mutter answered me. Then the car moved and they parted and let it go, crying out and waving and shouting "Leonie."

Fifty minutes later the car passed under an archway and into a court. The building rose very high upon every side, but there was light enough to show me two closed cars standing side by side in the shadows.

From a doorway to the left of the court came a flood of electric light . . .

A moment later I was treading a long, stone passage, with a jailer going before me and another behind.

Then the door of some cell was opened and I passed in.

They had taken away my wrist watch, but there was some clock hard by that chimed the hours, and I know that it was soon after ten that three or four persons came stepping down the passage and up to the door of my cell. Till then I had seen no one but the jailers and a dreadful looking barber, who certainly shaved me well and would have ordered my hair, but I did not like the look of his brushes and thanked him to let that go. But now I was sure that somebody not of the prison was standing without the door. There seemed to be some hesitation and I could hear whispers exchanged. Then the shutter of the grill was drawn and behind the lattice of iron I could see some face.

Because, I suppose, I was much troubled about her, the thought that it might be Leonie flung itself into my mind.

I started up eagerly.

"Leonie! Is that you?"

A snigger answered me and I turned on my heel.

Only two beings I knew would have laughed in my face. And of these one was dead.

"'Handsome is as handsome does,'" I said lightly. "Can you really blame the grand duchess for turning you down?"

There was a dreadful silence. Then Paul, prince of Riechtenburg, let himself go.

His oaths and threats were nothing; the filth he spouted only dishonored himself, but what he said of Leonie froze my blood. I have never heard a man so speak of any woman in all my life, and at last I stopped my ears because I could bear it no more.

And when at last I put down my hands I heard the footfalls retreating and found that I was alone.

The incident shook me badly, as well it might.

When Lelia told me that Leonie had passed through Elsa, my feeling was one of relief. Anything was better than that she should come up by the water and find the smuggler waiting on the Austrian side of the fall.

This sense of relief was short lived.

Bushman, Old Idol of Movies, Says He's Broke

But Glad He Got and Spent Fortune.

In the star dressing room of the Kedzie theater at West Madison street and Kedzie avenue, Francis X. Bushman, matinée idol of the movies 15 years ago, was interviewed last night. He was making up preparatory to his evening appearance in a stock company play.

"I'm broke," he said, smiling broadly. "I haven't a penny left from what I've earned, and that's between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000. When I had money I traveled like an emperor, with a retinue, and I spent gloriously. I don't regret it. I had a grand time. For that matter, I'm having a good time now. I love what I'm doing. And Chicago's always good to me."

Following "Ben Hur," which was made in Rome in 1924, he was blacklisted among major film companies, Bushman said. Then came Beverly Bayne's divorce from him on June 3, 1925, lawyer's fees and alimony. He still had a large income, he said, but in October, 1929, lost every cent he had in the stock market crash, including his home in Hollywood, the grounds of which were valued at $100,000.

Chiefly Work Now, but He Recalls Golden Days.

"Now I have to work, whether I want to or not," he laughed. "But I've seen everything there is to see, except that I haven't seen enough of India. And I've done everything, at an age when I could enjoy it most. I don't need any money now. I still want to travel, but I can manage to do that less grandly."

He recalled the days of the old Essanay studio on Argyle street, where he played as their first star in 1914, before the days of Hollywood. Among the "extra girls" were Beverly Bayne, Lenore Ulric, Gloria Swanson, Agnes Ayres, and Helen Ferguson. Charlie Chaplin, Wallace and Noah Beery, and Ben Turpin also were with the company.

Some of Bushman's early films were "Dear Old Girl," "The Right of Way," "Dawn and Twilight," "Hearts and Flowers," "The Other Girl," "The Hour and the Man," and, somewhat later, "Graustark" and "Romeo and Juliet."

In the height of his career, in 1916, Mr. Bushman acquired a lavendar monogrammed automobile manned by lackeys in lavendar livery. He smoked nothing but lavendar monogrammed cigarets.

"I leave Saturday night to go on my next vaudeville engagement," Mr. Bushman said. "Saturday's my forty-seventh birthday."

Why Art Acord Went West on the Last Trail.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—The trend away from outdoor motion pictures when talkies came along two years ago not only squeezed out Art Acord, who was buried yesterday after his suicide in Chihuahua City, Mexico, but nearly every other old time western star as well.

By one means or another most of them have been able to survive the blow that talking pictures dealt.

Had Acord remained he might have had a "comeback."

In the last year the production of talkie westerns has boomed. Maynard and Gibson were the first of the old guard to capitalize on the return of their vogue. Both brought out talking westerns before the public had time to forget their names and faces.

JOHANN STRAUSS' BOW UPSETS PRINCE'S TABLE, SOME GLASSWARE, TOO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Old Viennese customs were revived when the prince of Wales, in residence at York house, received a visit from Johann Strauss, composer.

Strauss admitted today he had upset a table and broken a number of glasses, causing several drinks to be spilled by the ceremonious bow he had made.

This descendant of the composer of the "Blue Danube" and other stately waltzes of the old days when Vienna was the capital of light opera as well as of the Austrian empire, was received by the prince in his chambers just before the costume revival of the 19th century dances at an elite charity fête.

"The whole atmosphere was intimate and charming," Strauss said. "There were only six people in the room, the prince, three gentlemen, a lady, and myself. The prince poured out whisky and soda and later we had cocktails. The prince said the waltz was the only dance that interested him. I played while he danced and I then illustrated the Viennese manner of waltzing while he played. At the conclusion of the dance I upset a table, but the incident passed off in merriment and with good nature."

Cities Are Cradles of Civilizations, Says U. of C. Professor

All civilization depends on great cities for its initiation and maintenance. So declares Dr. Robert E. Park, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago. He spoke last night at Northwestern university.

"Every early civilization," he said, "seems to have had its center in a city, as in Athens, Rome, Byzantium and Alexandra." He added that the same processes are in operation today.

"In the town market place the individual first achieved his emancipation," he asserted. "There one individual was pitted against another in a political rather than a moral order. The market places still are notoriously the sources of the new and moreover are the ultimate sources of that intellectual and moral ferment so characteristic of life in the urban environment. In the city new things take hold more rapidly than in the rural community."

In conclusion he declared the great founders of religions, the earliest poets, philosophers, musicians and actors all were great wanderers who found in the great cities of the world a refuge and an opportunity.

Tallulah Bankhead Sails for Movie Job in U. S.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Tallulah Bankhead, actress, who sailed on the Aquitania today for New York, wonders when she is going to get a vacation. She had only two days' rest here after closing a vaudeville sketch and plans to begin motion picture work the day after she gets home.

This Alabama girl who became one of London's most popular stars, expects to make America her home now, she said, although she is going there under a contract which permits her to return to London within three months, if she wants to.

British Premier's Daughter, to Avoid Politics, Trade

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Isbbel MacDonald, the premier's daughter, is not looking for a seat in parliament, she told the London Commercial club at a luncheon in her honor today. "I am neither politician nor business woman," said she, "but I am keenly interested in politics and business. Somebody asked me this morning if I were going to follow father's footsteps and go to parliament, but that is not my ambition at all."

John D. Rockefeller Jr. Honored by Belgian Nation

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller Jr. was presented today with the plaque of Grand Officer of the Crown by Prince Albert De Ligne, retiring Belgian ambassador to the United States. The award was made in recognition of the active interest Mr. Rockefeller has taken in the University of Brussels.

Good Fellows Adopt 25 More Needy Families

Keep Homes Together in Time of Stress.

The Good Fellows yesterday adopted twenty-five more families, making a total of 277 homes that they are providing with necessities through the winter. Approximately 1,385 men, women, and children are receiving food, shelter, clothing, and heat from the Good Fellows.

The families have all been investigated as to their needs and worthiness by welfare workers of the United Charities, the Central Charity bureau [Catholic], the Jewish Social Service bureau, or the Salvation Army. They include Negroes and whites, protestants, Catholics, and Jews, foreign born and natives. Poverty plays no favorites, and neither do the Good Fellows.

All of the Good Fellow fund is used for maintenance of homes, keeping families together during the stress of the temporary employment slack. The governor's commission on unemployment and relief is furnishing lodging to 3,000 homeless nightly and, according to Lorin Corliss, secretary of the housing committee, the commission likewise draws no color line.

The 277 families are being guided toward rehabilitation by trained and experienced social workers. They are being assisted in efforts to become self-supporting again.

Some of the Good Fellows, either alone or with friends or business associates, have adopted some family as their own, guaranteeing the family budget and visiting the home with the social worker assigned to the case. Other Good Fellows have paid their obligation to charity in one check.

There are still many families, wives, and children of unemployed men, who are in dire need of the necessities of life. If you want to give a helping hand to some cold and hungry family, mail your contribution to the Good Fellows, THE TRIBUNE, Chicago. THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administrating the fund so that every penny of the Good Fellow fund reaches some deserving family.

Hourly Nursing Plan to Be Directed by Miss Miriam Ames

Miss Marian Ames, a graduate of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, arrived yesterday to become director of the Joint Committee on Hourly Nursing. The committee headquarters are at 116 South Michigan avenue.

The committee, created by the Central Council for Nursing Education and the First District Illinois State Association for Graduate Nurses, was aided by the Julius Rosenwald foundation. Miss Ames said "the plan makes its appeal on the basis of economy of time and a reduction in the cost of being ill. By it nurses will be paid by the hour instead of by the day."

The method will be started in the Hyde Park, Woodlawn, and Kenwood districts.

LONDON PRESSMAN GIVES MURDER PARTY IN WASHINGTON HOME

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—A "murder party" to which guests came armed or costumed to represent famous murder cases, ancient and modern, was given tonight by Sir Willmott Lewis, recently knighted Washington correspondent of the London Times, and Lady Lewis. Edward Hart of New York and his wife, Frances Noyes Hart, sister of Lady Lewis, were co-hosts.

With the expert assistance of Mrs. Hart, author of "The Bellamy Trial," "Hide in the Dark," and other mystery tales, "murder" tonight became a game played as an after dinner diversion by guests who illustrated the "murders" they chose to represent with everything from poisoned rings and cups suggestive of those rare Borgias to present day blackjacks and sawed off shotguns.

In the drawing room after dinner two guests were chosen to act as "detectives" and sent out of the room during the drawing of lots by the others to determine who should be the "murderer" of the evening.

The lights were turned out and in the midst of the ensuing confusion a scream was heard and the "detectives" rushed in to find a "victim" on the floor, marks of fingers on his throat, and the hunt for the murderer was on.

In the unraveling of the mystery, according to the rules of the game, every one must tell the truth except the "murderer," who is permitted to lie as frequently and as efficiently as possible in the effort to escape detection.

The victim, on the theory that "dead men tell no tales," is permitted to rise and join in the fun, but not to talk about the murder. As a result, the guilty party rarely is arrested by the "detectives," and tonight, as usual, the "murderer" escaped.

Kempffert Would Resign from Industrial Museum

Waldemar Kaempffert, director of the Museum of Science and Industry, to which Julius Rosenwald contributed, yesterday offered his resignation to take effect March 1. Officials said he took the action because he believed his work of outlining plans for the museum had been completed.

Women Tell Struggles as They Hunt Jobs

Back Taxes May Cost One Her Home.

A closeup of some of the unemployed persons Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE is trying to aid was supplied yesterday by listening in on stories of women who registered for jobs at the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street. That agency coöperates with THE TRIBUNE.

A 35 year old woman, an office worker until she lost her job eight months ago, burst into tears when Mrs. Lilla H. Walter, superintendent of the women's division, asked her how she was faring. Miss C. was a familiar figure at the agency.

"I'm sorry I'm so nervous today," Miss C. replied. "We have just started to tear down the coal shed for fire wood. We've no coal yet and my mother has to stay in bed to keep warm. A bakery gives us a loaf of bread every day and the neighbors are kind, but if I only could get work!"

Since she was grown Miss C. has supported her mother, now 72 years old. Before she lost her job she had bought a lot on the outskirts of the city and preparatory to building a house she had a garage built. She and her mother now occupy the garage, but were notified recently they would lost their property unless they paid their taxes by Jan. 1, which they did not do. Because Miss C. owns property she has been unable to obtain any help from organized charity, she said.

Moreover, since Miss C. has no children, relief organizations of one sort are closed to her. Because she has a mother and therefore is not "unattached," an organization which aids women without families would not help her, she said. Women employes in the agency have helped her to the limit of their abilities.

Mrs. G. B., 40 years old, next told her story. She just has sent her two sons, 14 and 18 years old, who could find no work, to her 80 year old mother near New Orleans. "She has no money. I always sent her $5 a week when I was working. But she is going to give them a roof over their heads until I can send for them." She formerly did steam table work in cafeterias, and previous to that was a clerk and cashier in a small restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. C. came next. Mrs. C. is a pretty young woman with a radiant smile.

"This won't last forever," she said cheerfully, and proceeded to tell humorously the "break" she and her young husband had on Christmas day when a neighbor who received a basket of food from his company gave them a can of sauerkraut. They dined sumptuously on the sauerkraut, and Mrs. C. thought that funny.

Her husband is a former soda dispenser. Now he's looking for a job washing dishes. She has sent her 3 year old child to her mother in Milwaukee, although her mother and father recently were evicted from their home and are living in cramped quarters. She wants a job as a waitress, but jobs are scarce.

A. C., 40 years old, was a school teacher, teaching subnormal children, before she became seriously ill three years ago. On her card she followed that statement with three words, underlined three times: "Am well now." She told Mrs. Walter that she was being fed and sheltered by an Eleanor club.

After she had gone Mrs. Walter said: "She has a brilliant mind."

A 25 year old woman was brought in by an older woman. The older one said:

"I met her at lunch in the Volunteers of America place at 179 West Monroe, where they fed us for nothing. I was talking to her, and she told me she is pregnant. The baby is to come in May. She is penniless and her husband has deserted her."

"Why didn't you tell us when you registered with us before?" Mrs. Walter asked.

"Because," the young woman replied, "I lost my last job when the woman who employed me learned of my condition."

Temporary employment was found for a woman who had been laid off from one of the large loop department stores after she had worked there eight years.

"We are getting many housework jobs, but what we need is jobs that pay a living wage," Sally Joy Brown said.

In the first three days of January 795 women registered at the Illinois Free Employment service, according to John Keane, director. Of that number, 321 were placed. In the first three days of December 675 registered and 254 were placed.

[Compiled by the co... which Chicago Associations... meet.]

Colonial Dames to Meet Jan. 15 for Anniversary

BY THALIA ——.

THE Illinois chapter of the Colonial Dames of America will have a party to celebrate the 35th anniversary of its founding on Jan. 15 at Mrs. William O. Goodman's. Mrs. Holmes Forsyth, a former president, is coming on from Princeton, where the Forsyths now are living, while William is in college, to be a special guest of honor. The program will be sort of an exhibit of some of the things the society does. The group has been doing work among foreign born women, and the winner of the recent prize essay contest will be present and will read her essay. So will the young man who goes to Northwestern university on a scholarship provided by the society. He will speak, as will one student from each of the two classes in principles of citizenship that he teaches at the Northwestern settlement. The society always has been rather small.

Another anniversary occasion is the annual meeting of the Dearborn seminary alumnae association on January 17, to be held at the Blackstone this year. There is to be a program by Miss Herma Clark, recalling school days in the 1850's and thereafter, when the seminary flourished with songs and costumes appropriate to the time. Miss Helen Drake is president now and she will conduct a discussion as to whether the association will disband, or will, according to the wish of some of the members, continue.

Women, Dry Law Foes, Will Hold Conference.

The local branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform is to be hostess at a national executive conference to be held on Jan. 21 and 22 at the Casino. On Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, a dinner will be held at the Drake hotel for Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman, and the delegates attending the conference.

The dinner will be followed by an open meeting in the Drake ballroom. To that both men and women interested in the cause are invited. Mrs. Sabin, Mrs. Courtland Nichol, and Mrs. Carroll Miller will tell of the recent accomplishments and future plans of the organization. Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler are in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. George Corson Ellis of Lake Forest are receiving congratulations on the birth of their third son on Tuesday. Mrs. Ellis is the former Roberta Thorne and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne.

Noble B. Judahs Going Abroad; Bob Whiting to Visit Parents.

Cross section. . . . The Noble B. Judahs will depart on Monday to sail on the Augustus on Wednesday for Naples, and later will go to St. Moritz for the winter sports. . . . Bob Whiting [he has been referred to as one of the town's eligiblest bachelors so many times that we won't do it again] is giving up his apartment at 50 West Schiller street and is leaving Chicago perhaps for good, first going east to visit his parents. After that his plans are indefinite. . . . Gordon McCormick is to be here for several weeks more, and is occupying the time of his visit with reacquainting himself with Chicago and his friends here.

Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr., noted at the Goodman opening on Tuesday night, was wearing her hair in a becoming long bob, and Mr. McCormick was restricting his conversation to laryngitic whispers at his doctor's orders.

And more . . . Luther Conover is having a dinner party for 40 at the Drake hotel on Saturday night, and the Beauttases, Joe and Nancy, have sent out invitations for an evening party at the "Old Studio" at 720 Cass street, where Joe had bachelor quarters before he was married, for a week from Sunday night.

Some Art Sidelights, New Studio, Questions, Too.

John Norton did the new murals in the Board of Trade building at his recently acquired studio, a former German turnverein over on Clark street. [you ought to hear the story of how a day or so after Mr. Norton moved in he was called on by some one who was pretty obviously of the racketeer genre, there to see if John was going to try to "out in"—it seemed that there'd been a stiff in the basement—and the next day the papers carried a photograph of the caller and the story of how he'd been taken for a ride the night before].

The honeymooning Ralph Millises, who make long distance phone calls from Europe every little while, called up from Rome to say that they are going to Egypt for a month before going back to Naples to sail for home. . . . the Midland Authors have new clubrooms at the Hotel Sherman, with the wallpaper having monuments of Paris on it, and the library to include a couple sets of books by Midland Authors.

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis announces that the intended reception for M. Maurice Martenot and Mlle. Ginette Martenot has been postponed because of the memorial services at Holy Name cathedral Sunday morning. . . . the Originalists will meet this evening at the apartment of Dr. and Mrs. Irvin S. Koll at the Madison Park hotel.

Austen Chamberlain's Son, Wife on Way to America

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Lady Chamberlain and Joseph Chamberlain, wife and son of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the former foreign minister, sailed today on the Aquitania for a holiday in the United States.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover have as guests in the White House Mr. and Mrs. Howard Coffin, formerly of Detroit. They will remain until after the Hoover dinner tomorrow night in honor of the foreign ambassadors and ministers.

Former Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg are at the Mayflower to remain until Friday night. They then will go on to New York. They will attend the diplomatic dinner.

Miss Janet Large, niece of Mrs. Hoover, returned yesterday from the White House to her school in Pennsylvania.

Vice President Curtis was given a dinner tonight by the Austrian minister and Mme. Prochnik. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gann were among the guests, and others were asked for a musicale later in the evening.

PLAN FOR JUNE WEDDING

MISS GWENDOLEN HARRELL BACON.

[Malcolm Balfour Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson Bacon of 446 Briar place announce the engagement of their daughter, Gwendolen Harrell, to Charles Porter Atherton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Morse Atherton of Boston and Swampscott, Mass. Miss Bacon was graduated from the Chicago Latin school and now is a student at the Erskine school in Boston. Mr. Atherton was a member of the Harvard class of 1928. They plan to be married next June and to go abroad for their wedding trip.

Society at the Opera

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM V. KELLEY had as guests Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Keeler and Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Prince. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barnett and Dr. and Mrs. Bryed Wilson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Wermuth.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ashcraft Jr. were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ashcraft III., their debutante daughter, Miss Anne Ashcraft, and Miss Barbara Whitehead. The Frederick A. Poole box was occupied by Mrs. George Rossitter, Mrs. Lester Williams, Mrs. Ernest Edkins, Mrs. Ralph Newmann, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macomber.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Mason had as guests Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Brekke and Dr. and Mrs. James Hendry Taylor. Mrs. Francis Johnson's box was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Barnes, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, and Donald McClure.

The William J. Chalmers box was occupied by Mrs. William Dandy, Mrs. S. G. Wilkins, Mrs. Dorothy Tillinghast, Miss Helen Wilkins, Edward Strong, and W. M. Dandy. Guests in the Robert Lucas box included Mrs. George Kerns, Mrs. Thomas Rigny, Mrs. Norman Flitcraft, Mrs. George Murphy, Mrs. George Noth, and Mrs. James Gormly.

For the second time this season "La Boheme" was presented to a large audience at the Civic Opera house last evening. It was followed by the fantastic "L'Amour Sourcier."

Mrs. Samuel Insull was hostess to Mme. Frida Leider, Mr. and Mrs. J. Elliott Jenkins, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Col. R. H. James, A. H. Green and Chase Baromeo. Mr. and Mrs. Byron Harvey and Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Poole and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor in the Charles A. Munroe box. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fletcher Seymour.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This youthful and smart looking bolero frock is a general favorite this winter. The skirt shows the new box plaited arrangement, and the tightened hip yoke in pointed outline tends to lengthen the figure. The bolero rolls back in revers and shows a blouse of a contrasting color that buttons down the front. Wool crêpe, velveteen, and the featherweight tweeds will make up smartly in this model.

The pattern, 2626, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the bolero and skirt, and 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for the sleeveless waist.

These Portraits Really Look Like the Sitters

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A PLEASANT personality combined with an extraordinary ability make of Charles Sneed Williams, whose exhibition of portraits opens today in the Ackermann galleries, a delightful individual whom not to know is to suffer a distinct loss.

In these days of harum-scarum portraiture it is a relief to fall in with a painter who believes in the old values. These portraits on the Ackermann gallery walls rank with the best of contemporary art. Mr. Williams stands shoulder to shoulder with Louis Betts on our side of the Atlantic and Lavery, Orpen, and Salisbury on the English side.

There is the glamour of substance about these portraits. They are solid work, brilliant in technique, sincere in manner, ringing true at every point. Fine likenesses, superb handling of texture, a romantic delight in color, a clear understanding of the various personalities, there is an appreciation of the pictures in a nutshell. Several of the portraits are of Chicago notables. The painting of Mrs. A. F. Callahan is superb. It is Mrs. Callahan herself who sits so serenely smiling, well poised, at us from her frame. Little Anne, a granddaughter of Mrs. Callahan and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Callahan, is charming in her brown curls and thin blue frock.

Mrs. A. K. Maxwell is another recent Chicago portrait which is extremely effective, and the study of Thomas Chalmers, done seven years after his death, turns back the years that have elapsed since he was one of our gay bachelors with a smart pull of the curtain.

The exhibit is rounded out and made complete by the group of portraits of English men and women of prominence. Consider the delightfully simple paintings of H. H. Princess Marie Louise, for example, and the stunning canvas of the marquis of Dufferin and Ava. Gorgeous is the colorful costume worn by the Marquis Alfonse de Pallavicini and most interesting in his face, though no less vital than that of the plain Maine fisherman or the model in Spanish dress.

The exhibition will continue to Jan. 29 and is one of those which should wear four stars, blazing, in honor of its worth.

Miss L. B. Damrosch, Sidney Howard Will Be Married Saturday

New York, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch today announced their daughter, Leopoldine Blaine Damrosch, will be married to Sidney Howard, author and playwright, Saturday. The ceremony will be performed at the Damrosch home, in East 80th street, at noon by the Rev. Frank Damrosch Jr., the bride's cousin. Only the families of the bride and bridegroom and close friends will attend.

Howard served in the world war as an aviator. For a number of years he was on the editorial staff of "Life." Among his play successes were "They Knew What They Wanted," which won the Pulitzer prize in 1925; "Ned McCobb's Daughter," "The Silver Cord," and "Half Gods."

The bride is the third of four daughters of Walter Damrosch. She is the granddaughter of James G. Blaine, former secretary of state and governor of Maine, and Leopold Damrosch, one of the noted pioneers in American music. She was educated at Spence school. A niece, Margot Finletter, will attend her.

Noted London Jewess Talks on Present Day Problems

The Hon. Lily Montagu of London was the guest of honor yesterday at a reception given by the Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women and the Chicago Temple sisterhood at Sinai temple, 46th street and South Park way. She declared "Jewish women must have freedom to work out the problems of the day, and the answer must be a Jewish solution."

Way to Man's Heart Still Via Culinary Route, Says Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

With girls letting grow hair that isn't already grown and taking on generally the look of old fashioned darlings, and parlor games that grandmaw and grandpaw knew when they were young being played in our ultra-modern parlors, and discussions going on in magazines and newspapers about what constitutes a lady, is it any wonder that the theme of "feeding the brute" is being revived?

It has been revived, you know. From several advisers on how to get your man and hold on to him, whose word has gotten into print recently, we learn that there's no route like the good old stomach and palate one to a man's heart. A noted business woman tells those girls who sit near telephones, a-wishing, evenings, to stop sitting and get busy with the cooking range. With all a modern girl's other charms and talents for sure-fire results, there's nothing like the home cooked meal to lure the man on into a declaration.

Well, if you've tried everything else—dressing up for him, listening wonderingly to him, flattering him, being a good pal, and all that sort of thing—why not take a flyer with the cook book and a ravishing kitchenettee apron? There's nothing to lose in the trying.

Then a book on "Cooking as Men Like It," by a business man, J. George Frederick, recently published, offers the contention that marriage has so little prospect of home cooked food that there's nothing thrilling in its approach to Mr. Bachelor. Incompetent cookery, canned goods and delicatessen and a wife whose bright idea is to go out for dinner isn't enough to lure.

"Women have in large numbers ceased to be interested in cookery," Mr. Frederick complains. . . . "Yet man loves above all else the pleasure of good food. . . . If the home and its good cheer around the board are to disappear, why marry at all?"

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Three Hopefuls.

"Dear Miss Blake: Three of us boys love the same girl. She acts the same towards all of us. Could you tell us how to find out which one she loves?

"PALS."

If she treats you all alike, there is no favorite. She is not in love with any one of you.

Cording Replaces Fur on New Spring Suits

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Once Christmas is past smart women begin to look forward toward spring, sartorially speaking, at any rate. Most of them flit off to the Riviera or Palm Beach, and many of them like to choose, at least, some southern clothes that will look all right on their return to town.

They know, too, that the spring sun has a way of making furs look stuffy and yet fur cuffs and collar are so often the short cut to chic! The Paris couturiers think of everything and they are designing stunning coats and jackets for southern and first spring wear, using cording, braiding, quilting or perforations in the material of the suit to replace fur trimmings with just as smart effect.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Loud Response from One.

A few years ago I was invited to a dance out in the country where I used to live. The dance had progressed far into the evening when the hostess wrapped on the piano and asked if she could have our attention. Thinking that every one would say "Yes," I said it quite loud. Imagine my embarrassment when I found that I was the only one who had spoken.

America Hopes to Give These Services to Her Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Mothers' and Fathers' Litany for the New Year, signed by Mrs. Bevans, will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Do you remember President Wilson's famous fourteen points of the Versailles conference? I think the twenty points that are America's pledge to her children taken at the White House conference will be as famous in their way.

Seven of these were given on Wednesday. Ten more of the twenty points appear today:

8. Every child should attend a school which has proper seating, lighting, ventilation, and sanitation. For younger children kindergartens and nursery schools should be provided to supplement home care.

9. The school should be so organized as to discover and develop the special abilities of each child and should assist in vocational guidance, for children, like men, succeed by the use of their strongest qualities and special interests.

10. Every child should have some form of religious, moral, and character training.

11. Every child has a right to a place to play with adequate facilites therefor.

12. With the expanding domain of the community's responsibilities for children there should be proper provision for and supervision of recreation and entertainment.

13. Every child should be protected against labor that stunts growth, either physical or mental; that limits education; that deprives children of the right of comradeship, of joy, and play.

14. Every child who is blind, deaf, crippled, or otherwise physically handicapped, should be given expert study and corrective treatment where there is the possibility of relief and appropriate development or training. Children with subnormal or abnormal mental conditions should receive adequate study, protection, training, and care.

15. Every waif and orphan in need must be supported.

16. Every child is entitled to the feeling that he has a home. The extension of the services in the community should supplement and not supplant parents.

17. Children who habitually fail to meet normal standards of human behavior should be provided special care under the guidance of the school, the community health or welfare center, or other agency for continued supervision or, if necessary, control.

This makes, so far, seventeen of the twenty points. Tomorrow's article will containing the remaining three.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Desperate Situation.

"I wonder if you can help us. We are badly in need of clothing and have had nothing but bread and butter to eat for the last three days. My sister was working, but was laid off and I have been sick. There are two boys in the family, 7 and 13 years old, and a girl, 16. Anything you can do for us will be appreciated.

"A. K."

When the support of a family depends upon the earnings of a 16 year old girl it must have a difficult time getting along. Now that she has lost her job the situation becomes even worse. Can you do anything to help relieve their distress?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HELEN M.: LEMON JUICE MAY be used as an astringent to contract the open pores. Witch hazel and alcohol are astringent. You may add a few drops of benzoin to the last cold rinse water with pleasing effect. My booklet on the skin contains other helpful suggestions. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for it.

PASTY N.: PALLOR OF THE face in apparently healthy girls is due to lack of fresh air and a monotonous diet. To cultivate a fresh skin, breathe deply of fresh air. The rooms in which you work and sleep should be properly ventilated. You must eat foods rich in minerals. All green vegetables are good.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My 2 year old son had cut papers all over the kitchen so I called to Norbert, age 5, to pick them up, adding, "That's your job, you know!"

"Yes," he answered, "and I never get laid off, either."

Dickie's two aunts, of whom he was quite fond, were visiting at his home. One day some boy friends came along and whistled for him to come out. He went to the door and said with an air of great importance, "Can't come; got aunts."

Food Talk.

Cod is in season all year, but the best fresh fish is that secured during the months of October, November, and December. The meat of the fish is white and is exceptionally firm and flaky. There is little oil in the muscles, but we do get an abundance of protein. Because it is a sea fish, cod is one of our valuable sources of that much needed element, iodine. It also has a goodly supply of other minerals, such as phosphorus. A number of scientists maintain that, with potatoes and butter, cod forms a balanced ration on which man could live indefinitely.

Of the fresh fish, the head and shoulders, which are rated the choicest parts by many, are preferably boiled. The remainder is usually sliced for baking, sautéing or frying. Cod is also sold salted and dried. Salt cod is cured in brine and dried in the sun. It is retailed as "boneless cod" or "flaked cod" in boxes. "Cod roe" is considered a table delicacy and is sold in large amounts. Codfish strips or rolls are whole or half fish, skinned and trimmed to suit the trade. Frequently they are made into rolls.

The tongue of the cod is prized as a tidbit. Both the fresh and the dried are considered excellent. An unusually good way of serving this organ is to sauté it. Wash the tongue well. Dip in cold milk and roll in seasoned flour. Sauté in butter and serve with tomato sauce. Dried tongue should be soaked in water before preparing.

Fresh codfish is delicious baked. A particularly good method is to rub the inside of the cleaned fish with butter and lemon juice. Then place in a well buttered baking dish—it must be remembered that codfish has little fat of its own—sprinkle with chopped mushrooms, shallots or onions and parsley and minced garlic and lemon juice. Pour over the fish three cups of boiling water. Simmer for 1 hour. The liquid remaining when the fish is done should be thickened with a little butter blended with flour. This makes the sauce.

Salt cod should be soaked overnight and the water discarded before using. Codfish souffle is an interesting and nutritious way of serving this fish. Boil ½ lb. codfish until very tender. Mash and mix with 2 cups mashed potatoes; add a few dashes of pepper and the well beaten yolks of 2 eggs. Beat this mixture thoroughly. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the two eggs and bake in a hot oven until the mixture is well puffed and browned.

Verdict Is Specs Give an Intelligent Look to Wearer

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In answer to the Inquiring Reporter's question if eyeglasses detract from a girl's appearance, it was interesting to note the distinction made between a beautiful girl wearing them and one not so blessed with the gods' favorite gift to woman.

"Glasses might detract from the appearance of a beautiful girl, but to many others they give an added look of intelligence." That is the summary of the questioned.

Come to think of it, you never associate glasses with the face of a professional beauty, do you? You can't visualize a Garbo with specs or a Marilyn Miller or a Norma Shearer, a Constance Bennett? Yet you can think of a thoroughly good looking college girl with her intellectual eyes looking at you through a pair of horn-rimmed specs. You can see the efficiently groomed and sometimes beautiful young secretary wearing glasses without your becoming particularly conscious of the fact.

Whether glasses do or do not detract from the appearance, certainly it is true that many are influenced into postponing the day of their wearing for fear they will detract. The consequence is that postponement leads to heavier lens and, naturally, loss to the beauty of the eye.

It's a vanity deeply rooted in women. I was amused at the apologetic strain in the two women meeting for luncheon after each had produced a longnette to study the menu. Much talk about the folly of having done so much reading and straining of eyes to bring them to their present predicament. A friend tells about her aversion to glasses-wearing, postponing the dread hour until one day she found she couldn't decipher telephone numbers, and her eyes looking bleary and worn ofttimes from the terrific strain put upon them.

Glasses today have taken on shapes to fit becomingly the narrow bridge and the thick, the wide eyed and the narrow. They have reached an artistic phase in their fashioning. So much so that they might be adopted for working purposes anyway with no resultant damage to vanity.

The ARITHMETIC of GOOD ADVERTISING

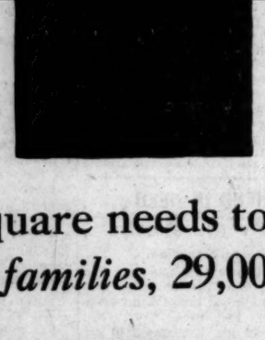
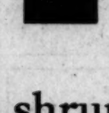
THE square below graphs the American market in terms of 122,693,391 population, but if you buy magazine advertising on that basis your pencil isn't very sharp:

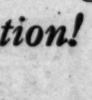


First of all, the square needs to be shrunk to the total number of families, 29,000,000—like this:

Then it needs to be shrunk again to the families which mentally are directly reachable, somewhere near 11,500,000 families in which some adult is above 14 years in intelligence—like this:



Then it needs to be shrunk once more to the families which have ample current money to spend, the families from which the 4,062,804 income tax returns were filed—like this:



PONDER that smallest square, gentlemen, for there is the heart and hope of prosperity—the bull's-eye of the sales target in America.

It does not represent all the business, of course, but it does represent the cream of it.

It does not encompass the whole advertising audience by any means, but it does highlight its most responsive section.

Because THE SATURDAY EVENING POST reaches the first three million families in America, with tested sales-power solidly grounded on tested character, it stands alone as the great Common Denominator in any such equation!

BARNES, SOX OUTFIELDER, SOLD TO ATLANTA

N. Y. RING BOARD MIGHT AS WELL CLOSE UP SHOP

Sharkey Only Boxer It Controls.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—The New York prizefight commission has just about abolished the heavyweight division in New York state, a calamity which might be much worse, by barring most of the heavyweights individually or setting up conditions which the heavyweights will violate and thus bar themselves.

Inasmuch as the regulation of the heavyweights is the principal business of the prizefight commissioners, it will be seen that they have emulated the scorpion which stings itself when annoyed. They now have only one heavyweight to regulate and as it takes at least two heavyweights to make a quorum, the commissioners have canceled their own excuse for existence.

Max Schmeling, who received the pork barrel appointment as heavyweight champion last year, has been barred and his appointment has been revoked because he refused to fight Jack Sharkey in New York. There were many reasons why Schmeling and Sharkey should not fight in New York, the principal reason being that the customers paid them about $350,000 to fight last year and were bilked of their money when Sharkey fouled Schmeling.

They Juggle Foul Rule.

The prizefight commissioners invited Sharkey to commit the foul by quietly suspending the fine and suspension penalty for fouling, notwithstanding the fact that in his last previous fight Sharkey had fouled Fainting Philip Scott four times. After Sharkey fouled Schmeling the commissioners decided to legalize the foul punch, an open invitation to Mr. Sharkey to devote himself exclusively to fouls in the next meeting and win the pork barrel championship by a legalized foul knockout.

Not wishing to be fouled, legally or otherwise, and not wishing to fight Sharkey again anyway, because Sharkey beat him badly in their first bout up to the time of the foul, Schmeling, through his manager, Joe [Single Tooth] Jacobs, declined the match and the Tammany appointment as champion was withdrawn.

William Stribling probably will be barred also, because he desires to fight Schmeling in Chicago or any other populous and liberal center where Schmeling is permitted to perform. It is reported that this bout will be announced tomorrow. Stribling has faith in the influence of the customers, who seem to believe that Schmeling will remain champion until he has been beaten in the ring.

Chicagoans Have Their Say.

Mr. Sidney Strotz and Mr. Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium corporation, bidders for a Schmeling-Stribling match, came to New York to add their say to the confusion of conversation which invariably precedes the arrangement of a match for the heavyweight championship, pork barrel or otherwise. However, up to the present moment, all the available heavyweights are under contract to separate promoters, and it will take a long time and much more conversation and publicity to effect that compromise which will be necessary before articles can be signed.

Schmeling has agreed to fight next for the Milk fund, Stribling has promised himself to the Chicago Stadium, and Sharkey is under contract to the Madison Square Garden firm. Schmeling also has a contract to fight next for Garden firm, but the contract was signed under duress, in return for a chance to win the pork barrel title, and he does not recognize it as valid or binding.

At present, Mr. Lewis for the Chi-

HOSE SHORTEN SPRING TRAINING PERIOD A WEEK

Pitcher Douglass Is Also Released.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Having observed Emile Barnes in action for several months last season, Donie Bush, manager of the White Sox, felt there was no necessity for further experiments with the youth. Hence announcement was made here yesterday by Business Manager Harry Grabiner that Barnes had been turned over to the Atlanta club of the Southern association.

Along with Barnes went a youth entitled Lowell Douglass. The latter is a pitcher who was corralled by one of the Comiskey scouts late last season. He made his pre-professional reputation at Baylor university, the school which primed Ted Lyons for the big show. Douglass now is coaching at his alma mater.

Came from Washington.

Barnes was obtained by the Sox last June in one of the two trades pulled with the Washington Senators. In one of these swaps the effervescing Mr. Art Shires was shipped to the capital city for Catcher Tate and Pitcher Braxton. In the other, Barnes was taken from Washington in exchange for Harris, also an outfielder.

Even with Barnes out of the picture, there is not going to be a scarcity of outfielders when Bush gets his entire squad assembled at the San Antonio camp about March 1. Reynolds and Jolley seem to be established as regulars, leaving the other fly chasing post to such candidates as Watwood and Eichrodt. The latter was drafted from New Orleans. Old Dad Fothergill and Blackerby also are on the Sox roster, but whether they will survive until training starts is doubtful.

Shorten Spring Training.

By setting the camp get-away for battery men at Feb. 21, the Six officials lopped a week off last spring's conditioning period but the change was made at the suggestion of Manager Bush who figured the men tired of training monotony. To make sure that they are in fairly good trim even before reaching camp he has passed word along to all members that it might do them no harm to toughen themselves up by some kind of strenuous labor at home.

Jorgens Votes Jorgens Best Yank Catcher

Art Jorgens has been hanging around for quite a stretch now waiting to be crowned regular backstop of the New York Yankees. Thus far he has been disappointed in his quest, but not discouraged. This year, to hear him tell it, is going to be a Jorgens year, and to this end he is keeping himself in readiness by playing basketball and at the same time coaching the five representing the Bethany Presbyterian church.

For a very good reason the Yanks have more of an appeal for Jorgens than any other clubs in the big leagues, including those of his home town, Chicago. When Jorgens was a student at Lane Tech he happened to be a member of its championship team which was selected to battle a New York prep team in a game arranged by THE TRIBUNE. The affair was put on at the Cubs' park and Lane lost.

It was how Lane lost that Jorgens remembers above all else. The principal item in the victory of the New Yorkers was a home run of which a lad named Lou Gehrig was the author. It wasn't long after this that the some Lou Gehrig ascended to the job of first sacker with the Yanks, the same team with which Jorgens aspires to do such excellent work that all the other backstops on the roster will have to spend a summer in the bullpen. For the last couple of years the Yanks have had him on "farms" to prepare him for his big trial.

Jorgens is no child as baseball rookies go, a fact which is accounted for by his spending several years in Chicago between graduation from high school and his first appearance as a professional. He caught for and managed a Chicago semi pro team and it was while thus engaged that a scout from a minor league observed him and signed him. He was born at Oslo, Norway. He is a right handed hitter and a fairly good one.

PROPELLERS, NOT SHOES, ARE BIG NEEDS, IT SEEMS

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Scientific propellers on feet is what the modern human needs instead of shoes, Dr. August Weinert told the Medical association in Berlin today, and he warned them that footgear must be reformed promptly in order to save the human frame from further useless deterioration.

Dr. Weinert declares that all previous theories on anatomy and on bones, especially those of the feet, are wrong. Each bone is twisted somewhat like a propellor, which is being crippled by present day shoes. There is only one man in the world who runs normally, according to the learned doctor. He is Nurmi, the Finnish athlete.

BRUINS FADE IN 2D HALF; LOSE TO BROOKLYN, 31-20

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Although the Bruins kept pace with the Brooklyn Visitations in the first half last night at the Broadway armory, they could only score three points in the second twenty minutes of play, losing to the title contending visitors, 31 to 20. Brooklyn, if it wins one of two games from Rochester, will finish at the top of the National league in the first half of the season which ends Sunday night.

The Taylor Trunks, Chicago's championship girls' quintet, won from the House of David, 18 to 9, in the opening game. Each team scored two victories in their series last year. Thirty-four hundred watched the double header.

It's Good Game at Start.

The first half of the Bruins' contest presented professional basketball at its best. The second half was another story. In the first period, both teams played clean cut defensive ball, and on the attack, raced up and down the floor with the vim of collegians. From the start Chicago fought to stay with the Visitations, and would have ended the period on even terms had it not been for a pair of long distance shots which gave Brooklyn a 21 to 17 advantage.

Whitey Wickhorst opened the scoring for Chicago, but Brooklyn went ahead, 6 to 2. Chicago equalled that mark, then tied the score again at 8 all on Charley Murphy's second field goal. The Visitations started manufacture once more, getting five points in succession. Great follow-up shots by Murphy and Wickhorst, and long shots by Wick and Kennedy, with a free throw in between by Nate Hickey, deadlocked the teams for a third time at 17 with a minute to play.

Scores Long Distance Shot.

Kellett's one hand shot from eight feet in front of the basket and Willie Scrill's two points from behind the center circle as time was called was Brooklyn's last effort.

Chicago did not have a chance in the second half. Leading 24 to 18, with 14 minutes to play, Brooklyn stalled, holding the ball from play so successfully that Chicago was in possession only eight times. Lineups:

SCHOLASTIC TOURNEYS.

THE WAKE congratulates Loyola university on its decision to hold as usual its annual interscholastic basketball tourney, eighth in its series. Such action was taken in deference to the wishes of schools which previously had sent squads to compete for the national Catholic title.

Our position has been that these tourneys, including Stagg's interscholastic, were nothing for the North Central association to worry about. Competition was optional. Those schools which thought the trip and experience worth more in educational value than the few days lost from the classrooms were privileged to enter. Those which did not could stay out. Indiana, for instance, did not permit members of its state high school association to compete.

Chicago dropped its Stagg tourney when the high school bodies took a little chew at the hand which had fed them, to avoid friction rather than because of any conviction that such tourneys were harmful to the boys competing.

What was the result? A tourney during the Christmas holidays for quintets in Chicago territory was substituted. This tourney, of course, lacked the prestige of the former event. So far as enthusiasm and attendance went, it exceeded the former national tourney. That was because the teams were known locally and each team attracted a legion of followers. As a esult there was "standing room only."

If gate receipts were the object, the present Stagg tourney is a greater financial success, conducted at less expense, than the former national interscholastic. Gate receipts were not the object, however.

Stagg once was thought to be doing something constructive for high school athletics. High school athletics grew enough to develop ambitious leaders. Then Stagg was all wrong—to those leaders.

Wonder what these leaders think of the long tour the Texas prep champions recently took through the middle west? To be consistent, shouldn't they "protect" their teams by forbidding them to play any touring fives?

Some Dawg!

Dear Wake: This is really true. A young married woman was telling me what she hoped her husband would give her for her birthday. It was a dog—"half collie and half pedigree." And she was serious. B. M. Craven.

To Some One in a Hospital.

Do you remember when I had my tonsils out
And you stayed close and every little doubt
That had assailed me fled, but you, old smelt,
Stood there and suffered all the pangs I never felt?
And now to think that you, an ever-present tower of strength,
Should be laid low. At such great length
I've bored you with a tale of every operation,
Major and minor; love affairs of short duration,
And all the petty happenings of a stuffy life.
But when YOUR body must be ravaged by the knife
(Or saws or chisels) which the learned Doc
Shall use, there is no "Shadow of a Rock"
For YOU to rest beneath—I would that I
By proxy might go through this one ordeal

"Great Prize Fight Near St. Louis."

A great prize fight between Michael McCool and William Davis came off on Wednesday last and was won by McCool. Davis has held the gold belt as champion of America and was challenged by McCool on a wager of the belt and $500. Thirty-five rounds were fought in 35 minutes, and Davis found himself badly punished, while McCool was comparatively unhurt. The St. Louis papers of yesterday are full of the details. It was a bloody affair an' a disgrace to the civilization of the age. We delight in a display of human muscle and manly sports in athletic feats, but this thing of prize fighting for the fun of the thing is worthy only a set of heathens.

GIVE GOOD HORSE A GOOD NAME, IS FIRST TURF RULE

BY FRENCH LANE.

There must be something in a name as far as great race horses are concerned. Fair Play, Man o' War, Reigh Count, Rose of Sharon, old Lexington and the younger Gallant Fox and Jamestown were given names that were worthy of champions.

So when you see the owner of a string of thoroughbred horses scratching his head with that "deep in thought" stare in his eyes at this time of the year don't reach the hurried verdict that something is wrong with him.

He's probably trying to choose a name for a youthful race horse of which he is particularly proud and endeavoring to give the colt a handle that will add to his fame.

Discourage Silly Names.

The Jockey club has for several years discouraged silly, unmeaning names for race horses. Instead it has encouraged owners to try to indicate the sire or dam of their young horses when the time comes to name them. If the owners can't do this, they are urged to give them a name that will be a credit even to a bad race horse.

Already the names for some of the young horses which next summer will be running at Chicago tracks, some of which may become famous, are beginning to appear. Fred Burton of Chicago has named a son of Wise Counsellor-Asta with which he is particularly impressed Wise Advocate. Two of the very appropriately named youngsters in the John Hertz stable are Well Heeled and Seven Veils. The former is a son of Royal Canopy-Gold Heels and the latter a daughter of Luke McLuke-Salome II.

Taggart Calls One French Lick.

Mrs. Payne Whitney has given a bay son of Ballot-Post Girl the good name of Silent Vote. Young Tom Taggart, who couldn't hook up a name that would indicate Dis Donc as the sire of one of the best colts he owned, named the youngster French Lick. Any one would know that a horse of that name would be owned by Taggart.

Young Mr. Taggart has another fine looking juvenile, a son of High Time-Rosanne. After naming a dozen or more of his 2 year olds he despaired of giving this fellow an appropriate label. Some of his friends volunteered to help him. They suggested a hundred or more names that would hook the youngster up with his famous daddy, High Time, or with the Taggarts in some way or another. We submitted a couple of names ourselves, but will keep them a dark secret until the final choice is made.

Nothing Like a Good Riot, Says Paulino

New York, Jan. 7.— [Special.] — Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight champion, who lost by decision in his fight with Primo Carnera in Spain, returned today on the French liner France, and described his adventures resulting from the Spanish riots which took place during his stay. He and Carnera were in Spain for several weeks.

PAULINO UZCUDUN.

One day, he said, he met Carnera on a street corner and a crowd, recognizing them, gathered, blocking traffic. The military, believing another riot had started, began to fire their rifles and ordered the crowd to disperse. Paulino said neither he nor Carnera needed a second bidding.

Riding in automobiles was denied to both fighters, Paulino said, as only nurses and doctors were permitted to ride through the streets, these cars had banners marked "nurse' and "doctor." Paulino said he obtained an automobile with the "nurse" designation. But Carnera took the chance of driving without a banner and was stopped by a mob that made him get out and walk.

DR. MAX EUWE WINS HASTINGS CHESS TOURNEY

HASTINGS, England, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Max Euwe of Holland, today took first prize in the international chess tournament. J. R. Capablanca, former world champion, finished second and Mir Sultan Khan of India, holder of the British chess championship, was third.

Dr. Euwe drew his game in the final round with Sir George Thomas of England in 17 moves, winding up the tournament with a score of 7 to 2, half a point better than Capablanca.

Medinah Rifle Club Gets National Charter

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—[Special].—The Medinah Athletic Rifle and Revolver club of Chicago was chartered today by the National Rifle association. More than 2,000 rifle clubs are affiliated with the association. Club officers are Thomas Houston, president; Mark Shanks, vice president; George Leonard, executive officer; Henry Kent, treasurer, and Carl Shipley, secretary.

GEORGE THROWS PLESTINA; FANS SHOUT "FAKE!"

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Don George, former University of Michigan athlete and claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, defeated Marin Plestina of Chicago here tonight.

George took the first fall in 29½ minutes with a flying tackle, and the second in 13 minutes 42 seconds, with a head scissors. The crowd booed the bout and at the end there were several shouts of "fake."

Carnera Sails for Second Invasion of United States

HAVRE, France, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, sailed today for his second invasion of the United States. He returned to Europe to fight Paulino Uzcudun in Spain after suffering suspensions in several states during his highly ballyhooed first visit.

Oklahoma Cagers Defeat Oklahoma A. & M., 35-21

Norman, Okla., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Oklahoma's sharpshooters, held in check by a tight Aggie defense in the first half, broke loose in the final period to swamp Oklahoma A. & M., 35 to 21, tonight.

HIGHLIGHTS IN SPORT—FROM ST. MORITZ TO CHICAGO

Europeans and Americans traveling on the continent will never lack facilities for skating, skiing and other winter sports as long as the famous resort at St. Moritz, Switzerland, exists. And if they tire of trying their skill on the many rinks and slopes there they can always have a go at the sport of mountain climbing, for there is plenty of material for that at St. Moritz, too. The peaks in the background are the Piz Albana and the Piz Rosatch.

SOUTH CHICAGO CLUB NAMES 19 IN SKATE DERBY

32 Becvar A.C. Members Enter Tribune Meet.

Nineteen skaters from the South Chicago Skating club were nominated by Dr. Thomas A. Carlos yesterday for THE TRIBUNE'S fifteenth Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park, Jan. 24 and 25. These entries were made in the men's senior, boys' intermediate, and junior girls' senior Derbies. Additional entries will be made later, Dr. Carlos said.

The South Chicago Skating club last year was known as the Moynihan club, and William Minster of that club won the men's senior silver skates.

Becvar Club Names 32.

The Becvar Athletic club, 5218 South Kedzie avenue, has entered 32 skaters in the five classes for boys. Twelve will compete for the senior silver skates, while the others are divided among the remaining divisions.

Many of the four hundred entered in the meet thus far have inquired concerning registration with the Illinois Western Skating association. Contestants 16 years of age and over must register with the association, the governing body of skating. The fee is 25 cents.

Entries will be received until midnight, Jan. 18, regardless of membership. Contestants may register at any of the Sunday skating meets with officials of the association, or they may register on the days of THE TRIBUNE races. Registration is not a special rule for the Silver Skates, but it is required for all meets.

Contestants under 16 years of age are not required to register with the Illinois Western Skating association.

Preliminaries on Saturday.

On the first day of the Silver Skates, Saturday, Jan. 24, the preliminaries and semi-finals of the boys' midget, juvenile, and junior classes will be held. For these races an eight lap to the mile track will be laid out at Garfield park.

On Sunday the track will measure six laps to the mile. Other preliminaries and the finals in all seven divisions will be held on that day.

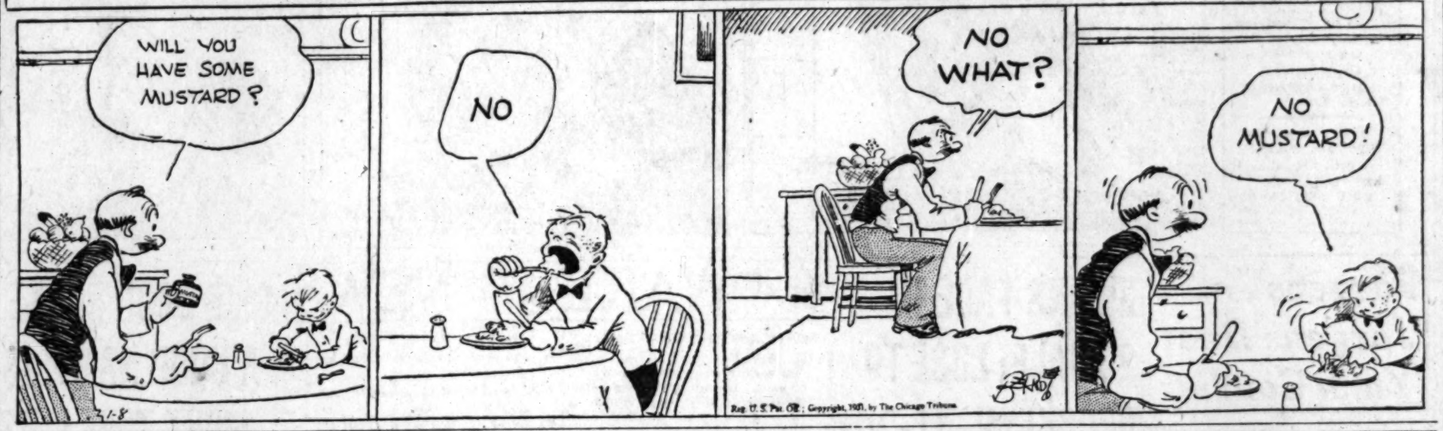
MOON MULLINS—WHEN THE SPIRIT MOVED HIM!

SMITTY—ENGLISH MUSTARD



Sharkey Last Loyal Subject of N. Y. Board

cago Stadium and Mr. Damon Runyon, for the Milk fund, are trying to outwait one another, both parties hoping to promote the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Chicago and draw $1,000,000 next summer.

However, the Messrs. Strotz and Lewis are returning to Chicago tomorrow realizing that it is still about two months too early for the conclusion of the agreement, if any.

"It would be very bad showmanship to sign articles now, even if we were in agreement," Mr. Lewis explained. "If we did so, the news would be all over in forty-eight hours and it would be very difficult to get up heat again. Experience has shown that the way to do will be to continue the agreements, with various boxing commissions suspending various people, and lawyers filing suits for damages and injunctions, until after the baseball clubs have settled down to their training in March. That will be the psychological time to sign the ers, as we can keep the heat up through April and May and drive the customers crazy by ringtime in June."

All Barred Except Sharkey.

Primo Carnera, barred several months ago for conduct detrimental to the ideals of the profession, has contaminated several other heavyweights, notably Paulino Uzcudun, James Maloney and Johnny Risko, since then, and they, too, have been automatically barred. Thus, when Stribling contaminates himself by signing articles for a fight with Schmeling, Sharkey will be the only heavyweight of any prominence remaining eligible in New York.

However, not to be left without a heavyweight division to regulate, the New York boxing commissioners doubtless will reinstate Carnera and those whom he contaminated before summer comes. Sharkey will then be permitted to fight him for the pork barrel appointment as champion and there will be two heavyweight champions.

Eventually, the two champions will have a fight, the pugilists and their parasites will receive twice as much money, and the New York prize fight commissioners, who are now the objects of some very unkind remarks in the local press, will stand revealed as benefactors of the racket after all. The customers, as always, will be the victims, but that every has been the rôle of the customer in the prize fight industry.

SKATE SUNDAY FOR 2 OLYMPIC TEAM PLACES

Bill Minster of the Norwegian American A. A. and Art Peters of the Northwest Skating club are favorites to win the two remaining places on the skating squad to represent the Illinois Western Skating association in the national Olympic tryouts to be held at Lake Placid, N. Y., in February. Minster and Peters will have a chance to win these places in the local Olympic tryouts to be held next Sunday as part of the Northwest Skating club derby at Humboldt park.

Strength and stamina will be necessary to win, as Peters and Minster must triumph over more than 30 other stars in either the 1,500 meter or the 10,000 meter event. Among others conceded good chances are Al Kucera of Henry A. A., Herb Knudten and Cornie Ewert of the Northwest Skating club, Graham McQueeney of the Elgin Lions club, Ray Wondra of the Amphions, Wilbur Marks of the Walton Arrows, and Ed Stundl of the Majestic S. C. Eddie Schroeder of the Walton Arrows and Wally Mitchell of the Majestic S. C. won places on the team in the tryouts last Sunday.

St. Viator Beats Bradley Tech, 22-17, in Overtime

Kankakee, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—St. Viator college tonight defeated Bradley Tech of Peoria, 22 to 17, in an overtime period for its second consecutive Little Nineteen basketball victory. The score was 16 to 16 when the regulation game ended. The win establishes St. Viator as a strong contender for the conference title.

Grinnell Eleven Elects Christoffersen Captain

Grinnell, Ia., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Oscar Christoffersen of Cedar Rapids, Ia., veteran guard and center, was elected captain of the 1931 Grinnell college football team tonight. The election was held at a dinner given for the football squad by President J. H. T. Main. Christoffersen succeeds Ben Douglas, also of Cedar Rapids.

Horace Mann Quintet Upsets Emerson, 27-14

Gary, Ind., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Horace Mann of Gary, which had lost seven straight games, turned in an upset here tonight by defeating Emerson of Gary, 27 to 14. The defeat was Emerson's second in eight games, and Horace Mann's second victory in nine starts.

Millers Trade Riley for Pair of Shamrocks

With their league leadership at stake in tonight's game against the Tulsa Oilers, the Shamrocks yesterday made an eleventh hour attempt to strengthen their lineup by completing a trade with the Minneapolis Millers.

McKenzie to Defense.

Acquisition of Riley will bolster the local lineup and will replace much of the power lost through injury of Bouncer Taylor, crack defense man, on the recent road trip.

Tulsa comes to the Stadium after a week's rest, while the Shamrocks have just completed the heaviest part of the schedule—five games in seven days. Defeat tonight will move the Oilers back into a tie for the lead with the Shamrocks, who hold only a two point margin in the close race.

Tulsa Leads with Goals.

Tulsa tops the local sextet in the number of goals scored. Burr Williams, Oiler defense sensation, somewhat of a newcomer to organized hockey this year, leads all defense men in the matter of goals scored.

In addition the Shamrocks will rely on the league's leading point getter last year, Corbett Dennenay, and Bobby Burns, who ranks fifth at present. Teamed with Brydson, this pair gives the Shamrocks the offensive edge tonight, with Tulsa looking for its greatest accomplishments to come from Duke Keats at center and Gus Marker, who will team with LaFrance.

HAWKS, MINUS ABEL, SOMERS, FACE QUAKERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 7.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks, minus the services of their leading defense player, Taffy Abel, who was injured at Boston and who has been sent to Chicago for treatment, will meet the Philadelphia Quakers tomorrow night.

The absence of Abel, together with that of the Hawks' center, Art Somers, who is also in Chicago nursing injuries, leaves the Hawks seriously weakened. They must win over the Quakers to keep pace with the New York Rangers and the Detroit Falcons, which are right on their heels in the fight for second place in the American division.

Slattery Here to Get Even with Levinsky

Jimmy Slattery today begins the final week of training for the King Levinsky fight, with Al Miller, King's old manager, advising him. He meets King at the Stadium next Wednesday.

Slattery arrived yesterday with two things foremost in his mind. One is the defeat of Levinsky. The other involved a visit to the commission offices, where Jimmy will ask the N. B. A. to force Maxie Rosenbloom into a title fight with him.

"I have been promised a return bout several times and the New York commission even went so far as to order Rosenbloom to meet me again in Buffalo, but nothing ever came of it." Slatttery said. "Of course, Maxie is safe for a few months yet, since he defended his title against Abie Bain just eight weeks ago.

Levinsky pays no heed to the fact that his former manager will be planning his undoing in the opposite corner at the Stadium next Wednesday.

SAMPSON SIGNS TO FACE STEINKE ON MAT CARD

Jim Londos and Matros Kirilenko, who meet Monday night on the Broadway armory mat show, will arrive today. Hans Steinke of Germany and Big Jack Sampson of Minnesota have been signed for the semi-windup. It will be Steinke's first Chicago appearance in more than two years.

Brickies Hold Indoor Soccer Meet Sunday

The following clubs have entered: Sparta, Bricklayers, Swedes, Norwegians, Jugo-Slavs, Carpenters, Buda, Waverly, Scandia, Schwaben, Maccabees, Vienna, Giusta, and Slovaks.

Jones Will Be Re-elected to U. S. Golf Board

ew York, Jan. 7.—[Special.]—Bobby Jones' reelection as a member of the executive committee of the United States Golf association apparently will be only a formality when the U. S. G. A. holds its annual meeting here Saturday.

Officers of the organization declared Jones's retirement from amateur golf, his motion picture and radio contracts, had not made him ineligible for the committee post, nor has it aroused any unfavorable reaction within the organization.

"If he desired or felt it was advisable," said Herbert H. Ramsay, slated to become president of the meeting, "we could elect a professional golfer to executive committee membership so long as he has enrolled in a member club, nothing in our by-laws prevents it.

Morgan Park and Harrison Prep Cage Teams Win

Harrison heavies opened their west section schedule yesterday by invading Marshall's court for a 31 to 26 victory. The home lights retaliated by whipping the Harrison ponies, 35 to 15. Bazant, with 9 points, and Sisulak, with 12, led the winning heavies' scorers, while Rosen of Marshall dropped in six baskets and a free throw.

Morgan Park took its first battle in the south section by defeating Parker heavies on the former's floor, 33 to 17. Kephart and Janus featured for Morgan Park, while Birge was the losers' star. Armsbury, Taylor, and Snyder led the Parker lights to a 36 to 24 triumph. Lineups:

BALLOON GOLF BALL JUST LIKE OLD ONE IN RAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Golf's balloon ball was given the rain test today by more than 300 players three of whom led the field with cards of 146, in the qualifying round for the Los Angeles $10,000 open tournament.

Two professionals, Willie Goggin, San Francisco, and Ben Coltrin, Oakland, Cal., and Danny Sangster, Los Angeles amateur, were the leaders.

General opinion held the ball played the same as the old in the rain, which was terrible, for some of the 95 qualifiers got in with scores of 165 for 36 holes. These fortunates, along with a list of 38 exempted on the ground of superior play in the 1930 Los Angeles open and in the national open, make a total of 133 who will start play over the Wilshire Country club course Friday.

GOOD OMEN IS SEEN IN BUDGET OF TRADE NEWS

Steel Output Shows a Sharp Gain.

BY O. A. MATHER.

One couldn't ask for much more cheerful news than yesterday produced. It was chiefly contributed by the steel and automobile industries, but with the railroads and the money markets doing their bit.

W. W. ATTERBURY

Perhaps the high point in news of the steel industry was the placing of orders for 200,000 tons of rails at an estimated cost of $8,500,000 by the Pennsylvania railroad. But other track materials will boost this expenditure to around $15,000,000.

About 15 per cent of the rail tonnage is for immediate delivery and the remainder will be taken during the year. President W. W. Atterbury said the railroad's improvement program of renewing main tracks with heavier rails will be pushed vigorously this year.

The steel industry began the new year with a sharp gain in activity, following the holiday letdown. Ingot production for the last week averaged 61 per cent of capacity, thus recovering the December losses and getting back to the level of late November. Six blast furnaces have been put back in service.

Seasonal Expansion.

"Much of the current improvement is due to January shipping orders passed in December," the Iron Age says. "But a fair volume of releases since the first of the year and a gain in the number of inquiries point to continued expansion of demand in line with seasonal tendencies.

"Automobile, railroad, tin plate, and structural tonnage are contributing most to current mill activity, but a general upswing in demand is looked for to compensate for drastic inventory reduction in the closing month of 1930. Chicago district rail mills are running at 50 to 55 per cent of capacity.

A fairly substantial increase in bookings of the United State Steel corporation for December is anticipated in the statement to be issued Saturday noon. A gain of between 300,000 and 400,000 tons would be a normal seasonal expectation.

Automobile Pickup.

The automobile industry is picking up more rapidly than had been anticipated. The December output in the United States and Canada totaled 155,000 cars and trucks, compared with 250,344 in November, according to an estimate by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Production in 1930 amounted to 4,485,661 units, compared with 5,621,935 in 1929, but the output this year is estimated around 4,075,000 by Automotive Industries. Current inventories of new car stocks are 25 per cent below a year ago.

The present situation of a plethora of money and low interest rates was reflected yesterday in the action of the St. Louis federal reserve bank in reducing its rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent. Recently the New York reserve bank cut its rate to 2 per cent.

Announce Reductions.

Chicago banks which are members or affiliated with the Chicago Clearing House association last night announced reductions in interest allowed to some classes of depositors. Interest allowed to country banks for funds on deposit in Chicago was cut from 1½ to 1 per cent and interest on commercial balances was reduced from 2 to 1½ per cent. Commercial time deposits of 30 to 90 days will receive 2 per cent and those from 90 days to six months will get 2½ per cent. No change was made in the 3 per cent rate for savings deposits.

Says Freight Trucks' Tax Rate Exceeds Railroads

BY SCRUTATOR.

From the standpoint of gross operating revenues, motor freight trucks using the highways are taxed at a rate higher than railroads, according to the testimony of H. H. Hiland, president of the Interstate Trucking company, at an Interstate commerce commission examiners' hearing in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Mr. Hiland said that his company, operating about 100 pieces of motor equipment out of Chicago and with scheduled freight service to at least six states, paid 12 per cent of its gross revenues in taxes.

"We have regular overnight delivery service from Chicago over 2,000 miles of highway. Our practical radius of operations is about 300 miles. Two years ago it was barely 200 miles. The improvement in pneumatic tires for trucks and trailers alone has made possible this increase."

Joint Rates Seen Beneficial.

He suggested under questioning of Examiner Leo J. Flynn, who is conducting the country-wide investigation of the possibilities of coördinating rail and motor transport service, that joint rail and highway rates could be made with benefit to the public.

Hiland added that on many occasions he had offered to coöperate with the railroads by delivering to them in Chicago freight from Mississippi valley points destined for the east, but that the railroads had refused to collect his freight charges from the consignee.

In this witness's belief, the railroads have lost a great deal more of their less than carload freight to forwarding companies rather than to trucks. These forwarding companies gather freight in Chicago from numerous shippers, make up full carloads for distant cities and take a profit by being able to reach the full carload rate. He asserted that one such concern boasted of sending 400 carloads a day out of Chicago.

Another point he made was that the forwarding companies, where they found it advisable, would ship by truck. He added that he was informed the forwarding companies were owned by the railroads themselves.

Previous witnesses at the hearing yesterday were railroad representatives. E. P. Cockrell, general passenger agent of the Monon route, showed that in 1920 2,202,426 passengers had been hauled, while in 1930 the total was only 477,828.

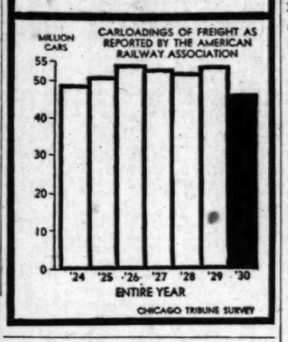
Show Big Shrinkage.

Between Chicago and Indianapolis, coach passengers had shrunk to 25 per cent of the number carried in 1920. Buses, he said, were estimated to carry four times as many passengers between these points as the fourteen trains each way operated by three rail carriers daily could induce into their day coaches.

J. R. Van Delinder, general freight agent of the Monon, asserted that his road had 382 competitors for traffic using motor facilities along its lines. He cited instances of coal being moved from mines in southern Indiana to consumers more than fifty miles distant by truck.

Officials of the Rock Island railroad testified that they had lost 79 per cent of their intrastate passengers between 1919 and 1929 and 53 per cent of their interstate passengers. A. W. Towsley, assistant to the president of the road, introduced evidence showing that railroads in thirteen states paid eighty-six million dollars in taxes in 1929, and advanced the claim that nearly fourteen millions of this had gone to build roads on which railroad competitors could operate.

CARLOADINGS IN 1930 WERE THE LOWEST SINCE 1922



SHEAFFER PEN VOTES DIVIDENDS FOR 1931; PAYS EXTRA OF 50 CTS.

Stockholders of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen company during 1931 will receive dividends equal to the 1929 and 1930 payments, which were the largest during the company's seventeen years of dividend paying history.

The directors have voted the regular semi-annual payments of $1 each in addition to the usual extra dividend of 50 cents a share. The first semi-annual distribution will be payable March 15, as will the extra. The second half year payment will be made on Sept. 15. Directors will later declare another extra to be distributed at that time, it was announced.

Fageol Motors omitted its semi-annual dividend of 35 cents on preferred. Directors of Spiegel, May, Stern & Co. omitted the quarterly payment of $1.62½ due on preferred.

WILSON & CO. BOOSTS 1930 PROFIT DESPITE SMALLER VOLUME

Economies and efficiency enabled Wilson & Co., Chicago meat packers, to earn more last year than in 1929 in spite of a smaller volume of business and the general depression.

Sales for the fiscal year ended Nov. 1, 1930, totaled $270,000,000, compared with $310,000,000 in 1929. However, net earnings were $2,542,656, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to $1.51 a share on the class A stock, compared with net earnings of $2,304,592, or 85 cents a share, in 1929.

The company paid a year's dividends, amounting to $2,000,211, on the preferred stock, but it still has a year's payment in arrears. It also added $542,444 to surplus, which stands at $5,372,576. Dividends at the rate of $5 a year on the 357,533 class A shares became cumulative on Nov. 1 last. The balance sheet shows current assets of $39,746,777 and current liabilities of $4,329,009. Inventories were reduced to $22,820,726.

"The results for the year may be considered satisfactory in view of the general business conditions that have prevailed throughout the world," President Thomas E. Wilson said.

"Every effort has been put forth to conserve the company's assets during these trying times. Current assets are over nine times current liabilities. There is no bank indebtedness. In the year just closed the company called and paid $2,500,000 gold notes which were to become due on March 1, 1931."

WALGREEN DRUG SALES RISE 10% DURING YEAR '30

Sales of Walgreen drug stores for December of last year were $4,726,749 as against $4,891,735 for December, 1929, a decrease of $164,985 or 3.4 per cent.

For the twelve months of 1929, however, sales were $51,647,115 as against $46,547,937 for the same period in 1929, an increase of $5,099,177.20 or 10.9 per cent. The total number of stores being operated at Dec. 31 was 441.

Sees Better Realty Market Just Around the Corner

BY AL CHASE.

Real estate's slump during 1929 and 1930 will prove a blessing in disguise, according to J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of Starrett Brothers, who last night addressed the Chicago Real Estate board at its first monthly meeting of 1931. Mr. Warterfield, who formerly was business manager of the realtors' organization, declared that a better realty market is just around the corner, and that preparations should be started now to meet it.

J. SOULE WARTERFIELD. [Walinger Photo.]

"Let's call in the architect, the builder, the banker, the title man, and lawyer, the leaders in the various branches of our own industry here and elsewhere, and see what they have to offer," he said. "Even the advertising man and the chain store man and merchant can show us new ways to handle our merchandise. We have the greatest commodity on earth to sell let's dress up our merchandise, improve our presentation, and get to work.

"The public will 'investigate—buy real estate'—in just that proportion that we ourselves are sold.

Sees Housing Shortage.

"We are unconsciously drifting again toward a housing shortage with the World's Fair demands at our door. We, too, will say, particularly in Chicago, with the automotive industry, that 1929 and 1930 were a blessing in disguise because the job of readjustment was so thoroughly done.

"This is no idle prophecy; you who are in the business know that I speak the facts; no one has had the nerve to tell the truth before, that's all."

Next to the tax muddle Mr. Warterfield declared that the most serious handicap to be overcome in bringing about a return to a normal real estate market is the question of financing.

"Let us call in our bankers and trust companies and see where we are going," he said. "They are more responsible for the breaking down of the system than we, but let's all take our honest share of the blame and get started again.

Stock Losses Greater.

"All that's necessary to restore real estate finance is a knowledge by the public of the facts, assurance of the future constructive coöperation of our bankers and thereby restored confidence.

"The total amount of real estate securities in trouble in this entire country represent less than one day's losses on the stock market. In fact, the losses on the stock market, since th crash on Wall street, are seventy times the amount of real estate securities in trouble in the entire United States in the last two years.

"Let us not be satisfied with this, however. We have to offer to the public the greatest security on earth. Let us make it even better. Let our hard headed realtors meet with our hard hearted and hard headed bankers and put safeguards around our security market and devise new types and combinations of securities so that our commodity may be even better, more flexible, and more secure, preventing a repetition of recent losses, comparatively small as they are."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 7.—Railroad and rubber shares featured the bargain counter displays in today's stock market and good gains were scored by representative issues of both departments. Elsewhere, however, the market appeared somewhat tired out from its efforts of the last three or four days, in which it has recovered approximately a quarter of the ground lost on the decline from the September highs to the December lows.

Many of the industrials which have been in the van of the rebound were disposed to mark time, moving in a narrow range and winding up as a rule slightly below their closing levels of Tuesday. American Can, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, and most of the other pivotals were to be found among the hesitants.

Profit taking was quite heavy in the afternoon dealings.

The general run of news favored a

BUY and hold good common stocks—that's a famous recipe for wealth-building. But until now it has been a hard rule to follow. You aren't familiar with stocks. You haven't enough money to diversify. Rich men spread their money. They know that safety lies in doing so.

Now, under the Standard American plan, any investor with $100 or more can buy common stocks with as much safety as the wealthiest investor. 25 high-grade stocks ... selected by competent authorities as best ... are placed in trust. They represent many industries. The companies are leaders. Combined, their resources total 20 billion dollars.

You may purchase an interest in this trust. It may be large, it may be small, but in any case your money is safeguarded because so widely diversified.

Every detail of buying and caring for the stocks, disposing of rights, etc., is given expert care under the Standard American plan. Income is disbursed twice yearly, on May 1 and November 1.

Standard American Trust Shares are readily marketable at all times. The price is based on market quotations for the underlying stocks that day. In addition, the holder of 500 trust shares may secure the underlying stocks on presentation of his certificate to the Trustee.

Rich men see the advantages of this plan. Several investors recently purchased in excess of $100,000 each of Standard American Trust Shares.

The distribution of these shares is sponsored by Lawrence Stern & Company and The National Republic Company, investment affiliate of The National Bank of the Republic, Chicago. The trustee is the Chicago Trust Company.

A phone call will bring complete information. Or write for a booklet, "The Modern Method of Common Stock Investment," which gives all the facts.

PRICE CHANGES ARE NARROW IN CHICAGO TRADING

Profit Taking Follows Early Strength.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading on the Chicago exchange slowed up yesterday to a 160,000 share rate with the active shares keeping within a narrow price range and resulting in no important changes.

The bullish sentiment evidenced in the last few days was subdued. Profit taking followed early strength and prices turned down throughout the list. The selling appeared in moderate volume and apparently came from speculators who were ready to reap the benefits of recent gains.

Although the majority of leading issues closed the day with small net losses there were exceptions, notable among which were the Continental Chicago issues and Grigsby-Grunow. Trading in the latter issue held at a comparatively active pace as the reports of its flickering continued to be shrouded with uncertainty and vagueness. Questioned in New York, B. J. Grigsby, chairman of the board, stated he had nothing to say concerning the reported merger negotiations.

Moderate Headway.

The buoyancy which characterized the Continental shares in Tuesday's dealings was in evidence again and the issues forged ahead for moderate gains.

Bancokentucky stock bowed its way off the board at the record minimum quotations of ¼. After the close of the market exchange governors voted to remove the issue from the list, effective as of the close yesterday. The listing consisted of 2,472,268 shares of no par common stock. Delisting of the issue follows the appointment of a receiver for the company. The firm was an investment company whose holdings consisted of stocks of several banks which closed their doors during the recent wave of bank failures in the south.

List Additional Shares.

Listing of an additional 30,000 shares of common stock of United States Gypsum company and 64,600 shares of common stock of the Community Water Service company was also approved. The latter listing was made to provide for a 3 per cent stock dividend payable in February and another which will be distributed next August.

Transfer of memberships to Arthur Reynolds Jr. and John S. Lull was formally approved. The last sale of an exchange seat was made at $13,500, which was a reduction of $1,000 from the previous purchase price.

TO COVER PREFERRED.

Although 1930 net profit of Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company will be substantially under 1929, it is likely preferred dividends of $650,000 will be earned with something left for common stock, as against net profit of $1,962,459, or $2.11 a common share, in 1929 after preferred dividends of $481,688 actually paid, a Dow-Jones survey says.

JOHN V. ZELEZNY HEADS BOARD OF 26TH STREET BANK

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Twenty-sixth Street State bank last night the directors were reëlected, but a number of changes were made at the election of officers.

John V. Zelezny, formerly president of the bank, was elected chairman of the board, a new position. John G. Zelezny, formerly vice president and cashier, was chosen president. Otto Baumrucker was reëlected vice president. Stanley Dvorak, formerly assistant cashier, was made vice president. Joseph F. Hajek Jr. was elected assistant cashier.

New directors have been named by the stockholders of other outlying banks. Elward Morris, president of the Sherman White company of Fort Wayne, has been named to the board of the Liberty Trust and Savings bank. Dr. Gilman W. Petit was elected to the board of the I-C Bank and Trust company. Robert W. Schupp and Russell Whitman were added to the board of the North Avenue State bank. Peter Tampoorlas becomes a director of the Pinkert State bank.

GRAIN VALUES MARCH HIGHER AS CORN LEADS

Latter Advances 2⅛@2¼c from Early Low.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets were again on the upgrade yesterday with corn in the lead. The latter advanced 2⅛@2¼c from the early low to a new high on the present movement, and at the top showed 8¼@8¾c above the inside figure of last year, May touching 74¼c, the best price since Dec. 18. Commission houses and local professionals were persistent buyers and found offerings light. The finish was 1@1¼c higher, with March, 72⅜@72½c; May, 73⅝@73¾c, and July, 74⅝@74¾c.

Some increase in outside interest in corn futures was noticeable. While there were numerous setbacks during the day due to profit taking, all dips brought in good buying. When shorts tried to cover toward the last they found little for sale. Despite the upturn in prices of late country offerings to arrive were not large and generally held 1@3c above the market.

Overnight bids to the country were close to 60c per bu for No. 3 yellow at Illinois points, and a further advance is expected to witness an increase in sales of cash grain. Reports to Lamson Bros. & Co., however, suggested that the movement would not be large, although in some parts of Iowa grain would come forward during the month of February.

Primary Movement Small.

Receipts of corn at terminal markets continue to run about half of what they were at this season a year ago, arrivals being 525,000 bu against 1,196,000 bu in 1930. Lafayette, Ind., reported eastern bids for cash corn there had been advanced equal to 3¼c over night, but the demand locally was only fair, with shipping sales estimated at 42,000 bu.

Old crop deliveries of wheat here and at Kansas City have been acting a little tight for several days. It has not been necessary for the Stabilization corporation to support the market since Saturday, the price holding above the pegged figure for the May. There was some buying of May here by a cash house, which was regarded as against flour sales, and the close was at net gains of ⅝@⅞c, with March, 80¾c, and May, 81¾c. Kansas City May was up ⅛c at 73⅞c, while Minneapolis closed unchanged at 78½c, failing to show the strength which prevailed in other markets.

Shorts Buy July Wheat.

There was a fair commission house trade in July wheat, which was sold early by locals on the relative easiness in Winnipeg. Later, however, shorts covered on the strength in corn and advanced prices 2c from the early low to 67¼c, the highest figure since Dec. 20, and the close was 1½c higher at 66¾c. Winnipeg was up only ⅝c for the day, profit taking by locals who bought Tuesday offsetting to a large extent buying by houses with Chicago connections and by the seaboard and the continent. Export sales of 300,000 to 500,000 bu were claimed in all positions, and in the last few days a little wheat has been sold to the extent despite the record low price for silver.

The upturn in July wheat here put it to a small premium over the same delivery in Liverpool. The latter market was affected by firmer Argentine and Canadian offers, and closed ⅝@1⅛d higher. Buenos Aires was ¼c lower as compared with the finish on Monday due to more favorable weather. Monday due to more favorable weather.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Foreigners continue to show fair interest in Canadian wheat and sales of around 500,000 bu were estimated in all positions, including some durum. There were numerous bids in the market about 1c below a working basis.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Wednesday: Wheat, 31 cars; corn, 66 cars; oats, 27 cars; barley, 4 cars.

PACKERS BUY LARD

Buying of lard futures yesterday was credited to packing interests. Trading in all was light in futures, but cash business was said to be strong. Liverpool lard advanced 6d to 1s, the latter on spot lard. Bellies, which advanced 2s on Tuesday, lost the appreciation. At the close lard futures were 5@12c higher, the latter on May. Bellies were 25@37½c. Hog supplies were larger than a week and a year ago, and it is said that the hog market movement this month will be large. Prices were higher. Prices follow:

PRICES OF ALL LIVE STOCK SHOW GAINS FOR DAY

Top Lambs Break Through $9.00 Line.

On the previous Wednesday's market the top was $8.10 and the average $7.55.

January Hogs, $7.75.

January medium weight hogs were sold at $7.75 on the futures market yesterday. Light weights for this month's delivery were bid $8.10 and offered at $8.50, while February contracts carried bids of $8.50. Light weights for delivery during the last half of March and all of April were bid $9.00. January and February heavy were offered at $7.75. February mediums were offered at $8.00 and March mediums at $8.50, with bids on the latter at $8.25.

There is an acute scarcity of cattle grading above good lately, which is causing considerable competition for steers eligible to more than $11.00. Highly finished yearlings of show type are absent. Prime 1,312 lb steers topped yesterday's price list at $13.25, highest of the week for the weight. A few yearlings averaging 810 lbs also sold at $13.25.

Lambs Market Active.

Fat lambs sold freely at 15@25c higher prices and are 50@75c above the low time of last week. Most slaughter lambs brought $8.25@8.85, although all interests paid up to $9.00 for the best selections. This sharp advance has come in face of the substantial increase in receipts.

Arrivals at seven markets in three days at 169,000 are 31,000 head, or 22 per cent greater than a week ago. Chicago receipts so far this month at 76,900 compare with 46,577 a year ago. Aged sheep and yearlings were firm. Feeding lambs met good demand at 25c advance with the best at $7.60.

Additional price enhancement featured the live stock markets on yesterday's session. Top lambs have finally broken through the $9.00 line, fancy 80-lb averages going to $9.10 on shipping account, being the highest since last October. Lambs are selling $1.25 @1.50 above the low point of the season last November. Hogs ruled steady to 10c higher, the general average showing 5c gain at $7.85. Best steers advanced 25c more, showing fully 50c gain for the week.

Outside hog buyers carried orders for about a third of yesterday's fresh receipts, and, with a fourth of the supply shipped direct to packers from other points, the clearance was good at the slight advance in prices. Hogs are selling 15@35c above the low point the middle of last week, in spite of an increase of 11 per cent in receipts at the eleven leading markets during the first three days of this week. Top for load lots stopped at $8.20, although 23 hogs averaging 183 lbs sold at $8.25.

BUTTER AND EGGS

Firmness and higher prices in the spot egg market resulted in a fair buying move in futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, the price being ½c higher. Butter prices sagged, influenced by unfavorable storage and production news and finished ¼@¾c lower. Sales: Butter, 27 cars; eggs, 91 cars. Receipts: Butter, 4,487 tubs; eggs, 3,831 cases. SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, although it developed that late yesterday additional sales of about 50,000 bags of Cuban were made to local refiners for prompt shipment at a further advance, or at 3.40c for spots, duty paid.

Early steadiness in raw futures when most of the active positions were higher was followed by reactions owing to the increased offerings in the spot market, with the market closing 1 to 4 points net lower. Approximate sales were 29,900 tons. Closing prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.

CORN DEPOSES WHEAT AS RULER OF CHCAGO BOARD OF TRADE PITS

The dynasty of wheat is at an end. The Board of Trade has chosen a native king.

Ruler of the pits, these 84 years in the world's greatest grain mart, wheat will be deposed next Monday as the trade acknowledges the native maize as market leader.

The formal gesture of a new allegiance will be the transfer of corn trading into the larger pit now occupied by wheat buyers and sellers. Evicted, the wheat trade moves to the lesser pit.

"This move," said the terse announcement of the change in pits yesterday, "was necessitated by steadily diminishing activity in wheat trading and a resultant increase of interest in the corn market."

Graphic evidence of the trade's desertion from its old monarchy was seen in a comparison of futures trading volume Tuesday and a year ago. The flying fingers that signaled bids and acceptances across the frenzied pit in dramatic sessions of its more than fourscore years bought and sold less than one-fourth the volume of wheat yesterday that was traded a year ago; they traded nearly four times the quantity of corn.

The figures:

The government's entry into the wheat pit coincided with the retirement of the private trader into an attitude of watchful aloofness. The knowledge that its powerful trading agencies would not permit the market to drop below a fixed level; the burden of the 60,000,000 bushels of wheat removed from the market and still undisposed of by the Stabilization corporation; uncertainty over the outcome of the government's policy and increasing use of coöperative associations by the farmers—these considerations all have attracted private trade away from the wheat pit and into the corn pit, where the government so far has not entered.

Coincidental with exchange of pits by corn and wheat trade the Board of Trade will bring its securities market from the seclusion of an anteroom into the main trading hall.

CHANGE GRAIN RULES

Three propositions to change the grain rules were carried by a large majority yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The new car lot delivery rule provides for track deliveries on the last three days of an expiring future. The proposition to make No. 3 corn deliverable on sales for futures the year around at 2c bu discount on white and yellow and 2½c on mixed went over by a large majority.

The board of trade will continue to observe its old hours of trading, 9:30 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., except on Saturdays, the proposal to keep open until 2 p. m. being defeated yesterday by a vote of 593 to 163.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

A Desirable Connection

The strongest institution of its kind in the midwest has a PERMANENT connection for a man who measures up to the following qualifications:
[a] Sales experience and business training which qualifies him to meet, on an even footing, a discriminating buying clientele in the Chicago district.
Such a man will be given charge of an important city clientele, which he will contact through letters and introduction by Management—which includes men who hold 12 directories of banks in Chicago.
Apply in person between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. on Thursday only at Suite 2005, 200 N. La Salle-st. [corner Lake], and ask for Frederic S. Dudley.
